TRAIL BLAZER — For the first time in San Quentin Prison's 121 years of existence, a woman stands guard on the prison walls, shotgun in hand. San Quentin's First Woman Guard Facing Some Problems

By PAT ANGLE

Wilma Schneider is making history at San Quentin Prison, but sometimes she wishes that pioneering role had been already been performed by someone else.

While no one was paying much attention, the 30-year-old Sonoma woman was hired three weeks ago as the first female correctional officer in the institution's 121-year history.

"I feel something like a monkey in the zoo," the slender brunette said this week during a coffee break on her way to duties on a prison gun rail.

The pressures of being the only woman in the formerly all-male occupation are terrific, according to Mrs. Schneider, recently divorced and the mother of three small children. "I can't help but think that, if I don't succeed I'm going to ruin it for all other women."

Another woman, the wife of a correctional officer, was hired at the same time as Mrs. Schneider, but quit when her husband decided he didn't want her working on the "inside." A third began orientation this week for a guard's post at Folsom Prison.

For the most part, though, the new officer is adjusting to her unique position with noteworthy calm and is determined to do the very best job she can. She brings to the job three years experience as a group supervisor at the California Youth Authority's Los Guilucos School for Girls and Boys in Santa Rosa and so has some idea of what she may encounter in this job.

"I'm convinced that women can be a real asset in here; I think they can help provide a more normal atmosphere for the inmates and even make life a bit more pleasant — if anything can be pleasant here."

Reaction to the feminine invasion of the man's world behind the walls has ranged from shock to apprehension to open resentment.

For example, her presence in the institution's mess hall so unnerved one inmate that he fell down a flight of stairs while taking in the unexpected sight of a woman supervising the steam table.

Some of the problems Mrs. Schneider will encounter on account of her sex stem from certain duties she will be expected to perform if she is truly to do the same work as her male colleagues.

Manning the gun rails and towers, supervising meals, making head counts and searching cells may present no special difficulties for a woman.

But nobody — including prison officials — is quite sure what to do about those more personal jobs, like supervising showers and making body searches of inmates. Most officials think that women officers will eventually have to do these things and are frankly worried about how the inmates will react.

Some have already reacted with dismay. The men's advisory council, a group of elected convicts charged with investigating inmate complaints, is getting together a petition against women officers to send to the courts, whose recent decisions have prohibited even prisons from discriminating on the basis of sex when hiring.

Others, including correctional officers, have sent letters to anyone they could think of, pleading that something be done to remove women from inside tne walls.

"I feel it is an invasion of my

Another Dollar Crisis Develops

BONN (UPI) — A new dollar crisis hit Europe today and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt called for crisis consultations with the United States and European Allies. Speculators dumped more billions of dollars than they did during the February crisis that brought a 10 per cent devaluation of the dollar.

"The Central Bank had to buy $2.7 billion dollars today," Brandt told newsmen as he awaited the arrival of Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath for monetary talks. "That has never happened before anywhere in the world." When the Central Bank withdrew support the dollar fell to a record 2.82 marks to one dollar.

Government spokesman Ruediger Von Wechmar said Brandt had ordered his top financial advisers to get in urgent telephone contact with officials of the United States and European Common Market nations on the new dollar crisis before he dined with Heath at a castle outside Bonn, Von Wechmar said.

Today's run against the dollar forced the dollar down in Brussels, Paris, London, Amsterdam, Stockholm, Rome, Copenhagen and Tokyo. Gold rose in price.

Men in the middle of the action on Europe's money marts said the primary incentive of the dollar-sellers seemed to be the conviction that European nations would soon stop supporting the dollar and "float" their currencies against it.

The dollar story was similar across Europe and in Japan. The dollar dropped to its floor price, bringing Central Banks in to emergency purchases. In London, the dollar dropped to its lowest level against sterling since the British floated the pound last June.

Gold rose in London and Frankfurt to its highest levels of the week, reaching $88 an ounce in London and $84.51 in Frankfurt. Bullion prices lowered in Zurich, however.

Marin Must Face Welfare Challenges

By MARY LEYDECKER
(Last of four articles)

Being poor is a relative matter.

A visitor to Marin from a North African or an Indian city might note the lack of beggars, look at the generally well-dressed, well-housed and well-fed looking natives and conclude there is no poverty here.

He would be partially right, because certainly Marin, its populace among the richest in a rich nation, certainly doesn't have the proverty problems that many areas of the world have.

However, try to tell an old person living on $204 welfare a month or a mother with two children surviving on $235 a month that they aren't poor.

Anyone who recently has visited a Marin grocery store, paid a rent bill or bought shoes for his children would agree it's pretty hard to make it on that kind of income.

While welfare provides the kind of minimal income that enables a blind person to enjoy more dignity than an Indian beggar, he can live only a hand-to-mouth existence.

Medicare and Medi-Cal now take most of the terror out of illness-related financial problems for the poor, and food stamps help some. (An elderly couple with a maximum welfare grant, for example, can get $36 worth of food stamps for $25.)

Still, for the poor in Marin, "there is no margin for loss," in the words of Marion Kelley, executive director of the Marin Volunteer Bureau.

The young mother of three children who found herself homeless after a pre-Christmas fire destroyed her apartment and belongings, said she made it through the crisis because "people were so really, really wonderful."

But even lots of publicity and the Christmas spirit didn't solve her most pressing problem and the one that is the greatest dilemma for all of Marins poor — that of housing.

It took the woman a month to find a two-bedroom apartment, for which she pays $200 a month — a sum she can ill afford. She is now on a list for a leased housing unit and hopes to get one soon, but in the meantime, "so many pople want nothing to do with leased housing," she said about Marin's landlords.

Housing, both permanent and temporary, is indeed the biggest problem for the poor of Marin, various agency and church officials agree.

"There are no low-cost motels in Marin," said Major Ray

Nixon, Mrs. Meir Hold Middle East Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir conferred today in the White House oval office on the prospects for peace in the Middle East.

The meeting took place in a ralaxed atmosphere. The two sat in gold armchairs side by side as newsmen were permitted into the office briefly for a picture-taking session.

On sofas flanking them were Nixon's top foreign affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, retiring Israel Ambassador Itzak Rabin and the newly-appointed Israeli ambassador, Simcha Dinitz.

The President told Mrs. Meir: "Let me tell you we are having great problems because everyone wants to come to the (White House) dinner for you tonight. We have made a hundred friends and a thousand enemies because so many people want to come.".

"Everybody wants to visit you ... to see you," the President told her.

Speaking loudly for the benefit of reporters, Nixon said he wanted to congratulate Rabin who was celebrating his 51st birthday. "You can't be that old," remarked Nixon.

"We are going to miss you," Nixon said and told Mrs. Meir that Rabin had been a great ambassador for Israel.

"You are going to make good use of him, aren't you?" asked Nixon.

Mrs. Meir responded, "We'll see how he behaves when he comes home."

Mrs. Meir is the third leading statesman from the Middle East to confer with Nixon since the beginning of his second term some six weeks ago. King Hussein of Jordan and Egypt's Mohammed Hafez Ismail were here recently.

It was understood that during her meeting with Acting Secretary of State Kenneth Rush, State department officials gave Mrs. Meir a report on the views of the Egyptian government which were brought here last week by Ismail, President Anwar Sadat's adviser on national security.

Welfare Reforms Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today abandoned at least temporarily his search for major reform of the nation's welfare system because he said "the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage."

In the fourth of a series of State of the Union messages to Congress, Nixon renewed a pledge to propose a national health insurance plan and to recommend property tax relief for the elderly. But he did not spell out details of either plan.

"I am irrevocably committed as Presidents before me have been and as I know each member of Congress is, to fulfilling the American dream for all Americans," Nixon said.

CALLS OFF PLAN

Nixon's statement on welfare was the first clear indication he has given since taking office for his second term that the administration was calling off his plan for aid to working poor families and a guaranteed annual income for the poor. It has failed twice to gain approval by Congress.“

"Since the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage of an overall structural reform bill in the immediate future, I have directed that vigorous steps be taken to strengthen the management of AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) through administrative measures and legislative proposals," he said.

Although the message did not spell out the administrative reforms, Nixon's proposed budget for fiscal 1974 calls for a tightening of state and local management of welfare aid to eliminate over-payments to recipients and to reduce payments to ineligible persons.

Repeating a theme he has stressed from the time he first took office, Nixon said:

"One thing is certain: the welfare mess cannot be permitted to continue.

"A system which penalizes a person for going to work and rewards a person for going on welfare is totally alien to the American tradition of selfreliance, and self-respect."

INSURANCE SYSTEM

On the subject of health insurance, Nixon said, "The major goal of this administration has been to develop an insurance system which can guarantee adequate financing of health care for every American family."

The 92nd Congress failed to act on a proposal to increase the private health insurance coverage of the nation's workers and to provide more insurance for needy families. Nixon said he would again submit health insurance legislation but provided no details.

He also renewed a pledge to consolidate about 30 education programs providing grants for elementary and high schools into a $2.8 billion aid package of funds for compensatory education.

Affected would be programs for the disadvantaged, education for the handicapped, vocational education, assistance to schools with concentrations of federally employed families and supporting services.

Nixon said about two-thirds of the nation's 20 million persons over 65 own their own homes and that "a disproportionate amount of their fixed income must now be used for property taxes."

CITES BURDENS

"I will submit to the Congress recommendations for alleviating the often crushing burdens which property taxes place upon many older Americans," he said.

He said his proposed dismantling of the federal Office of Economic Opportunity would adhere strictly to statutory procedures and that congressional approval would be sought "whenever necessary."

In a taped radio speech last weekend, Nixon condemned the "ambitious, sometimes almost utopian" social programs enacted under President Lyndon B. Johnson in the 1960s.

"We need to forge a new approach to human services in this country," Nixon said.

More Prisoners To Be Released By Communists

142 More Are Due For Freedom In Hanoi Within Next 48 Hours

SAIGON (UPI) — The Communists announced tonight they planned to release 142 more prisoners of war in Hanoi within the next 48 hours. Because of the lateness of the announcement, the actual release probably will take place Sunday (Saturday night EST), a spokesman said.

Lt. Col. Bui Tin, spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation, said all but six were Americans. They include 106 Americans held in Hanoi, mostly fliers, and 26 U.S. soldiers, four U.S. civilians, two Thais, two West German civilians and two Filipinos held by the Viet Cong.

The last group freed by the Viet Cong was released in a jungle area of 60 miles north of Saigon. There was no explanation why the Viet Cong prisoners had been taken to the North Vietnamese capital, but there had been delays and confusion over the release in South Vietnam.

Tin said a list of the prisoners' names was turned over to U.S. officials in Saigon about 8 p.m. (7 a.m. EST) following a lengthy meeting of the Joint Military Commission's subcommission on captured persons.

(In Washington, the Defense Department said it had received a list of 106 names of POWs to be freed by North Vietnam and immediately started notifying next of kin.

11 Nations Agree On Viet Document

PARIS (UPI) — World powers today initialled an agreement that was written to guarantee a lasting peace in Vietnam, American and Vietnamese spokesmen said.

A crisis provoked when Hanoi halted the release of American prisoners of war had threatened collapse of the conference but the crisis was resolved Wednesday and a compromise agreement was worked out by a subcomittee.

Today, the foreign ministers of the United States, Soviet Union, China, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong and other interested nations arrived at the conference site beaming with good will and quickly initialed the agreement.

The document which is to be signed formally on Friday provides guarantees supported by the United States, Russia and China to prevent any new conflagration erupting in Vietnam.

"Things are good, things are good," said Secretary of State William P. Rogers as he walked smiling broadly into the conference room, ending a boycott of the talks until he straightened out the POW issue with the North Vietnamese.

Canadian Minister of External Affairs Mitchell W. Sharp said "the document was initialled without amendments."

Conference officials said it will be formally signed Friday at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EST) by the foreign ministers of 11 nations and the Viet Cong.

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim did not initial the agreement since that would commit the entire United Nations membership to preserve the peace in Vietnam, but it was initialed and will be signed in his presence.

The session lasted one hour.

Ministers then left the conference room to return to their

Wounded Knee Area Toured By Senators

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — Sens. George McGovern and James Abourezk went to the hamlet of Wounded Knee today, but a federal official warned them against going to a church occupied by 300 Indians who were holding 11 hostages, "for their own personal safety."

Ralph Erickson, a special assistant to the U.S. attorney general, who arrived here today from Washington, held the first official news conference on the incident at Wounded Knee where Indians exchanged gunfire yesterday with federal marshals and shot at autos and low-flying aircraft.

"Our goal is to have a nonviolent settlement. We have set no deadline," Erickson said, adding the Indians' demands would be discussed only after the hostages were released.

The Indians have demanded that the Senate Foreign Relations Committee hold hearings on Indian treaties, that the Senate make a "full scale investigation" of government treatment of Indians and that Abourezk launch an inquiry into "all Sioux reservatons in South Dakota."

McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential candidate, and Abourezk, South Dakota's freshman senator, landed at Ellsworth Air Force Base from Washington and then headed for a helicopter to fly to the Wounded Knee area.

Erickson said that if federal officials were unable to arrange a meeting with members of the American Indian Movement (AIM)," they (the senators) certainly will be included."

However, he said, he advised against them going directly to the small, Roman Catholic church at Wounded Knee "for their own personal safety." He

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — Sens. George McGovern and James Abourezk went to the hamlet of Wounded Knee today, but a federal official warned them against going to a church occupied by 300 Indians who were holding 11 hostages, "for their own personal safety."

Ralph Erickson, a special assistant to the U.S. attorney general, who arrived here today from Washington, held the first official news conference on the incident at Wounded Knee where Indians exchanged gunfire yesterday with federal marshals and shot at autos and low-flying aircraft.

TRAIL BLAZER — For the first time in San Quentin Prison's 121 years of existence, a woman stands guard on the prison walls, shotgun in hand. Wilma Schneider of Sonoma was hired three weeks ago on equal basis with men, with all their rights and pay and all their responsibilities, too. She expects to measure up, but concedes being the first woman isn't easy. (Independent-Photo by Bob Hax)

HER BOSS IS CONFIDENT

San Quentin's First Woman Guard Facing Some Problems

By PAT ANGLE

Wilma Schneider is making history at San Quentin Prison, but sometimes she wishes that pioneering role had been already been performed by someone else.

While no one was paying much attention, the 30-year-old Sonoma woman was hired three weeks ago as the first female correctional officer in the institution's 121-year history.

"I feel something like a monkey in the zoo," the slender brunette said this week during a coffee break on her way to duties on a prison gun rail.

The pressures of being the only woman in the formerly all-male occupation are terrific, according to Mrs. Schneider, recently divorced and the mother of three small children. "I can't help but think that, if I don't succeed I'm going to ruin it for all other women."

Another woman, the wife of a correctional officer, was hired at the same time as Mrs. Schneider, but quit when her husband decided he didn't want her working on the "inside." A third began orientation this week for a guard's post at Folsom Prison.

For the most part, though, the new officer is adjusting to her unique position with noteworthy calm and is determined to do the very best job she can. She brings to the job three years experience as a group supervisor at the California Youth Authority's Los Guilucos School for Girls and Boys in Santa Rosa and so has some idea of what she may encounter in this job.

"I'm convinced that women can be a real asset in here; I think they can help provide a more normal atmosphere for the inmates and even make life a bit more pleasant — if anything can be pleasant here."

Reaction to the feminine invasion of the man's world behind the walls has ranged from shock to apprehension to open resentment.

For example, her presence in the institution's mess hall so unnerved one inmate that he fell down a flight of stairs while taking in the unexpected sight of a woman supervising the steam table.

Some of the problems Mrs. Schneider will encounter on account of her sex stem from certain duties she will be expected to perform if she is truly to do the same work as her male colleagues.

Manning the gun rails and towers, supervising meals, making head counts and searching cells may present no special difficulties for a woman.

But nobody — including prison officials — is quite sure what to do about those more personal jobs, like supervising showers and making body searches of inmates. Most officials think that women officers will eventually have to do these things and are frankly worried about how the inmates will react.

Some have already reacted with dismay. The men's advisory council, a group of elected convicts charged with investigating inmate complaints, is getting together a petition against women officers to send to the courts, whose recent decisions have prohibited even prisons from discriminating on the basis of sex when hiring.

Others, including correctional officers, have sent letters to anyone they could think of, pleading that something be done to remove women from inside tne walls.

"I feel it is an invasion of my

Another Dollar Crisis Develops

BONN (UPI) — A new dollar crisis hit Europe today and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt called for crisis consultations with the United States and European Allies. Speculators dumped more billions of dollars than they did during the February crisis that brought a 10 per cent devaluation of the dollar.

"The Central Bank had to buy $2.7 billion dollars today," Brandt told newsmen as he awaited the arrival of Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath for monetary talks. "That has never happened before anywhere in the world." When the Central Bank withdrew support the dollar fell to a record 2.82 marks to one dollar.

Government spokesman Ruediger Von Wechmar said Brandt had ordered his top financial advisers to get in urgent telephone contact with officials of the United States and European Common Market nations on the new dollar crisis before he dined with Heath at a castle outside Bonn, Von Wechmar said.

Today's run against the dollar forced the dollar down in Brussels, Paris, London, Amsterdam, Stockholm, Rome, Copenhagen and Tokyo. Gold rose in price.

Men in the middle of the action on Europe's money marts said the primary incentive of the dollar-sellers seemed to be the conviction that European nations would soon stop supporting the dollar and "float" their currencies against it.

The dollar story was similar across Europe and in Japan. The dollar dropped to its floor price, bringing Central Banks in to emergency purchases. In London, the dollar dropped to its lowest level against sterling since the British floated the pound last June.

Gold rose in London and Frankfurt to its highest levels of the week, reaching $88 an ounce in London and $84.51 in Frankfurt. Bullion prices lowered in Zurich, however.

Marin Must Face Welfare Challenges

By MARY LEYDECKER
(Last of four articles)

Being poor is a relative matter.

A visitor to Marin from a North African or an Indian city might note the lack of beggars, look at the generally well-dressed, well-housed and well-fed looking natives and conclude there is no poverty here.

He would be partially right, because certainly Marin, its populace among the richest in a rich nation, certainly doesn't have the proverty problems that many areas of the world have.

However, try to tell an old person living on $204 welfare a month or a mother with two children surviving on $235 a month that they aren't poor.

Anyone who recently has visited a Marin grocery store, paid a rent bill or bought shoes for his children would agree it's pretty hard to make it on that kind of income.

While welfare provides the kind of minimal income that enables a blind person to enjoy more dignity than an Indian beggar, he can live only a hand-to-mouth existence.

Medicare and Medi-Cal now take most of the terror out of illness-related financial problems for the poor, and food stamps help some. (An elderly couple with a maximum welfare grant, for example, can get $36 worth of food stamps for $25.)

Still, for the poor in Marin, "there is no margin for loss," in the words of Marion Kelley, executive director of the Marin Volunteer Bureau.

The young mother of three children who found herself homeless after a pre-Christmas fire destroyed her apartment and belongings, said she made it through the crisis because "people were so really, really wonderful."

But even lots of publicity and the Christmas spirit didn't solve her most pressing problem and the one that is the greatest dilemma for all of Marins poor — that of housing.

It took the woman a month to find a two-bedroom apartment, for which she pays $200 a month — a sum she can ill afford. She is now on a list for a leased housing unit and hopes to get one soon, but in the meantime, "so many pople want nothing to do with leased housing," she said about Marin's landlords.

Housing, both permanent and temporary, is indeed the biggest problem for the poor of Marin, various agency and church officials agree.

"There are no low-cost motels in Marin," said Major Ray

Nixon, Mrs. Meir Hold Middle East Conference

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon and Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir conferred today in the White House oval office on the prospects for peace in the Middle East.

The meeting took place in a ralaxed atmosphere. The two sat in gold armchairs side by side as newsmen were permitted into the office briefly for a picture-taking session.

On sofas flanking them were Nixon's top foreign affairs adviser, Henry A. Kissinger, retiring Israel Ambassador Itzak Rabin and the newly-appointed Israeli ambassador, Simcha Dinitz.

The President told Mrs. Meir: "Let me tell you we are having great problems because everyone wants to come to the (White House) dinner for you tonight. We have made a hundred friends and a thousand enemies because so many people want to come.".

"Everybody wants to visit you ... to see you," the President told her.

Speaking loudly for the benefit of reporters, Nixon said he wanted to congratulate Rabin who was celebrating his 51st birthday. "You can't be that old," remarked Nixon.

"We are going to miss you," Nixon said and told Mrs. Meir that Rabin had been a great ambassador for Israel.

"You are going to make good use of him, aren't you?" asked Nixon.

Mrs. Meir responded, "We'll see how he behaves when he comes home."

Mrs. Meir is the third leading statesman from the Middle East to confer with Nixon since the beginning of his second term some six weeks ago. King Hussein of Jordan and Egypt's Mohammed Hafez Ismail were here recently.

It was understood that during her meeting with Acting Secretary of State Kenneth Rush, State department officials gave Mrs. Meir a report on the views of the Egyptian government which were brought here last week by Ismail, President Anwar Sadat's adviser on national security.

Welfare Reforms Delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today abandoned at least temporarily his search for major reform of the nation's welfare system because he said "the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage."

In the fourth of a series of State of the Union messages to Congress, Nixon renewed a pledge to propose a national health insurance plan and to recommend property tax relief for the elderly. But he did not spell out details of either plan.

"I am irrevocably committed as Presidents before me have been and as I know each member of Congress is, to fulfilling the American dream for all Americans," Nixon said.

CALLS OFF PLAN

Nixon's statement on welfare was the first clear indication he has given since taking office for his second term that the administration was calling off his plan for aid to working poor families and a guaranteed annual income for the poor. It has failed twice to gain approval by Congress."

"Since the legislative outlook seems to preclude passage of an overall structural reform bill in the immediate future, I have directed that vigorous steps be taken to strengthen the management of AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) through administrative measures and legislative proposals," he said.

Although the message did not spell out the administrative reforms, Nixon's proposed budget for fiscal 1974 calls for a tightening of state and local management of welfare aid to eliminate over-payments to recipients and to reduce payments to ineligible persons.

Repeating a theme he has stressed from the time he first took office, Nixon said:

"One thing is certain: the welfare mess cannot be permitted to continue.

"A system which penalizes a person for going to work and rewards a person for going on welfare is totally alien to the American tradition of selfreliance, and self-respect."

INSURANCE SYSTEM

On the subject of health insurance, Nixon said, "The major goal of this administration has been to develop an insurance system which can guarantee adequate financing of health care for every American family."

The 92nd Congress failed to act on a proposal to increase the private health insurance coverage of the nation's workers and to provide more insurance for needy families. Nixon said he would again submit health insurance legislation but provided no details.

He also renewed a pledge to consolidate about 30 education programs providing grants for elementary and high schools into a $2.8 billion aid package of funds for compensatory education.

Affected would be programs for the disadvantaged, education for the handicapped, vocational education, assistance to schools with concentrations of federally employed families and supporting services.

Nixon said about two-thirds of the nation's 20 million persons over 65 own their own homes and that "a disproportionate amount of their fixed income must now be used for property taxes."

CITES BURDENS

"I will submit to the Congress recommendations for alleviating the often crushing burdens which property taxes place upon many older Americans," he said.

He said his proposed dismantling of the federal Office of Economic Opportunity would adhere strictly to statutory procedures and that congressional approval would be sought "whenever necessary."

In a taped radio speech last weekend, Nixon condemned the "ambitious, sometimes almost utopian" social programs enacted under President Lyndon B. Johnson in the 1960s.

"We need to forge a new approach to human services in this country," Nixon said.

More Prisoners To Be Released By Communists

142 More Are Due For Freedom In Hanoi Within Next 48 Hours

SAIGON (UPI) — The Communists announced tonight they planned to release 142 more prisoners of war in Hanoi within the next 48 hours. Because of the lateness of the announcement, the actual release probably will take place Sunday (Saturday night EST), a spokesman said.

Lt. Col. Bui Tin, spokesman for the North Vietnamese delegation, said all but six were Americans. They include 106 Americans held in Hanoi, mostly fliers, and 26 U.S. soldiers, four U.S. civilians, two Thais, two West German civilians and two Filipinos held by the Viet Cong.

The last group freed by the Viet Cong was released in a jungle area of 60 miles north of Saigon. There was no explanation why the Viet Cong prisoners had been taken to the North Vietnamese capital, but there had been delays and confusion over the release in South Vietnam.

Tin said a list of the prisoners' names was turned over to U.S. officials in Saigon about 8 p.m. (7 a.m. EST) following a lengthy meeting of the Joint Military Commission's subcommission on captured persons.

(In Washington, the Defense Department said it had received a list of 106 names of POWs to be freed by North Vietnam and immediately started notifying next of kin.

(Officials said they had not yet received a list of prisoners to be released by the Viet Cong.)

(The Pentagon said it would start making public the names

11 Nations Agree On Viet Document

PARIS (UPI) — World powers today initialled an agreement that was written to guarantee a lasting peace in Vietnam, American and Vietnamese spokesmen said.

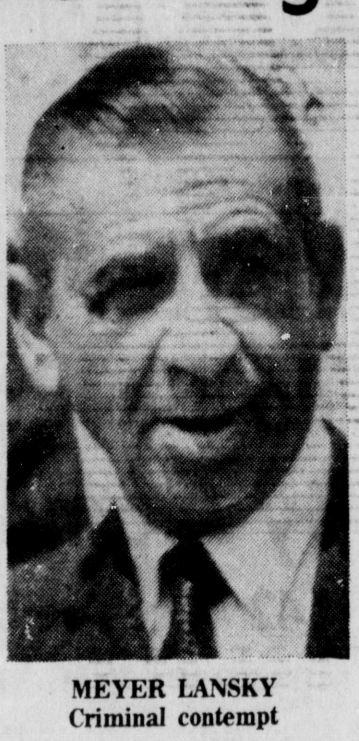
Jury Convicts Underworld King



MEYER LANSKY
Criminal contempt

MIAMI (UPI) — The Justice Department has a special squad to keep tabs on Meyer Lansky, called "Strike Force 18." But until Wednesday neither it nor any other lawmen had won a federal criminal conviction against the man some called the chief architect of organized crime in America.

That all changed Wednesday when after 4 hours and 9 minutes of deliberation a jury of eight women and four men—whom Judge James Lawrence King said served "above and beyond" normal jury requirements—found Lansky guilty as charged of "serious" criminal contempt of a federal grand jury.

But crime fighters noted that Lansky, the 70-year-old reputed "banker" of underworld millions, had still kept another record intact: Never being convicted of a crime related to organized crime financing.

"It was a red letter day for law enforcement—a blow for liberty," said Sheriff Ed Stack of neighboring Broward County where Lansky used to reside. But he added, "Don't expect him to to to jail in the very near future.

Stack also echoed the voices of several federal agents in private talks in recent months since Lansky's Nov. 7, 1972, arrest when he said, "Lansky's power with organized crime now is virtually nil. He's an anachronism."

Prosecutor Dougald McMillan's calm trial demeanor never changed even after he had won his case and Lansky rose from his seat, walked briskly to McMillan and shook his hand. Seconds later the Justice Department trial attorney said:

"I'm satisfied. I don't think the verdict means a lot for me because we have more work to do."

McMillan's assistant, Gary Betz, said his only knowledge of a previous Lansky conviction was from newspaper files which showed that in 1918 a teen-aged Jewish immigrant from Russia was fined $2 for disorderly conduct in New York. that teenager was born Meyer Suchowlansky, but since his arrival in 1911 known as Meyer Lansky.

What McMillan and the government now are working on is the March 19 trial of Lansky and his associate Dino Cellini on charges of tax evasion from casino income in Las Vegas and overseas.

Defense attorney E. David Rosen asked for and received a two-week delay in sentencing so he could prepare a motion for acquittal. A court source said the acquittal was based on general "insufficient evidence." If the motion is denied a date would then be set for sentencing.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Mazda Passes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government test results released today showed the Japanese-built Mazda rotary engine car meets the strict 1975 auto emission standards.

The Environmental Protection Agency said a 50,000-mile test of the small car showed hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions from the rotary engines averaged about "one-half of the allowable 1975 levels." Nitrogen oxide emissions were "one-third lower."

Strikes Spread

LONDON (UPI) — A nationwide "strike-a-day" wave of walkouts spread today to automobile plants and hospitals with health officials warning that hospitals can guarantee treatment over the next 72 hours only in case of emergency.

The hospital strike involves 220,000 non-medical employes who, like thousands of other workers taking part in a week of agitation, are protesting the pay and price policies of Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Soldier Killed

BELFAST (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army said today its gunmen killed a British soldier yesterday to avenge the death earlier of a 13-year-old boy authorities called a suspected sniper.

Lance Cpl. Alan Kennington fell dead under a hail of sniper fire while he was on a so-called "lollipop patrol" guarding Roman Catholic children in Belfast.

Racial Outbreak

HONOLULU (UPI) — A racial melee erupted yesterday at Fort Shafter, headquarters of the United States Army in the Pacific. At least three persons were injured, and one was hospitalized.

An Army spokesman said a series of "confrontations" between black and white soldiers had "subsided" but conceded that although the situation was under control, violence "could break out again."

The Army said the incident was apparently prompted by an earlier fight between a white non-commissioned officer and a black soldier in which the black "got beaten."

Bormann Skeleton

BERLIN (UPI) — Authorities said yesterday they have identified "beyond the shadow of a doubt" a skeleton dug out of the World War II rubble of Berlin as that of Adolf Hitler's missing deputy, Martin Bormann.

"The hunt for Bormann is over" said Frankfurt prosecutor Wilhelm Metzner, who led the Bormann investigation.

"There is no doubt it is Bormann," said Dr. Heinz Spengler, director of the West Berlin Institute for Forensic Medicine.

Metzner acknowledged that Simon Wiesenthal, head of the Jewish Documentation Center in Vienna, was not convinced the skeleton was that of Bormann and that Wiesenthal was continuing his search for Bormann. Wiesenthal has tracked down scores of Nazis, including Adolf Eichmann, architect of the Nazi extermination policy that killed six million Jews.

Curran Halted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, has been blocked, at least until next Tuesday, from collecting an estimated $1 million in union pension and retirement benefits.

Manhattan Federal Court Judge Robert Ward signed a temporary restraining order yesterday on a suit brought by three dissident NMU members stopping Curran from collecting the money before a hearing Tuesday to determine whether he had earned it.

Space Training

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In hopes of setting space endurance records, America's Skylab astronauts are being trained to pull teeth and stitch wounds to avoid the possibility of having their flights cut short by health problems, according to veteran astronaut Charles "Pete" Conrad.

Skylab will be an orbiting science laboratory the size of a five-room house encased in the shell of a third stage Saturn IV-B rocket and a three-man command module similar to the Apollo spacecraft.

The unmanned lab is to be launched May 14.

NEW DELHI (AP) — Triloki Nath Kaul has been named by the Indian government as its new ambassador to the United States.

Plane Crash Kills Two Red Leaders

WARSAW (UPI) — A Polish military plane carrying the interior ministers of Poland and Czechoslovakia crashed near the East German border Wednesday night, killing them and everyone else on board, officials said today.

A spokesman for Goleniow airport at the city of Szczecin said the plane, a twin-engine Soviet-built Anatov 24 crashed about four miles from the airfield while trying to land.

The official news agency PAP said Wieslaw Ociepka, 51, the Polish interior minister, and Rado Kraske, his Czechoslovak counterpart, were killed.

"Persons accompanying them and the crew also died," the agency said. But it did not say how many people were aboard when the plane went down.

Another Czech official, Michal Kadzej, chairman of state administration, also died in the crash, PAP said.

The spokesman at Szczecin airport gave no other details of the crash.

"The plane was an Anatov 24 of the Polish army and it crashed...while trying to land," he said.

Until a brief PAP statement today, there had been no indication in the press, radio or television that a Czech delegation was visiting Poland or planned to visit.

Szczecin is 375 miles from Warsaw and was the scene in December, 1970, of food riots by workers. The riots there and elsewhere brought the downfall of former Communist party leader Vladyslav Gomulka.

Gomulka's successor and the present party leader, Edward Gierek, appointed Ociepka to the interior ministry post in December, 1971.

Vietnam Peace Mission Reports Truce Helicopters Fired Upon

SAIGON (UPI) — Vietnam peace supervisors said today four of the specially marked and unarmed U.S. helicopters used by truce teams have been hit by gunfire over the past five days with one American wounded in the attacks.

The International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) protested the attacks to the four-party Joint Military Commission and said gunfire missed a fifth helicopter in another incident.

The Commission did not say who fired on the helicopters.

Meanwhile, fighting increased across South Vietnam and Cambodia, where lulls in the post-Vietnam truce were reported 24 hours earlier, with more U.S. air strikes carried out in Cambodia.

Military spokesmen reported relative quiet in Laos.

The ICCS said all of the U.S. helicopters hit by gunfire were unarmed and bore ICCS white crosses.

The American pilot was wounded when his helicopter was hit Wednesday near Da Nang. Officials did not identify him or disclose the extent of his wounds.

In the fifth incident, the ICCS said a helicopter near My Tho inthe Mekong Delta, 34 miles from Saigon, came under fire by what witnesses said apparently was a Soviet-made Strella heat-seeking missile last Saturday. It missed.

The Saigon command reported 134 Communist truce violations in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. It was 34 more than the previous day.

Heavy fighting was reported in the Central Highlands for the second straight day with the government reporting 53 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed in battles in Binh Dinh and Pleiku provinces at a cost of four government troops killed.

In a related cease-fire allegation, American and South Vietnamese delegates to the Joint Military Commission said Communists had brought in surface-to-air missiles after the Jan. 28 cease-fire and installed them around the former U.S. Marine fortress at Khe Sanh.

Special Tax Treatment For Bigshots Is Bared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The IRS' Washington headquarters put out a directive in 1970 telling agents it wanted to be kept informed when important people —presidential appointees governors, senators or well known figures — ran afoul of the tax laws.

The existence of the directive outlining special procedures for "sensitive cases" was made known Tuesday at a Senate Appropriations subcommittee hearing into IRS operations.

Subcommittee chairman Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., summoned IRS Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters and the three previous occupants of that office to today's session to give the IRS's side of the story.

During two days of hearings this week, critics have portrayed the revenue service as a bully which collects assessments from little taxpayers by terrorizing them while ordaining special treatment for the tax troubles of VIP's.

The directive instructs revenue agents to use a special form—Form 4341 —to report to Washington any significant action taken in a "sensitive case."

The term includes tax disputes involving present or recent presidential appointees, senators or congressmen, governors, important state legislators, mayors, prominent political party leaders, members of the families or close personal friends of nationally or internationally known businessmen, racketeers, union officials, religious figures, entertainers, sports figures and national mass media, national organizations or clubs "with a large influential membership."

WINE NOTES #15

One aspect of the wine business which I find very disturbing is the very high prices restauranteurs charge for their wines. My wife and I recently spent a week skiing in Vail, Colorado and we tried a new restaurant almost every night. The quality of the food ranged from indifferent to gourmet and wine lists ran about the same. However, the prices on the wine lists were uniformly high with one noteable exception: the best restaurant in our judgement, the Lion's Den, also had the best wine list at the most reasonable prices. The prices were still too high but since the quality of the food was superior one didn't mind quite so much. We dined in one restaurant where a liter of Inglenook Navelle Burgundy cost $6.50! That friends, represents a mark-up of rather high proportions because the wholesale cost of that wine in California is $1.93 per magnum. I don't believe the cost is much higher in Colorado.

Why do we consumers allow ourselves to be abused in this way? The base level of profit in California wines is very attractive and ought to be enough for a restauranteur. A dollar or so more than the retail price might be acceptable. But I have seen many wine lists where the prices are at least quadruple the wholesale cost of the wine. We should refuse to drink wine under such circumstances. I'm convinced that a good chef in a well run restuarant charging retail prices for its wine would be an unbeatable combination, if the public knew such a place existed.

In an effort to change our image from the neighborhood liquor store to a reputable wine and spirits shop we are beginning remodeling programs in several of our stores. Our store in Montecito will be completely remodeled before June. Our Marinwood store has new shelving and display fixtures on the way. Our Northgate store will be doubled in size and entirely remodeled as soon as additional space becomes available which we trust will be within this year. We intend to expand the size of our store on Paradise Drive. Naturally these changes will be meaningless if we cannot provide an extensive and balanced inventory of California and imported wines. Well, we can and are doing this. The reputation of our California wine selection is well known. If you have not seen the selection of imports that our wine man Alan Russell is collecting you will be in for an enjoyable surprise.

Of course Alan has not completed the import section but he is working vigorously to develop an exemplary list. We have had two people in France seeking wines for us and Alan will spend most of April in Europe on a scouting sojourn.

Complementing our wine selection is a staff of enthusiastic, wine-oriented and wine knowledgeable store managers and staff, all of whom are anxious to advise you of our most recent discoveries. I am very proud of the way in which our men are responding to our responsibility to the Marin County wine-bibber. The addition of Dick Hayden to our staff is a plus as well, and we are proud to welcome him.

I suppose the one thing that bothers me most about our operation is our trade name. It absolutely must be changed and we are seeking help. The law prohibits us from giving away anything except thank yous but you will certainly receive a lot of those if you can help us out. If you think you have an appropriate name for a wine and spirits shop and you are willing to give it up, any Bourbon Shop employee will gladly accept your written suggestion. You will receive accolades and encomniums if the name you submit is chosen. We are very serious about this and will appreciate any help we can get.

Jury Convicts Underworld King

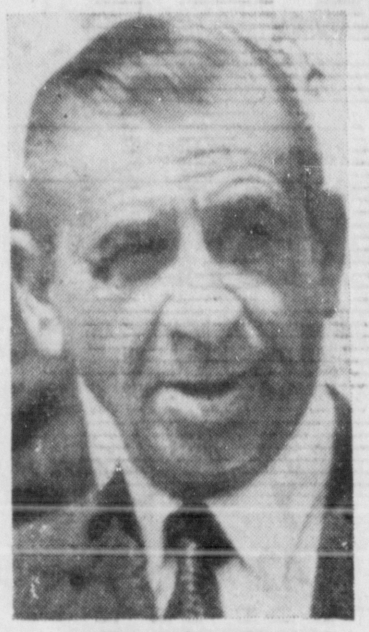
MIAMI (UPI) — The Justice Department has a special squad to keep tabs on Meyer Lansky, called "Strike Force 18." But until Wednesday neither it nor any other lawmen had won a federal criminal conviction against the man some called the chief architect of organized crime in America.

That all changed Wednesday when after 4 hours and 9 minutes of deliberation a jury of eight women and four men—whom Judge James Lawrence King said served "above and beyond" normal jury requirements—found Lansky guilty as charged of "serious" criminal contempt of a federal grand jury.

But crime fighters noted that Lansky, the 70-year-old reputed "banker" of underworld millions, had still kept another record intact: Never being convicted of a crime related to organized crime financing.

"It was a red letter day for law enforcement—a blow for liberty," said Sheriff Ed Stack of neighboring Broward County where Lansky used to reside. But he added, "Don't expect him to to to jail in the very near future.

Stack also echoed the voices of several federal agents in private talks in recent months since Lansky's Nov. 7, 1972, arrest when he said, "Lansky's power with organized crime now is virtually nil. He's an anachronism."



MEYER LANSKY
Criminal contempt

Prosecutor Dougald McMillan's calm trial demeanor never changed even after he had won his case and Lansky rose from his seat, walked briskly to McMillan and shook his hand. Seconds later the Justice Department trial attorney said:

"I'm satisfied. I don't think the verdict means a lot for me because we have more work to do."

McMillan's assistant, Gary Betz, said his only knowledge of a previous Lansky conviction was from newspaper files which showed that in 1918 a teen-aged Jewish immigrant from Russia was fined $2 for disorderly conduct in New York. that teenager was born Meyer Suchowlansky, but since his arrival in 1911 known as Meyer Lansky.

What McMillan and the government now are working on is the March 19 trial of Lansky and his associate Dino Cellini on charges of tax evasion from casino income in Las Vegas and overseas.

Defense attorney E. David Rosen asked for and received a two-week delay in sentencing so he could prepare a motion for acquittal. A court source said the acquittal was based on general "insufficient evidence." If the motion is denied a date would then be set for sentencing.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Mazda Passes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government test results released today showed the Japanese-built Mazda rotary engine car meets the strict 1975 auto emission standards.

The Environmental Protection Agency said a 50,000-mile test of the small car showed hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions from the rotary engines averaged about "one-half of the allowable 1975 levels." Nitrogen oxide emissions were "one-third lower."

Strikes Spread

LONDON (UPI) — A nationwide "strike-a-day" wave of walkouts spread today to automobile plants and hospitals with health officials warning that hospitals can guarantee treatment over the next 72 hours only in case of emergency.

The hospital strike involves 220,000 non-medical employes who, like thousands of other workers taking part in a week of agitation, are protesting the pay and price policies of Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Soldier Killed

BELFAST (UPI) — The Irish Republican Army said today its gunmen killed a British soldier yesterday to avenge the death earlier of a 13-year-old boy authorities called a suspected sniper.

Lance Cpl. Alan Kennington fell dead under a hail of sniper fire while he was on a so-called "lollipop patrol" guarding Roman Catholic children in Belfast.

Racial Outbreak

HONOLULU (UPI) — A racial melee erupted yesterday at Fort Shafter, headquarters of the United States Army in the Pacific. At least three persons were injured, and one was hospitalized.

An Army spokesman said a series of "confrontations" between black and white soldiers had "subsided" but conceded that although the situation was under control, violence "could break out again."

The Army said the incident was apparently prompted by an earlier fight between a white non-commissioned officer and a black soldier in which the black "got beaten."

Bormann Skeleton

BERLIN (UPI) — Authorities said yesterday they have identified "beyond the shadow of a doubt" a skeleton dug out of the World War II rubble of Berlin as that of Adolf Hitler's missing deputy, Martin Bormann.

"The hunt for Bormann is over" said Frankfurt prosecutor Wilhelm Metzner, who led the Bormann investigation.

"There is no doubt it is Bormann," said Dr. Heinz Spengler, director of the West Berlin Institute for Forensic Medicine.

Metzner acknowledged that Simon Wiesenthal, head of the Jewish Documentation Center in Vienna, was not convinced the skeleton was that of Bormann and that Wiesenthal was continuing his search for Bormann. Wiesenthal has tracked down scores of Nazis, including Adolf Eichmann, architect of the Nazi extermination policy that killed six million Jews.

Curran Halted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, has been blocked, at least until next Tuesday, from collecting an estimated $1 million in union pension and retirement benefits.

Manhattan Federal Court Judge Robert Ward signed a temporary restraining order yesterday on a suit brought by three dissident NMU members stopping Curran from collecting the money before a hearing Tuesday to determine whether he had earned it.

Space Training

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In hopes of setting space endurance records, America's Skylab astronauts are being trained to pull teeth and stitch wounds to avoid the possibility of having their flights cut short by health problems, according to veteran astronaut Charles "Pete" Conrad.

Skylab will be an orbiting science laboratory the size of a five-room house encased in the shell of a third stage Saturn IV-B rocket and a three-man command module similar to the Apollo spacecraft.

The unmanned lab is to be launched May 14.

NEW DELHI (AP) — Triloki Nath Kaul has been named by the Indian government as its new ambassador to the United States.

Plane Crash Kills Two Red Leaders

WARSAW (UPI) — A Polish military plane carrying the interior ministers of Poland and Czechoslovakia crashed near the East German border Wednesday night, killing them and everyone else on board, officials said today.

A spokesman for Goleniow airport at the city of Szczecin said the plane, a twin-engine Soviet-built Anatov 24 crashed about four miles from the airfield while trying to land.

The official news agency PAP said Wieslaw Ociepka, 51, the Polish interior minister, and Rado Kraske, his Czechoslovak counterpart, were killed.

"Persons accompanying them and the crew also died," the agency said. But it did not say how many people were aboard when the plane went down.

Another Czech official, Michal Kadzej, chairman of state administration, also died in the crash, PAP said.

The spokesman at Szczecin airport gave no other details of the crash.

"The plane was an Anatov 24 of the Polish army and it crashed...while trying to land," he said.

Until a brief PAP statement today, there had been no indication in the press, radio or television that a Czech delegation was visiting Poland or planned to visit.

Szczecin is 375 miles from Warsaw and was the scene in December, 1970, of food riots by workers. The riots there and elsewhere brought the downfall of former Communist party leader Vladyslav Gomulka.

Gomulka's successor and the present party leader, Edward Gierek, appointed Ociepka to the interior ministry post in December, 1971.

Vietnam Peace Mission Reports Truce Helicopters Fired Upon

SAIGON (UPI) — Vietnam peace supervisors said today four of the specially marked and unarmed U.S. helicopters used by truce teams have been hit by gunfire over the past five days with one American wounded in the attacks.

The International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) protested the attacks to the four-party Joint Military Commission and said gunfire missed a fifth helicopter in another incident.

The Commission did not say who fired on the helicopters.

Meanwhile, fighting increased across South Vietnam and Cambodia, where lulls in the post-Vietnam truce were reported 24 hours earlier, with more U.S. air strikes carried out in Cambodia.

Military spokesmen reported relative quiet in Laos.

The ICCS said all of the U.S. helicopters hit by gunfire were unarmed and bore ICCS white crosses.

The American pilot was wounded when his helicopter was hit Wednesday near Da Nang. Officials did not identify him or disclose the extent of his wounds.

In the fifth incident, the ICCS said a helicopter near My Tho inthe Mekong Delta, 34 miles from Saigon, came under fire by what witnesses said apparently was a Soviet-made Strella heat-seeking missile last Saturday. It missed.

The Saigon command reported 134 Communist truce violations in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. today. It was 34 more than the previous day.

Heavy fighting was reported in the Central Highlands for the second straight day with the government reporting 53 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed in battles in Binh Dinh and Pleiku provinces at a cost of four government troops killed.

In a related cease-fire allegation, American and South Vietnamese delegates to the Joint Military Commission said Communists had brought in surface-to-air missiles after the Jan. 28 cease-fire and installed them around the former U.S. Marine fortress at Khe Sanh.

Special Tax Treatment For Bigshots Is Bared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The IRS' Washington headquarters put out a directive in 1970 telling agents it wanted to be kept informed when important people —presidential appointees governors, senators or well known figures — ran afoul of the tax laws.

The existence of the directive outlining special procedures for "sensitive cases" was made known Tuesday at a Senate Appropriations subcommittee hearing into IRS operations.

Subcommittee chairman Joseph M. Montoya, D-N.M., summoned IRS Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters and the three previous occupants of that office to today's session to give the IRS's side of the story.

During two days of hearings this week, critics have portrayed the revenue service as a bully which collects assessments from little taxpayers by terrorizing them while ordaining special treatment for the tax troubles of VIP's.

The directive instructs revenue agents to use a special form—Form 4341 —to report to Washington any significant action taken in a "sensitive case."

The term includes tax disputes involving present or recent presidential appointees, senators or congressmen, governors, important state legislators, mayors, prominent political party leaders, members of the families or close personal friends of nationally or internationally known businessmen, racketeers, union officials, religious figures, entertainers, sports figures and national mass media, national organizations or clubs "with a large influential membership."

However, the prices on the wine lists were uniformly high with one noteable exception: the best restaurant in our judgement, the Lion's Den, also had the best wine list at the most reasonable prices. The prices were still too high but since the quality of the food was superior one didn't mind quite so much. We dined in one restaurant where a liter of Inglenook Navelle Burgundy cost $6.50! That friends, represents a mark-up of rather high proportions because the wholesale cost of that wine in California is $1.93 per magnum. I don't believe the cost is much higher in Colorado.

Why do we consumers allow ourselves to be abused in this way? The base level of profit in California wines is very attractive and ought to be enough for a restauranteur. A dollar or so more than the retail price might be acceptable. But I have seen many wine lists where the prices are at least quadruple the wholesale cost of the wine. We should refuse to drink wine under such circumstances. I'm convinced that a good chef in a well run restuarant charging retail prices for its wine would be an unbeatable combination, if the public knew such a place existed.

In an effort to change our image from the neighborhood liquor store to a reputable wine and spirits shop we are beginning remodeling programs in several of our stores. Our store in Montecito will be completely remodeled before June. Our Marinwood store has new shelving and display fixtures on the way. Our Northgate store will be doubled in size and entirely remodeled as soon as additional space becomes available which we trust will be within this year. We intend to expand the size of our store on Paradise Drive. Naturally these changes will be meaningless if we cannot provide an extensive and balanced inventory of California and imported wines. Well, we can and are doing this. The reputation of our California wine selection is well known. If you have not seen the selection of imports that our wine man Alan Russell is collecting you will be in for an enjoyable surprise.

Of course Alan has not completed the import section but he is working vigorously to develop an exemplary list. We have had two people in France seeking wines for us and Alan will spend most of April in Europe on a scouting sojourn.

Complementing our wine selection is a staff of enthusiastic, wine-oriented and wine knowledgeable store managers and staff, all of whom are anxious to advise you of our most recent discoveries. I am very proud of the way in which our men are responding to our responsibility to the Marin County wine-bibber. The addition of Dick Hayden to our staff is a plus as well, and we are proud to welcome him.

I suppose the one thing that bothers me most about our operation is our trade name. It absolutely must be changed and we are seeking help. The law prohibits us from giving away anything except thank yous but you will certainly receive a lot of those if you can help us out. If you think you have an appropriate name for a wine and spirits shop and you are willing to give it up, any Bourbon Shop employee will gladly accept your written suggestion. You will receive accolades and encomniums if the name you submit is chosen. We are very serious about this and will appreciate any help we can get.

Plea Made In Service Clubs Case

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The sentence William O. Wooldridge gets for bribery will depend on how much he tells a Senate subcommittee about military corruption, a federal judge said yesterday.

Wooldridge, former sergeant major of the Army, the highest enlisted rank in the service, pleaded guilty to the charges Wednesday after one and a half days of plea bargaining. He was accused of being part of a "Khaki Cosa Nostra" that made thousands of dollars from servicemen's clubs overseas through bribery, kickbacks, embezzlement, monoplies and other illegal stratagems.

U.S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson said he would impose sentence April 30. The severity of the sentence, he made clear, will depend on Wooldridge's testifying "fully, openly and honestly" before the permanent investigations subcommittee on the Senate Committee on Government Operations.

When he appeared before the subcommittee in 1969, at the hearings that led to criminal charges in the scandal, Wooldridge invoked the Fifth Amendment 39 times.

Wooldridge, Theodore Bass and William Higdon were among several persons indicted two years ago. All three pleaded guilty to some of the complaints Wednesday.

Bass, 38, of Pensacola, Fla., faces a possible maximum sentence of two years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine for paying a $1,900 bribe to Sgt. John Nelson, the secretary-custodian of a servicemen's club.

Higdon, 43, of Huntsville, Ala., faces a possible five years imprisonment and a fine of $10,000 for conspiring with Bass and others to defraud the United States in the operation of the servicemen's clubs.

Wooldridge, 50, of Junction City, Kan., held the top sergeant's rank from July 1966, to August 1968. He faces a possible sentence of four years and fines totalling $20,000 on two felony counts of accepting bribes.

Over 30 Years Experience In Nutrition

A GRAVE AND URGENT MATTER

A MAJOR CRISIS faces consumers who want to continue selecting the nutritional supplements they prefer and need. The remarkable progress made recently in updating nutrition standards is seriously threatened. How? By a Food and Drug Administration order banning 80% of all supplements now on the market. Any violation would be subject to severe civil and/or criminal prosecution. And believe it or not, the ban puts the same restrictions on vitamins and minerals as on prescription drugs!

What to do? Only this: Congress can pass logical reasonable legislation requiring that supplements be regulated separately from prescription drugs. HOUSE RESOLUTION 643 amends the FDA act to do just that. Only a flood of letters to Congressmen, requesting immediate, full support of H.R. 643 can block enforcement of the ban. But the deadline is March 20th, 1973. (Our Marin Congressman: William S. Mailliard, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515)

Woman Guard Facing Problems At Prison

privacy to have a woman watching me while I'm taking a shower," said Edward Jones, 40, who is serving a sentence for manslaughter. "It'll make me feel small and uncomfortable and I just don't like it."

Jones's sentiments are apparently shared by many convicts. During her first week at work, fellow correctional officers — uncertain about what standard operating procedures are in a very nonstandard situation — asked Mrs. Schneider to leave the shower area when the men complained.

"I can appreciate the men's feelings and sympathize with them: I know how I would feel in their place," Mrs. Schneider said candidly.

"All I can do is handle it the same way a doctor handles an examination; I'm not going to gawk at them. It will take time, but eventually I hope they'll feel more comfortable with me around."

William Merkle, captain of the guards, agrees the nudity problem "is going to be one of the toughest things she has to handle.

"I don't think the courts were thinking of all these things when they acted. They may have to take another look at the situation," he said. "Some of the men are very modest and the fact the court says it's okay for women to be in here isn't going to make any difference to them."

Perhaps the most significant question raised by the prospect of females in the rough life of prison is that of safety.

There is little doubt that her male counterparts at San Quentin are wondering how Wilma Schneider will be able to perform in dangerous, explosive situations.

They are also asking themselves whether setting a woman admidst thousands of men who have been deprived of feminine companionship for years won't lead to violence and assaults on the woman herself.

Will an officer feel obligated to protect a female colleague and so expose himself to additional danger, and possibly death, the men want to know.

"It's impossible to know what will happen," said Captain Merkle.

"It's like putting someone who's starving in front of a locked delicatessen; there's bound to be trouble," said Ben Rasnick, 52, serving time for murder. "I know it will make me nervous if there is a female in the block. "I'll wonder if someone's going to attack her and who will get shot as a result."

"If a woman gets ripped off and torn up, the rest of the inmates are afraid it will reflect badly on them, on all convicts," said Lt. William H. Faust, a 15-year-veteran at San Quentin.

Georgia Gruver, the 26-year-old wife of a guard at San Quentin, who worked briefly beside Mrs. Schneider, is on the side of the skeptics.

She contends that "a men's prison is not the place for a woman. I don't think a woman is capable of handling fights that break out, because it becomes a question of physical strength," she said. "If something happens, I wouldn't want a woman backing my husband, because I think she'd be more of a hindrance that a help."

"I wish I knew the answer to all the men's concerns about safety," but I don't," Mrs. Schneider said thoughtfully, adding that she wished she could be sure one way or the other about being a danger to them.

She takes hope from conversations with her father-in-law who worked at Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary in the 1930s. "It's hard to believe, but they had women correctional officers way back then. I talked to him about it and he told me it worked out okay, that the inmates were very protective toward the ladies."

The personal dangers of working at San Quentin don't terrify her, thanks to her experiences at Los Guilucos. "I lived with the possibility I'd be clobbered or hurt for three years. I just hope if something happens, I'll be able to deal with it. I'm certainly not going to be running around watching the inmates fearfully."

She has no complaints about her treatment by fellow officers or the inmates she has had contact with during her three weeks at the prison.

(While she was talking, one officer smilingly presented her with a bag of homemade cookies, a gift from his wife.)

A trio of inmates who saw her and Mrs. Gruber walking across the yard one day also had encouraging words. "Hang in there, girls, we're all for you," they called.

She thinks some of her co-workers seem to be softening up from their original assessment 'it won't work, no way!"

"They seem to be responding to me more like I'm part of the team," she said. "I want to convince my colleagues that I'm not here for self-glorification, that I'm serious about my job. "My biggest challenge will be letting them know I can handle the job."

There is little doubt that everyone at San Quentin and many prison corrections officials around the state are anxiously watching "that lady," eager to see what will happen as a result of the feminine revolution.

"I don't think it will take long for us to know if women are capable of working here," Captain Merkle said.

He personally believes Mrs. Schneider "will do a terrific job" in her new role, despite the many obstacles. "She impresses me," the captain said. "Her attitudes are right and she is a very sensible gal who sees everyone's point of view. If any woman can make it in this work, she will."

hotels.

Most delegation heads expressed satisfaction about the agreement as they walked up the seven red-carpeted steps to the graystone building.

Rogers returned to the meeting only after the Communists announced in Saigon tonight they would release 142 more prisoners in Hanoi within the next 48 hours.

The main provisions of the agreement, according to the Communist Vietnamese, include the following:

—The 12 parties take note of and approve the Paris ceasefire agreement of Jan. 27 and its four protocols.

—In the event of a violation of the accord threatening the unity, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Vietnam, the conference can be reconvened upon a joint request of North Vietnam and the United States or at the request of at least six signatories.

—The parties state that the Paris accord responds to the aspirations and fundamental rights of the Vietnamese people, that is the independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Vietnam and the right of self-determination of the South Vietnamese people.

—The parties recognize that the agreement also responds to the earnest desires of all the countries of the world.

—The parties pledge to respect the Paris accord.

— The parties recognize solemnly the basic rights of the South Vietnamese people and call on all the countries of the world to respect the rights of the Vietnamese people.

—North Vietnam, South Vietnam, the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam (Viet Cong) and the United States may send, individually or collectively, reports from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) to other signatories of the declaration. They may send reports also to another participant for his information.

A Burglar Takes $400, Writes Note

A burglar cracked a safe at a San Rafael school, stole $400 and then left a note begging forgiveness for his deed because he committed the crime to satisfy his "inner soul," police reported today.

Police said officials of Vallecito School, 50 Nova Albion Way, discovered the theft when they came to work yesterday morning.

Officers reported that the thief entered the school office by removing glass sla in a side window then broke into several offices whe he apparently found tools used to open the safe.

Police found a typewritten note that said, "I don't know why I am doing this . . . but I must keep writing to keep from going insane. If you think I am already crazy, you may be right. Please don't be upset with me. You must understand I am not doing this for myself, but for my inner soul, according to police.

Officers also found in a field behind the school a set of keys stolen from the Aldersgate Methodist Church, 220 Nova Albion Way, where a burglary also was reported. The keys and $2 were taken after someone broke in by smashing a kitchen window, police said. Found on a bulletin board of the church was a note reading, "right on."

Robber Takes $35 At Cleaners

The owner and a clerk at the Avenue Cleaners in Mill Valley wre robbed of $35 yesterday by a man who said he had a gun in his jacket pocket.

Owner Donna R. Quaster and clerk Jean E. Fitzsimmons were in the cleaners, at 353 Miller Avenue, when a white male walked in about 12:30 p.m.

The women reported the robber told them he had a gun in his pocket. "This is a stickup. Give me all your money or I'll blow your head off," he reportedly told the pair.

After taking the cash, the man ordered the women to lie on the floor for three minutes, then ran from the building, north on Miller.

The robber was described as in his mid-twenties, 5 feet, 6 inches tall, with shoulder length brown hair, a thin mustache and blue eyes.

Bolinas Ending Aide Contract

Clerk Lyman R. Robinson said the board gave no reason for the termination.

Monson was hired about a year ago, at a salary of $1,000 a month, to provide routine engineering services to the district, Robinson said.

Mail Plan For County Postponed

The U.S. Postal Service, which plans to sort all Marin County mail in San Francisco, has postponed the effective date because of delays in installing letter-sorting machines at San Francisco's Rincon Annex Post Office.

Marshall R. Haines, mail processing representative in the San Francisco USPS office, so informed Mrs. Constance Easton of Mill Valley in a letter she received yesterday.

Haines's letter said that "no effective date has been decided as yet due to a delay in installation of two new letter sorting machines." Earlier, Postal Service offices had been informed the change would take place March 12.

Haines continued:

"This system of machine processing, called area mail processing, is currently in operation at many locations in the U.S. Postal Service. The program has proven to be very successful."

Sorting of Marin mail at Rincon Annex was tried on a limited basis, on week ends only, for several months, but was abandoned Jan. 23 as unsatisfactory, according to Hugh Cassidy, San Rafael postmaster.

Mrs. Easton is originator of a petition directed to USPS and senators and congressmen protesting against the proposed change and against USPS plans to cease Saturday mail delivery and close post offices on Saturday.

Copies of the petition are available at Marin County, Novato and Mill Valley Chambers of Commerce, she said. Carroll W. Snyker, county chamber manager, said he would also supply copies to the San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce office.

Robinson of the Salvation Army. He called the need for emergency lodging in some sort of a hospitality house one of the county's major unmet needs.

"The Street Ministry in Southern Marin is the only such place now," said Mrs. Kelley. "I once sent an old man there and he was miserable" in the company of the young transients who are the usual visitors.

People who need a room for a night or so after a disaster are part of the concern, "but the problem is not so much with transients as the resident alcoholic who doesn't want to move," Major Robinson said.

San Rafael's Fourth Street may not look like a big city Skid Row but there are plenty of elderly alcoholic men who call its bars and grubby upstairs rooms home.

"An old building where they could come maybe even with a bar in it a place to get a bowl of hot soup — this is the dream of Mrs Kelley and others who see the needs of Marin's older alcoholic population.

The biggest fear, though, of those who deal with the poor in Marin is that federal cutbacks will be made in the welfare programs, following the revenue sharing bill now in effect.

If welfare goes down, "how much more can we (those in private agencies) pick up?" asks Margaret Anderson, executive director for the Red Cross's chapter in Marin.

"We have to start doing things together," is the view of Father Thomas I. Kennedy, pastor of St. Raphael's Church.

He wants church-going Christians to "get into the water," feed the hungry, visit the sick, clothe the naked and visit those in prison in person, as Jesus commanded.

Many Marin residents, however, will probably continue to be capable of great compassion when an individual need comes to their attention, but cling to the belief fashionable with the affluent that those in need are "winos, cheats, lazy bums and women who get pregnant."

That's where charity in Marin is today in the view of people who deal daily with the problems of the poor.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Police Chief Herman B. Short said Wednesday 713 policemen were attacked in Houston last year, including two who were killed and 71 who were injured severely.

OBITUARIES

Frank J. Robello Dies At 62

Frank J. Robello, lifelong San Rafael resident, died yesterday after a lengthy illness. He was 62.

Robello was taken to Marin General Hospital, where he was dead on arrival.

He was born, reared and lived all his life in San Rafael.

Robello was retired, having worked previously for the Marin Sanitary Service.

He was a member of the Italian-Catholic Federation and the Marvelous Marin Lodge No. 1969, Order of Sons of Italy in America.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Zaro of San Rafael and Mrs. Minnie Pamparato of San Francisco, and four brothers, Louis, John, Mario and Alfred Robello, all of San Rafael.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

He said the release therefore probably would take place Sunday morning.

The Communists acted after the United States demanded they stop stalling and after President Nixon instructed Secretary of State William P. Rogers in Paris to put the POW issue ahead of the 13-party conference called to guarantee peace in Vietnam.

The Communist pledge broke a two-day deadlock that threatened to scuttle the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

Candidate Night Event Canceled

A candidates night for three persons vying for a seat on the Marin Municipal Water District board, originally scheduled for tonight at the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club, has been canceled because one candidate cannot be present.

The vacancy is in Division Four, which includes Mill Valley and portions of Tamalpais Valley, Kentfield and Corte Madera.

Mrs. Joan Panek, president of the Almonte Improvement Club, which was sponsoring the candidates' night, said the event will be rescheduled for sometime in March.

The seat will be filled in the April 17 election.

FRANCES MILLIKEN

Memorial service was held today in Oakland for Frances Milliken, a retired San Rafael High School teacher, who died Sunday.

Miss Milliken was a lifelong resident of Oakland, although she taught commercial subjects for 27 years at San Rafael High. She also served in 1943-45 as president of the Marin Branch of the American Association of University Women.

Miss Milliken was a 1921 graduate of the University of California at Berkeley. After leaving her San Rafael teaching post, she joined the faculty of Healds Business College in Oakland for six years before retiring.

She was a member of the Hildred Circle of the First Congregational Church in Oakland, a member of the Gamma Epsilon Pi honor society and a past president of the Oakland branch of the university women group.

Survivors are two brothers, Dr. Joseph Milliken of Oakland and Roland C. Milliken of Piedmont, and two sisters, Mary Glatt of Oakland and Jessie Miilu of El Cerrito.

MADELINE GARTENLAUB

Funeral for Madeline Gartenlaub of Greenbrae will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Daphne Funerals Marin in Corte Madera.

She died Tuesday in King City while returning from a vacation in San Diego. She was 62.

Mrs. Gartenlaub was born in New York City. She had lived in San Diego for 15 years prior to moving to 100 Lower Via Casitas, Greenbrae, two years ago.

Surviving is her husband, Paul, an automobile salesman in San Francisco.

Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

BENEDETTO MOLLO

Benedetto Mollo of San Francisco, father of Bert Mollo and Gloria Maniscalco of Greenbrae and Elvira Morosi of San Rafael, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a long illness.

Mollo, 86, was born in Italy. He came to this country in 1906, settling in San Francisco just before the earthquake and fire.

He was in the meat business, running the Yosemite Market near city hall in partnership with his son until they sold it in 1952 and retired.

Mollo is also survived by his wife, Santina; five grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Mass of the Resurrection will be at 9 a.m. tomorrow at St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church in San Francisco. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 7:30 p.m. today at Valente-Marini-Perata and Co. in San Francisco. Burial will be in Holy Cross Cemetery, Colma.

HUGH CAVALLI

Mass of the Resurrection for Hugh Cavalli of Mill Valley, a lifelong resident of Marin County, will be at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church in Mill Valley.

Cavalli, 73, died Tuesday in a local hospital after a short illness.

He was born in Olema and lived in Southern Marin for 60 years. He was a retired traffic manager.

Cavalli was a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks in San Rafael and Mill Valley Mens' Golf Club.

Survivors are his wife, Alice, of the home at 91 Blithedale Avenue; a daughter, Carol Wilson, and a son, Glenn Cavalli, both of Mill Valley, and four grandchildren.

Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. today at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel. Buria will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

Memorial contributions to Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church building fund would be appreciated by the family.

MRS. GUARAGNA

Funeral for M. Patricia Guaragna, sister of Harriet Osborne of Mill Valley, will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Halsted and Company, San Francisco.

Mrs. Guaragna died Tuesday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness. She was 43.

Born in Nebraska, she had lived in California 20 years, making her home in San Francisco.

She was a secretary for All Trans Express Co.

In addition to her sister in Mill Valley, she is survived by her husband, Peter J. Guaragna, and another sister, Olive De Graff of Illinois.

Prayer service will be at 8 p.m. today at the funeral home.

Woman Guard Facing Problems At Prison

privacy to have a woman watching me while I'm taking a shower,'' said Edward Jones, 40, who is serving a sentence for manslaughter. "It'll make me feel small and uncomfortable and I just don't like it.''

Jones's sentiments are apparently shared by many convicts. During her first week at work, fellow correctional officers — uncertain about what standard operating procedures are in a very nonstandard situation — asked Mrs. Schneider to leave the shower area when the men complained.

"I can appreciate the men's feelings and sympathize with them: I know how I would feel in their place,'' Mrs. Schneider said candidly.

"All I can do is handle it the same way a doctor handles an examination; I'm not going to gawk at them. It will take time, but eventually I hope they'll feel more comfortable with me around.''

William Merkle, captain of the guards, agrees the nudity problem "is going to be one of the toughest things she has to handle.

"I don't think the courts were thinking of all these things when they acted. They may have to take another look at the situation,'' he said. "Some of the men are very modest and the fact the court says it's okay for women to be in here isn't going to make any difference to them.''

Perhaps the most significant question raised by the prospect of females in the rough life of prison is that of safety.

There is little doubt that her male counterparts at San Quentin are wondering how Wilma Schneider will be able to perform in dangerous, explosive situations.

They are also asking themselves whether setting a woman admidst thousands of men who have been deprived of feminine companionship for years won't lead to violence and assaults on the woman herself.

Will an officer feel obligated to protect a female colleague and so expose himself to additional danger, and possibly death, the men want to know.

"It's impossible to know what will happen,'' said Captain Merkle.

"It's like putting someone who's starving in front of a locked delicatessen; there's bound to be trouble,'' said Ben Rasnick, 52, serving time for murder. "I know it will make me nervous if there is a female in the block. "I'll wonder if someone's going to attack her and who will get shot as a result.''

"If a woman gets ripped off and torn up, the rest of the inmates are afraid it will reflect badly on them, on all convicts,'' said Lt. William H. Faust, a 15-year-veteran at San Quentin.

Georgia Gruver, the 26-year-old wife of a guard at San Quentin, who worked briefly beside Mrs. Schneider, is on the side of the skeptics.

She contends that "a men's prison is not the place for a woman. I don't think a woman is capable of handling fights that break out, because it becomes a question of physical strength,'' she said. "If something happens, I wouldn't want a woman backing my husband, because I think she'd be more of a hindrance that a help.''

"I wish I knew the answer to all the men's concerns about safety,'' but I don't,'' Mrs. Schneider said thoughtfully, adding that she wished she could be sure one way or the other about being a danger to them.

She takes hope from conversations with her father-in-law who worked at Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary in the 1930s. "It's hard to believe, but they had women correctional officers way back then. I talked to him about it and he told me it worked out okay, that the inmates were very protective toward the ladies.''

The personal dangers of working at San Quentin don't terrify her, thanks to her experiences at Los Guilucos. "I lived with the possibility I'd be clobbered or hurt for three years. I just hope if something happens, I'll be able to deal with it. I'm certainly not going to be running around watching the inmates fearfully.''

She has no complaints about her treatment by fellow officers or the inmates she has had contact with during her three weeks at the prison.

(While she was talking, one officer smilingly presented her with a bag of homemade cookies, a gift from his wife.)

A trio of inmates who saw her and Mrs. Gruber walking across the yard one day also had encouraging words. "Hang in there, girls, we're all for you,'' they called.

She thinks some of her coworkers seem to be softening up from their original assessment 'it won't work, no way!''

"They seem to be responding to me more like I'm part of the team,'' she said. "I want to convince my colleagues that I'm not here for self-glorification, that I'm serious about my job. "My biggest challenge will be letting them know I can handle the job.''

There is little doubt that everyone at San Quentin and many prison corrections officials around the state are anxiously watching "that lady,'' eager to see what will happen as a result of the feminine revolution.

"I don't think it will take long for us to know if women are capable of working here,'' Captain Merkle said.

He personally believes Mrs. Schneider "will do a terrific job'' in her new role, despite the many obstacles. "She impresses me,'' the captain said. "Her attitudes are right and she is a very sensible gal who sees everyone's point of view. If any woman can make it in this work, she will.'' hotels.

Most delegation heads expressed satisfaction about the agreement as they walked up the seven red-carpeted steps to the graystone building.

Rogers returned to the meeting only after the Communists announced in Saigon tonight they would release 142 more prisoners in Hanoi within the next 48 hours.

The main provisions of the agreement, according to the Communist Vietnamese, include the following:

—The 12 parties take note of and approve the Paris ceasefire agreement of Jan. 27 and its four protocols.

—In the event of a violation of the accord threatening the unity, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Vietnam, the conference can be reconvened upon a joint request of North Vietnam and the United States or at the request of at least six signatories.

—The parties state that the Paris accord responds to the aspirations and fundamental rights of the Vietnamese people, that is the independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Vietnam and the right of self-determination of the South Vietnamese people.

—The parties recognize that the agreement also responds to the earnest desires of all the countries of the world.

—The parties pledge to respect the Paris accord.

— The parties recognize solemnly the basic rights of the South Vietnamese people and call on all the countries of the world to respect the rights of the Vietnamese people.

—North Vietnam, South Vietnam, the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam (Viet Cong) and the United States may send, individually or collectively, reports from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) to other signatories of the declaration. They may send reports also to another participant for his information.

A Burglar Takes $400, Writes Note

A burglar cracked a safe at a San Rafael school, stole $400 and then left a note begging forgiveness for his deed because he committed the crime to satisfy his "inner soul,'' police reported today.

Police said officials of Vallecito School, 50 Nova Albion Way, discovered the theft when they came to work yesterday morning.

Officers reported that the thief entered the school office by removing glass sla in a side window then broke into several offices whe he apparently found tools used to open the safe.

Police found a typewritten note that said, "I don't know why I am doing this . . . but I must keep writing to keep from going insane. If you think I am already crazy, you may be right. Please don't be upset with me. You must understand I am not doing this for myself, but for my inner soul, according to police.

Officers also found in a field behind the school a set of keys stolen from the Aldersgate Methodist Church, 220 Nova Albion Way, where a burglary also was reported. The keys and $2 were taken after someone broke in by smashing a kitchen window, police said. Found on a bulletin board of the church was a note reading, "right on.''

Robber Takes $35 At Cleaners

The owner and a clerk at the Avenue Cleaners in Mill Valley wre robbed of $35 yesterday by a man who said he had a gun in his jacket pocket.

Owner Donna R. Quaster and clerk Jean E. Fitzsimmons were in the cleaners, at 353 Miller Avenue, when a white male walked in about 12:30 p.m.

The women reported the robber told them he had a gun in his pocket. "This is a stickup. Give me all your money or I'll blow your head off,'' he reportedly told the pair.

After taking the cash, the man ordered the women to lie on the floor for three minutes, then ran from the building, north on Miller.

The robber was described as in his mid-twenties, 5 feet, 6 inches tall, with shoulder length brown hair, a thin mustache and blue eyes.

Bolinas Ending Aide Contract

Woman Guard Facing Problems At Prison

privacy to have a woman watching me while I'm taking a shower," said Edward Jones, 40, who is serving a sentence for manslaughter. "It'll make me feel small and uncomfortable and I just don't like it."

Jones's sentiments are apparently shared by many convicts. During her first week at work, fellow correctional officers — uncertain about what standard operating procedures are in a very nonstandard situation — asked Mrs. Schneider to leave the shower area when the men complained.

"I can appreciate the men's feelings and sympathize with them: I know how I would feel in their place," Mrs. Schneider said candidly.

"All I can do is handle it the same way a doctor handles an examination; I'm not going to gawk at them. It will take time, but eventually I hope they'll feel more comfortable with me around."

William Merkle, captain of the guards, agrees the nudity problem "is going to be one of the toughest things she has to handle.

"I don't think the courts were thinking of all these things when they acted. They may have to take another look at the situation," he said. "Some of the men are very modest and the fact the court says it's okay for women to be in here isn't going to make any difference to them."

Perhaps the most significant question raised by the prospect of females in the rough life of prison is that of safety.

There is little doubt that her male counterparts at San Quentin are wondering how Wilma Schneider will be able to perform in dangerous, explosive situations.

They are also asking themselves whether setting a woman admidst thousands of men who have been deprived of feminine companionship for years won't lead to violence and assaults on the woman herself.

Will an officer feel obligated to protect a female colleague and so expose himself to additional danger, and possibly death, the men want to know.

"It's impossible to know what will happen," said Captain Merkle.

"It's like putting someone who's starving in front of a locked delicatessen; there's bound to be trouble," said Ben Rasnick, 52, serving time for murder. "I know it will make me nervous if there is a female in the block. "I'll wonder if someone's going to attack her and who will get shot as a result."

"If a woman gets ripped off and torn up, the rest of the inmates are afraid it will reflect badly on them, on all convicts," said Lt. William H. Faust, a 15-year-veteran at San Quentin.

Georgia Gruver, the 26-year-old wife of a guard at San Quentin, who worked briefly beside Mrs. Schneider, is on the side of the skeptics.

She contends that "a men's prison is not the place for a woman. I don't think a woman is capable of handling fights that break out, because it becomes a question of physical strength," she said. "If something happens, I wouldn't want a woman backing my husband, because I think she'd be more of a hindrance that a help."

"I wish I knew the answer to all the men's concerns about safety," but I don't," Mrs. Schneider said thoughtfully, adding that she wished she could be sure one way or the other about being a danger to them.

She takes hope from conversations with her father-in-law who worked at Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary in the 1930s. "It's hard to believe, but they had women correctional officers way back then. I talked to him about it and he told me it worked out okay, that the inmates were very protective toward the ladies."

The personal dangers of working at San Quentin don't terrify her, thanks to her experiences at Los Guilucos. "I lived with the possibility I'd be clobbered or hurt for three years. I just hope if something happens, I'll be able to deal with it. I'm certainly not going to be running around watching the inmates fearfully."

She has no complaints about her treatment by fellow officers or the inmates she has had contact with during her three weeks at the prison.

(While she was talking, one officer smilingly presented her with a bag of homemade cookies, a gift from his wife.)

A trio of inmates who saw her and Mrs. Gruber walking across the yard one day also had encouraging words. "Hang in there, girls, we're all for you," they called.

She thinks some of her coworkers seem to be softening up from their original assessment 'it won't work, no way!"

"They seem to be responding to me more like I'm part of the team," she said. "I want to convince my colleagues that I'm not here for self-glorification, that I'm serious about my job. "My biggest challenge will be letting them know I can handle the job."

There is little doubt that everyone at San Quentin and many prison corrections officials around the state are anxiously watching "that lady," eager to see what will happen as a result of the feminine revolution.

"I don't think it will take long for us to know if women are capable of working here," Captain Merkle said.

He personally believes Mrs. Schneider "will do a terrific job" in her new role, despite the many obstacles. "She impresses me," the captain said. "Her attitudes are right and she is a very sensible gal who sees everyone's point of view. If any woman can make it in this work, she will."

hotels.

Most delegation heads expressed satisfaction about the agreement as they walked up the seven red-carpeted steps to the graystone building.

Rogers returned to the meeting only after the Communists announced in Saigon tonight they would release 142 more prisoners in Hanoi within the next 48 hours.

The main provisions of the agreement, according to the Communist Vietnamese, include the following:

—The 12 parties take note of and approve the Paris ceasefire agreement of Jan. 27 and its four protocols.

—In the event of a violation of the accord threatening the unity, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Vietnam, the conference can be reconvened upon a joint request of North Vietnam and the United States or at the request of at least six signatories.

—The parties state that the Paris accord responds to the aspirations and fundamental rights of the Vietnamese people, that is the independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Vietnam and the right of self-determination of the South Vietnamese people.

—The parties recognize that the agreement also responds to the earnest desires of all the countries of the world.

—The parties pledge to respect the Paris accord.

— The parties recognize solemnly the basic rights of the South Vietnamese people and call on all the countries of the world to respect the rights of the Vietnamese people.

—North Vietnam, South Vietnam, the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam (Viet Cong) and the United States may send, individually or collectively, reports from the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) to other signatories of the declaration. They may send reports also to another participant for his information.

A Burglar Takes $400, Writes Note

A burglar cracked a safe at a San Rafael school, stole $400 and then left a note begging forgiveness for his deed because he committed the crime to satisfy his "inner soul," police reported today.

Police said officials of Vallecito School, 50 Nova Albion Way, discovered the theft when they came to work yesterday morning.

Officers reported that the thief entered the school office by removing glass sla in a side window then broke into several offices whe he apparently found tools used to open the safe.

Police found a typewritten note that said, "I don't know why I am doing this . . . but I must keep writing to keep from going insane. If you think I am already crazy, you may be right. Please don't be upset with me. You must understand I am not doing this for myself, but for my inner soul, according to police.

Officers also found in a field behind the school a set of keys stolen from the Aldersgate Methodist Church, 220 Nova Albion Way, where a burglary also was reported. The keys and $2 were taken after someone broke in by smashing a kitchen window, police said. Found on a bulletin board of the church was a note reading, "right on."

Robber Takes $35 At Cleaners

The owner and a clerk at the Avenue Cleaners in Mill Valley wre robbed of $35 yesterday by a man who said he had a gun in his jacket pocket.

Owner Donna R. Quaster and clerk Jean E. Fitzsimmons were in the cleaners, at 353 Miller Avenue, when a white male walked in about 12:30 p.m.

The women reported the robber told them he had a gun in his pocket. "This is a stickup. Give me all your money or I'll blow your head off," he reportedly told the pair.

After taking the cash, the man ordered the women to lie on the floor for three minutes, then ran from the building, north on Miller.

The robber was described as in his mid-twenties, 5 feet, 6 inches tall, with shoulder length brown hair, a thin mustache and blue eyes.

Bolinas Ending Aide Contract

Clerk Lyman R. Robinson said the board gave no reason for the termination.

Monson was hired about a year ago, at a salary of $1,000 a month, to provide routine engineering services to the district, Robinson said.

said concern for the 11 hostages was the primary matter.

"Our prime goal is to obtain the release of the 11 hostages," he said. "We are concerned that some are aged, in their 80s, and there is one girl 12 years old. One of the older persons has a heart condition.

"We are attempting to arrange their release before we go on to consideration of any of their demands."

The AIM members are the same group which occupied the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Washington several months ago and caused considerable damage to furnishings and papers before they departed.

A spokesman for McGovern said the senator had been in contact with Indian leaders during the night and received word that two of the hostages would be released immediately upon the arrival of the senators The hostages were held by 300 militant Indians in the church on the Pine Ridge reservation.

The militants stormed the Wounded Knee Trading Post 14 miles from here late Tuesday night, taking artifacts, arms, ammunition and hostages, including the Clive Gildersleve family which operated the post.

Either negotiate with us for meaningful results, positive results, or you're going to have to kill us, and here at Wounded Knee is where it's going to have to happen," American Indian Movement leader Russell Means said Wednesday night in a telephone interview with CBS News.

Mail Plan For County Postponed

The U.S. Postal Service, which plans to sort all Marin County mail in San Francisco, has postponed the effective date because of delays in installing letter-sorting machines at San Francisco's Rincon Annex Post Office.

Marshall R. Haines, mail processing representative in the San Francisco USPS office, so informed Mrs. Constance Easton of Mill Valley in a letter she received yesterday.

Haines's letter said that "no effective date has been decided as yet due to a delay in installation of two new letter sorting machines." Earlier, Postal Service offices had been informed the change would take place March 12.

Haines continued:

"This system of machine processing, called area mail processing, is currently in operation at many locations in the U.S. Postal Service. The program has proven to be very successful."

Sorting of Marin mail at Rincon Annex was tried on a limited basis, on week ends only, for several months, but was abandoned Jan. 23 as unsatisfactory, according to Hugh Cassidy, San Rafael postmaster.

Mrs. Easton is originator of a petition directed to USPS and senators and congressmen protesting against the proposed change and against USPS plans to cease Saturday mail delivery and close post offices on Saturday.

Copies of the petition are available at Marin County, Novato and Mill Valley Chambers of Commerce, she said. Carroll W. Snyker, county chamber manager, said he would also supply copies to the San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce office.

CHARITY

Robinson of the Salvation Army. He called the need for emergency lodging in some sort of a hospitality house one of the county's major unmet needs.

"The Street Ministry in Southern Marin is the only such place now," said Mrs. Kelley. "I once sent an old man there and he was miserable" in the company of the young transients who are the usual visitors.

People who need a room for a night or so after a disaster are part of the concern, "but the problem is not so much with transients as the resident alcoholic who doesn't want to move," Major Robinson said.

San Rafael's Fourth Street may not look like a big city Skid Row but there are plenty of elderly alcoholic men who call its bars and grubby upstairs rooms home.

"An old building where they could come maybe even with a bar in it a place to get a bowl of hot soup — this is the dream of Mrs Kelley and others who see the needs of Marin's older alcoholic population.

The biggest fear, though, of those who deal with the poor in Marin is that federal cutbacks will be made in the welfare programs, following the revenue sharing bill now in effect.

If welfare goes down, "how much more can we (those in private agencies) pick up?" asks Margaret Anderson, executive director for the Red Cross's chapter in Marin.

"We have to start doing things together," is the view of Father Thomas I. Kennedy, pastor of St. Raphael's Church.

He wants church-going Christians to "get into the water," feed the hungry, visit the sick, clothe the naked and visit those in prison in person, as Jesus commanded.

Many Marin residents, however, will probably continue to be capable of great compassion when an individual need comes to their attention, but cling to the belief fashionable with the affluent that those in need are "winos, cheats, lazy bums and women who get pregnant."

That's where charity in Marin is today in the view of people who deal daily with the problems of the poor.

Israeli Aide Dinner Speaker

David Ben-Dov, San Francisco consul general for Israel, will be guest speaker when officers of Congregation B'nai Israel are installed at 7:30 p.m. today at Sonoma Joe's, Petaluma.

New officers are Robert Lipman, president; Lawrence Levy, first vice president; Marvin Dolowitz, second vice president; Max Graf, treasurer, and Mrs. David Mendelssohn, secretary.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Police Chief Herman B. Short said Wednesday 713 policemen were attacked in Houston last year, including two who were killed and 71 who were injured severely.

OBITUARIES

Frank J. Robello Dies At 62

Frank J. Robello, lifelong San Rafael resident, died yesterday after a lengthy illness. He was 62.

Robello was taken to Marin General Hospital, where he was dead on arrival.

He was born, reared and lived all his life in San Rafael.

Robello was retired, having worked previously for the Marin Sanitary Service.

He was a member of the Italian-Catholic Federation and the Marvelous Marin Lodge No. 1969, Order of Sons of Italy in America.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Zaro of San Rafael and Mrs. Minnie Pamparato of San Francisco, and four brothers, Louis, John, Mario and Alfred Robello, all of San Rafael.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael.

Entombment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

of the POWs after next of kin have been notified, probably starting some time late this afternoon.)

"In principle, we are to release prisoners within 48 hours after we deliver the list," he said, "but it was 8 or 9 o'clock tonight before we delivered the list, so that would make the release at night, which would be very inconvenient." He said the release therefore probably would take place Sunday morning.

The Communists acted after the United States demanded they stop stalling and after President Nixon instructed Secretary of State William P. Rogers in Paris to put the POW issue ahead of the 13-party conference called to guarantee peace in Vietnam.

The Communist pledge broke a two-day deadlock that threatened to scuttle the Vietnam cease-fire agreement.

Candidate Night Event Canceled

A candidates night for three persons vying for a seat on the Marin Municipal Water District board, originally scheduled for tonight at the Tamalpais Valley Improvement Club, has been canceled because one candidate cannot be present.

The vacancy is in Division Four, which includes Mill Valley and portions of Tamalpais Valley, Kentfield and Corte Madera.

Mrs. Joan Panek, president of the Almonte Improvement Club, which was sponsoring the candidates' night, said the event will be rescheduled for sometime in March.

The seat will be filled in the April 17 election.

Warfare Averted On County Plan

By PATRICIA PERRY

Open warfare between the County of Marin and the 11 cities in the county was narrowly averted last night as the Council of Mayors and Councilmen voted six to five to delay a San Rafael-prompted move to restrict the Marin Countywide Plan to unincorporated areas.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. angrily called the mood of the meeting "a collective argument for parochialism" and, speaking of the antagonism towards the plan apparent from some cities,' said "With that attitude we're all going to go down the drain."

C. Paul Bettini, mayor of San Rafael — who had introduced a resolution that the countywide general plan should pertain "only to areas outside the cities' sphere of influence" — countered:

"If Supervisor Arrigoni believes what he says, the board of supervisors should be saying things to their planning staff, giving them more direction. They permit the county planning director and his staff to do what the hell they please without any direction in making decisions that affect cities."

Tempers at the council meeting were cooled only by the fans revolving in the ceiling of the Lark Creek Inn in Larkspur as mayors and councilmen voted on a suggestion that Mayor Bettini's controversial proposal be delayed to the council's March 28 meeting while an ad hoc committee studies it.

Since San Rafael's proposal for immediate limiting of the county plan never came to a vote, that city joined Fairfax, Larkspur, Mill Valley, Sausalito and Tiburon to set up the committee and schedule discussion at the March meeting. Opposing the committee and further discussion of such a proposal were the cities of Belvedere, Corte Madera, Novato, Ross and San Anselmo.

Before restriction of the countywide plan was introduced, the council had already voted unanimously to ask the Local Agency Formation Commission to designate everything in the eastern urbanized corridor of Marin as "within the sphere of influence of individual cities."

The council also voted unanimously that once each city and the county had adopted these "spheres of influence" the county couldn't approve rezoning or subdividing within the corridor until the developer had applied to annex to the appropriate city.

(The vote, if adopted by the county and cities, would, in effect, deny all county influence in zoning and planning in the most populated part of Marin.)

There was little discussion on the resolution on spheres of influence, but Mayor Bettini's resolution provoked heated exchanges from mayors and councilmen, some advocating the Marin Countywide plan, some vehemently opposing it.

Bettini said San Rafael's "worst problems are in relation to county planning. In our sphere of influence, or in your cities, our general plans should prevail over the county's."

He said San Rafael has had dwellings for 10,000 people "imposed on our sphere of influence that we wouldn't approve in San Rafael," and claimed a prospective developer of units to house 3,500 people had told him San Rafael had "much more restrictive zoning and planning than the county, so we don't want to come into San Rafael."

Loud applause and shouts of "hear, hear" greeted Bettini's declaration: "There's been a change of trend and thought in the cities which is better than the county of Marin's planning."

Novato city councilman George C. Quesada considered San Rafael's more redundant, saying that his city's attorney had ruled that whichever general plan is adopted last, the city's or the county's, shall prevail.

Sausalito Councilman Stephen A. Frazer argued that the whole idea was San Rafael's effort "to emasculate the countywide plan . . . if all the cities' individual planning was all that good it wouldn't be important to have a countywide plan. The fact of the matter is, most cities have done poor planning."

Corte Madera's mayor, Holmes S. Norville, said some of his town's greatest problems are in county land immediately adjacent to the city.

Claiming cities must use their "enormous right" Norville said cities "are the ones who have to provide police, fire, public works, road repair, and flood control after people move in and start living here and annex to the cities three months after the county has signed them off."

Mill Valley Councilman Robert E. Burton complained: "We have to differentiate between current county planning and future — what you're really saying is we're out to kill the countywide plan."

And his fellow councilman, Robert E. Capron, said San Rafael's action threatened the "precarious effort" for the county and cities to know what's going on.

But Mayor Bettini countered that it was "simple for cities like Mill Valley that have little influence" to adopt the county plan while San Rafael was compelled to accept things like rapid transit — "we're not against the plan, but we're far more capable of doing on our own behalf," he added.

After each city had voted on the suggestion to appoint an ad hoc committee (which will be composed of Quesada, Capron and Tiburon Councilman Allan N. Littman) Supervisor Arrigoni leaped to his feet and denounced the mood of the meeting as a "collective argument for parochialism."

The mayors and councilmen also voted unanimously to request the county administration to furnish a department-by-department breakdown of property tax revenue spent by the county on services in cities.

The information, the council said, is wanted for its March 28 meeting, when it will discuss tax rates and revenues in fiscal 1973-74 in the light of Senate Bill 90's limitation of the property tax as a source of revenue.

Council members agreed it may be that whatever is spent by the county duplicates services provided by the cities and that money might better be simply turned over to the cities.

The council also acted on the suggestion of Mill Valley Mayor Jean S. Baranard and authorized a letter to the Post Office Department protesting sending all Marin mail to San Francisco for sorting.

High Fees Urged For Noisy Autos

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Owners of noisy cars should have to pay more for their license and registration than persons who have quiet vehicles, a legislative advisory committee has recommended.

In a report to the Assembly Transportation Committee Tuesday, a seven-member citizens committee concluded that California has the "most stringent" anti-noise standards for automobiles in the nation.

But to further deal with the problem, the panel urged that new, staggered vehicle registration fees be imposed, making the owners of loud cars pay extra to license them.

A Pilot's Story Of Cannibalism

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (UPI) — A bush pilot who was the sole survivor of a plane crash in the Canadian Arctic wastelands last November testified Wednesday at a coronor's inquest that he ate the flesh of one of his dead passengers after all other food sources had run out.

Martin Hartwell, 46, pilot of a mercy flight that crashed last Nov. 8, was rescued after 31 days in sub-zero weather. A British nurse and an Eskimo woman suffering labor complications died soon after the crash, while a 14-year-old Eskimo boy who had been suffering acute appendicitis survived 23 days.

Hartwell said he ate the flesh of the nurse only after David Kootook, the Eskimo boy, died Dec. 1.

Tough Drug Law

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The New Mexico state senate voted unanimously Wednesday for mandatory life imprisonment without possibility of parole or suspension for drug peddlers.

15 Dixie Teachers Will Be Laid Off

The Dixie School District board last night ordered a reduction of 15 teachers from the district's staff due to sagging enrollment.

Fourteen teachers and one speech therapist will be issued "tentative layoff notices" within the next few days, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell, adding the cuts will be on a strict seniority basis.

An additional layoff notice will be issued since speech therapist Kathleen Hagen may be able to apply for a regular teaching credential and hike her seniority, he said.

Campbell said final layoff notices will be issued on May 15. "If more teachers resign or retire, the picture will change," he said. Teachers last night balked at the cuts, suggesting alternatives to the cutbacks including assigning two teachers to one class, lowering class size and early retirement, Campbell said.

The superintendent said he agreed to meet with teachers to explore the alternatives at 3:30 p.m. next Wednesday in the district office.

Enrollment has dropped by 672 students since the 1968-69 school year, he said.

The Dixie School District board also:

AUDIT — Postponed action on an audit report pending study of how Parent-Teacher Association funds should be accounted for.

CALENDAR — Adopted a school calendar which sets the school year from Sept. 11 through June 13, with winter vacation set between Dec. 24 and Jan. 4.

BARGAINING — Said district officials may attend a state school employees association collective bargaining conference in San Diego in August.

BUDGET — Heard Campbell report a tentative budget for next year includes expenses of $4,718,000, down from this year's $4,802,000 spending program.

LEAVE — Granted sabbatical leave to teacher Robert Ginn and extended maternity leave for teachers Jennifer Lambert and Holly Kaufman.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. March 14 in the Oak View School library.

Returning POW Gets His Wish

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — One hardship of imprisonment in North Vietnam for six years, said Air Force Maj. John Nasmyth, was that he couldn't hear the latest Sonny and Cher recordings.

The entertainers heard about the statement and invited Nasmyth to be on their television show, taped Tuesday night. Nasmyth told them he "thought about you a lot and hoped you wouldn't fade out like so many other things and people have while we were gone." He received a two-minute standing ovation from the studio audience — and all eight albums Sonny and Cher recorded in his absence. They promised they'd send him two more now in the works.

Tam Valley Trio Robbed At Gunpoint

Three persons were robbed at gunpoint of approximately $1,250 in cash and stereo equipment at their Tamalpais Valley home last night in a well-planned theft which included a bogus phone call designed to get one man out of the house.

Theodore Martin told sheriff's deputies a man called him shortly before 10 p.m. and offered to return stereo equipment which had been stolen out of Martin's Volkswagen bus Tuesday night. The caller asked Martin to meet him in Tiburon, but never showed up.

Shortly after 10, according to Steven and Anna Magnani, who also live at the house at 1081 West California Avenue, a man dressed in a black ski mask, black parka and black combat boots arrived at the house. He brandished a revolver and forced them and a houseguest, Stephanie Robin, to lie on the floor.

The three victims said several other men then entered the house. The robbers ransacked the place, searched the trio and escaped with $700 in cash and some stereo equipment.

The hooded, masked robber was described as about 5 feet, 9 inches tall, medium wieght. Deputies said the three persons were unable to get a look at the other robbers or tell how many there were.

Winners Named Of Film Awards

LONDON (AP) — American actress Liza Minelli and the musical "Cabaret" in which she starred have won top film honors handed out by the British Society of Film and Television Arts.

Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, presented the statuette prizes during a ceremony Wednesday night at the Royal Albert Hall.

"Cabaret" won the best film award and its director, Bob Fosse, was named best director.

New Indian Envoy

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Daniel Moynihan, formerly President Nixon's adviser for domestic affairs, presented his credentials Wednesday as America's ambassador to India.

Welfare Boss Quits For Washington Job

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Robert B. Carleson, director of Gov. Ronald Reagan's reform of welfare, resigned today to join the Nixon administration as a welfare adviser.

Carleson, 42, who has been director of the state Social Welfare Department since 1970, will serve as a special assistant for welfare matters to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Casper W. Weinberger.

In a statement issued by his office, Reagan said he has accepted Carleson's resignation with "very mixed emotions."

"Bob deserves much of the credit for reforming welfare in California," the governor said. "He was one of the principal architects in drafting the reforms that put an end to the literally hundreds of abuses that were running rampant throughout the welfare system."

A devotee of Reagan's "squeeze, cut and trim" fiscal philosophy, Carleson is generally credited with being the man behind the welfare reform slogan of denying aid to the "truly greedy" while making bigger grants to the "truly needy."

The resignation came as no surprise because Carleson had been conferring with federal officials about the post for several weeks. Reagan said part of Carleson's duties in his new post will be to work with governors, state legislatures and welfare directors in reforming welfare at the state level.

Ford Honored For Film Achievements

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Movie director John Ford was named Wednesday as the first recipient of the American Film Institute's award for lifetime achievement.

"He certainly has done as much as any man to enhance the American cultural experience through motion picture art," said actor Charlton Heston, the AFI president, in announcing the award.

A Pilot's Story Of Cannibalism

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (UPI) — A bush pilot who was the sole survivor of a plane crash in the Canadian Arctic wastelands last November testified Wednesday at a coroner's inquest that he ate the flesh of one of his dead passengers after all other food sources had run out.

Martin Hartwell, 46, pilot of a mercy flight that crashed last Nov. 8, was rescued after 31 days in sub-zero weather. A British nurse and an Eskimo woman suffering labor complications died soon after the crash, while a 14-year-old Eskimo boy who had been suffering acute appendicitis survived 23 days.

Hartwell said he ate the flesh of the nurse only after David Kootook, the Eskimo boy, died Dec. 1.

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — The New Mexico state senate voted unanimously Wednesday for mandatory life imprisonment without possibility of parole or suspension for drug peddlers.

15 Dixie Teachers Will Be Laid Off

The Dixie School District board last night ordered a reduction of 15 teachers from the district's staff due to sagging enrollment.

Fourteen teachers and one speech therapist will be issued "tentative layoff notices" within the next few days, according to Supt. Clifford W. Campbell, adding the cuts will be on a strict seniority basis.

An additional layoff notice will be issued since speech therapist Kathleen Hagen may be able to apply for a regular teaching credential and hike her seniority, he said.

Campbell said final layoff notices will be issued on May 15. "If more teachers resign or retire, the picture will change," he said. Teachers last night balked at the cuts, suggesting alternatives to the cutbacks including assigning two teachers to one class, lowering class size and early retirement, Campbell said.

The superintendent said he agreed to meet with teachers to explore the alternatives at 3:30 p.m. next Wednesday in the district office.

Enrollment has dropped by 672 students since the 1968-69 school year, he said.

The Dixie School District board also:

English Test Subject Of Some Criticism

As a result of an error, yesterday's Independent-Journal made it appear that a group of Sir Francis Drake High School freshmen was entirely uncritical of an English examination paper called pornographic by some parents.

While the students unanimously rejected the pornography complaint and defended English teacher Elaine Johnson as dedicated to her work and their welfare and discipline, there was acknowledgment that a better subject might have been chosen than a letter describing adolescent fornication and other sexual activity at a teen-age party.

Accidentally dropped from the story was the following paragraph:

"The teacher could have provided us wtih a better selection, but there was nothing really objectionable to what we did get," said Lisa A. Clayworth, 14, of San Anselmo. The teacher could have given students a sample of the same kind of writing using a different example, noted Rachelle J. Harris, 15, of Fairfax.

The exam paper will be discussed by the Tamalpais High School District board Monday evening.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

4:12 p.m., Larkspur — Car fire at northbound Sir Francis Drake Boulevard offramp of Highway 101; owner Lean Ahjmada; minor damage.

4:13 p.m., Novato — Fire in bedroom at home of Daniel McNulty, 1171 Midway Court; cause under investigation; damage to building and contents estimated at $2,000.

6:56 p.m., Marinwood — Trash bin fire at Lucas Valley School, 755 Idylberry Road; minor damage.

8:55 p.m., Tiburon — Smoke in apartment of William J. Noonan, 2200 Paradise Drive, Apt. 4, turned out to be from chimney; no damage.

TODAY:

2:32 a.m., San Rafael — Mattress fire at home of Paul Weik, 188 Greenfield Avenue; caused by lighted cigarette; $200 damage.

One Candidate Out Of Race

Joan H. Lisetor, candidate for election to the San Rafael Board of Education April 17, today announced she is withdrawing from the race because she cannot devote full time to the issues.

Mrs. Lisetor, a reporter for the Independent-Journal's women's department, urged her supporters to back Suzanne L. Beittel, another candidate in the race.

The withdrawal leaves seven candidates in the race for two seats on the board: incumbent Paul K. McMullen, Lewis S. Pollock, student Jeff D. Yarbrough III, Gale B. Fisher, Clarence W. Koop, Marie J. Sessi and Mrs. Beittel.

Youth Given Death Sentence

BOSTON (UPI) — A teenager convicted of raping and murdering a 57-year-old woman in 1972 was sentenced Wednesday to die in the electric chair.

Judge Alan J. Diamond said since the sentence is mandatory under state law it is not governed by the Supreme Court ruling against death penalties which he interpreted as applying only to cases where the sentence is up to the jury or judge.

Robert E. O'Neil, 18, of Boston ran from the docket and attempted to flee the courtroom after the verdict was read. He was restrained by four court officers.

The death penalty has not been imposed in the state since 1947.

O'Neil was charged with murdering Mrs. Gladys Mercadel, 57, in her apartment, and attempting to murder her son, Earl, 35, who suffers from muscular dystrophy.

Prisoner Spends First Day Home In A Long Time

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI) — By his own careful count, this is Air Force Maj. Norman A. McDaniel's first full day at home in 2,563 days.

A prisoner of war since July, 1966, McDaniel flew to his hometown Wednesday afternoon. He got a key to the city, cut the ribbon at a new bank office, then headed for a new, ranch-style home that his wife had bought in his absence and carried her across the threshold.

"When I left here 2,563 days ago, I thought I was going only for 365 days," McDaniel said in brief remarks at the airport. "But it didn't happen that way."

"I thank God I'm home," he said.

Litton Not Happy With Navy's Payment Offer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy has agreed to pay Litton Industries' Ingalls Shipyard at Pascagoula, Miss., $948 million —considerably less than the firm claims it is due — for construction of five huge helicopter carriers, the company said today.

Litton denounced the action as unilateral and said it would appeal to the courts. It claimed the Navy was refusing to pay $108 million in claims the shipyard had submitted for excess costs.

The Navy declined to comment immediately on Litton's report.

Litton President Fred W. O'Green said in a statement, "The Navy's unilateral price is unreasonable and unrealistic and the company intends to aggressively seek an equitable settlement of this continuing dispute through any and all legal remedies if necessary."

Litton's statement did not make it clear how much, if any, of the shipyard's claims the Navy had agreed to pay.

The ship — called the LHA — has run into heavy controversy in Congress because of the cost overruns and because Roy L. Ash, Litton's former president who negotiated the claims with the Navy last year, was subsequently named by President Nixon to be his budget director.

CHANGE OF COMMAND

After a brief change of command and retirement ceremony under grey skies at Hamilton Air Force Base yesterday afternoon, the incoming commander, Col. R. R. Melton (left) smiled broadly as he strolled with outgoing commander, Col. Vermont Garrison. The latter retired yesterday from the Air Force after more than 30 years service. Garrison was awarded an Oak Leaf Cluster to his Legion of Merit for his performance as base commander from August, 1971 until yesterday.

Magee Trial Halted For Ruling On Clark

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The murder trial of Ruchell Magee was halted today while the California Supreme Court decides if former U.S. Attorney General Ramsey Clark can aid in his defense.

The high court intervened in the three-month-old trial yesterday, staying proceedings indefinitely until it ruled on the judge's refusal to allow Clark to participate as co-counsel.

Magee, 33, a San Quentin convict, was charged with murder and kidnaping in the 1970 Marin County Hall of Justice shoot-out which ended with the deaths of Judge Harold J. Haley and three other men.

Black revolutionary Angela Davis was acquitted of similar charges last year.

Four justices of the Supreme Court granted a hearing on a petition filed by Magee's court-appointed attorney, Robert Carrow, after Superior Court Judge Morton Colvin refused for a third time to allow Clark to act as Carrow's associate.

"We've alleged that the trial court's action was a purposeful attempt to obstruct a meaningful defense," said Carrow after the judge recessed the trial. "This was apparent from the reasoning of the court for not accepting Ramsey Clark because the court was not familiar with his competence or qualifications."

Clark, who has been working on Magee's case on an unpaid basis, wanted to help present a "diminished capacity" defense, calling psychologists and psychiatrists to the stand who would testify that Magee participated in the abortive 1970 escape attempt because he was psychologically incapable of resisting the opportunity.

Prosecutor Albert W. Harris Jr., who took no position on Clark's involvement in the case, said he would not participate in the Supreme Court proceedings, but hoped the matter "could be handled quite rapidly." The San Francisco city attorney's office will represent Judge Colvin.

Carrow had a psychiatrist on the stand testifying about Magee's "diminished capacity" to distinguish right from wrong when the Supreme Court order halted proceedings. The defense started presenting its case this week.

Council Orders Pier Be Saved

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — The City Council did an about face Wednesday and voted to allow the landmark Santa Monica pier to remain standing after earlier dooming it to destruction.

By a 6-0 vote, the council also ordered the appointment of a citizens committee March 13 to draw up plans for future use of the waterfront area and pier.

The council let stand, however, a previous order that the adjacent Newcomb Pier, on which most of the pier businesses are located, be torn down before Nov. 1.

Horse Show Winners Are Named

Out of 135 entries, nine Marin and Southern Sonoma county youths won 17 first place trophies last weekend in the Marin Mounted 4-H Club's 23rd annual All-Junior Horse Show, it was announced yesterday.

There were two triple ties for first place awards in the show at the Circle V showgrounds in Fairfax. Linda Bowman of San Rafael, Cina Huppert of San Anselmo and Lisa Murphy of Fairfax tied for first place in English 4-H halter class. Gail Nuttman of San Anselmo and Misses Bowman and Murphy tied for first place in western 4-H halter class.

Miss Bowman also took first place in hunter hacks, hunt seat equitation and novice pleasure classes. She had the most points in the English class.

Miss Murphy also won in the trail horse and open pleasure classes. She was high point rider in the western class.

Melanie Pervier of Sausalito took first in Barbara Worth good seat and hands, working hunters, hunter hacks, hunt seat equitation and pleasure horse hunter type classes.

A $1,500 Settlement For Fireworks Burns

A teen-ager, whose burns from fireworks residue in 1970 led to cancellation of Larkspur's and Corte Madera's Fourth of July fireworks display last year, settled his lawsuit against the cities yesterday for $1,500.

Judge Charles Read Best of Marin Superior Court approved the compromise claim for 16-year-old Wayne Allen York of Larkspur and dismissed his $20,000 damage suit.

York's mother, June York McOwien, filed suit Feb. 24, 1972, claiming her son suffered burns on his face and hands because the cities and Pyrotronics Corp. failed to clean up dangerous fireworks remains after the holiday display in 1970.

York was hospitalized for five days with first and second degree burns after he set fire July 5, 1970, to phosphorus in Larkspur's Piper Park.

A female companion was treated for facial burns.

Judge Best ordered $561 of the money paid for attorney fees and costs, and $246 given to Mrs. McOwien for medical expenses. The rest was to go into a trust fund until York reaches 18.

Suspected Auto Thief Arrested

A 27-year-old man, Don Edward Fleischer, of no known address, was arrested on suspicion of auto theft and obstructing a police officer, by Larkspur police yesterday at 5:45 p.m.

Fleischer was booked into Marin county jail in lieu of $5,000 bail and held to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Larkspur police said Fleischer was spotted by an officer working on a 1969 blue Volkswagen at 2166 Redwood Highway which had been reported stolen from San Rafael.

Fleischer leaped from the patrol car once he'd been arrested, said police, and was captured by the officer who chased him towards Greenbrae Boardwalk. The policeman was assisted by a witness.

Marin City Claims Nurse Is Too Old

The Marin City Council has called for the ouster of the county public health nurse assigned to the community on the grounds that she "is too old to meet the demands of the job."

Chairman Melvin Atkins said the group agreed on Monday to write to the county health department asking that Marian Taylor be replaced. "The job's just too much for her age," Atkins told the Independent-Journal.

Miss Taylor, 64, also serves Strawberry, Sausalito and Belvedere-Tiburon area. She has been assigned to Southern Marin for the past 19 years and plans to retire at the end of September.

"I'm not surprised at anything that group would do," Miss Taylor said in response to the council action. "I'm probably more agile than a good many of them," she added.

Miss Taylor conducts child health clinics in Marin City, makes home visits and provides advice and referrals to physicians and other agencies to those who need such assistance.

In other business, the council set a special meeting for 8 p.m. Monday in Manzanita Center to hear complaints by tenants of the community's public housing against the Marin County Housing Authority.

Atkins said the session was called because of increasing complaints about the authority.

"People have told that the garbage is not being picked up regularly and that some are being overcharged for electricity," Atkins said. "In addition, we have received complaints that tenants are being ordered evicted out of the blue and given only a few days to move out."

The council also agreed to write a letter to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, asking for a probe of the authority's hiring and firing practices.

"There are new people being hired by the authority every other week and nobody from Marin City gets a chance at the jobs," according to Atkins. He said that some persons have been fired from authority jobs with "only one or two hours notice."

Driver Not Hurt; Auto Into Church

A car driven by a woman, who apparently fell asleep at the whee, according to police, crashed into the Seventh Day Adventist Church and School at San Marin Drive and Simmons Lane, Novato, last night.

The car, westbound on San Marin Drive and driven by Marilyn Kay Galloway, 36, of 419 Estado Way, Novato, crashed into the building at 10:45 p.m. police said. It smashed a hole, 12 feet by 8 feet, into the side of the building and went about eight feet inside, causing an undetermined amount of damage.

Mrs. Galloway escaped without injury, police said.

Officers said she apparently fell asleep as she was approaching Simmons Lane and the car went into a drainage ditch on the north shoulder, then up a three-foot embankment and across Simmons onto church property, knocking down a sign, six feet by two feet, before hitting the building.

The car went into the east side of the south wing of the building, into a room known as the junior room.

Smog Board Panel Listed Pared To 12

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — A flood of some 230 Bay Area citizens, many admittedly inspired by the prospect of making money while fighting air pollution, yesterday swamped smog officials with applications for a key hearing board.

Air Pollution Control District directors slashed away for hours at a foot-high stack of applications and resumes, whittling it down to 12 persons who will be interviewed for appointment to the hearing board. Two will be chosen for addition to the board recently expanded to five members by the Legislature.

The quasijudicial board hears pleas for exemptions from district regulations, issues abatement orders and initiates legal proceedings against violators.

A public invitation last month for applications noted that board members are paid $100 a meeting, for a total annual pay averaging almost $5,000.

The three incumbents will be reappointed: Charles Kruger, a professor of mechanical engineering at Stanford University; Napa attorney Ralph Trower, a former district director, and Theodore Cleveland, a consulting chemical engineer and a former member of the advisory council.

The list finally was pared to four doctors to be considered for the medical slot and eight others.

The four doctors to be interviewed are: Glen W. Kent, Contra Costa County's health officer; Rodney Beard, head of the division of preventive medicine at Stanford University Medical School; Kathryn Smick, tuberculosis and chronic pulmonary disease physician at Contra Costa County Hospital, and James Malcolm, retired head of the Alameda County Public Health Department.

The eight selected for interviews for the public slot are:

Kenneth A. Manaster, assistant professor of law at the University of Santa Clara; C. William Moore, a mechanical engineer at Sandia Laboratory at Livermore; Madyln W. Stein, a research assistant at the University of California Medical Center.

And Hortense Vasquez, a research chemist at International Business Machines in San Jose; Donna S. Souza of Walnut Creek, an active member of the League of Women Voters; Cheriel M. Jensen of Santa Clara, a design consultant; Roger B. Sperling, a San Francisco mechanical engineer, and E. Robert Stallings, retired San Mateo County administrator.

The interviews will be held next Wednesday afternoon.

Tools, Equipment Reported Stolen

Tools and electrical equipment worth $202 were stolen from a San Rafael sailboat company, police reported today.

Police said an air vent had been pried open at Performance Sailcraft, 33 Duffy Place, it was reported yesterday.

Marin City Claims Nurse Is Too Old

The Marin City Council has called for the ouster of the county public health nurse assigned to the community on the grounds that she "is too old to meet the demands of the job."

Chairman Melvin Atkins said the group agreed on Monday to write to the county health department asking that Marian Taylor be replaced. "The job's just too much for her age," Atkins told the Independent-Journal.

Miss Taylor, 64, also serves Strawberry, Sausalito and Belvedere-Tiburon area. She has been assigned to Southern Marin for the past 19 years and plans to retire at the end of September.

"I'm not surprised at anything that group would do," Miss Taylor said in response to the council action. "I'm probably more agile than a good many of them," she added.

Miss Taylor conducts child health clinics in Marin City, makes home visits and provides advice and referrals to physicians and other agencies to those who need such assistance.

In other business, the council set a special meeting for 8 p.m. Monday in Manzanita Center to hear complaints by tenants of the community's public housing against the Marin County Housing Authority.

Atkins said the session was called because of increasing complaints about the authority.

"People have told that the garbage is not being picked up regularly and that some are being overcharged for electricity," Atkins said. "In addition, we have received complaints that tenants are being ordered evicted out of the blue and given only a few days to move out."

The council also agreed to write a letter to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, asking for a probe of the authority's hiring and firing practices.

"There are new people being hired by the authority every other week and nobody from Marin City gets a chance at the jobs," according to Atkins. He said that some persons have been fired from authority jobs with "only one or two hours notice."

Driver Not Hurt; Auto Into Church

A car driven by a woman, who apparently fell asleep at the whee, according to police, crashed into the Seventh Day Adventist Church and School at San Marin Drive and Simmons Lane, Novato, last night.

The car, westbound on San Marin Drive and driven by Marilyn Kay Galloway, 36, of 419 Estado Way, Novato, crashed into the building at 10:45 p.m. police said. It smashed a hole, 12 feet by 8 feet, into the side of the building and went about eight feet inside, causing an undetermined amount of damage.

Mrs. Galloway escaped without injury, police said.

Officers said she apparently fell asleep as she was approaching Simmons Lane and the car went into a drainage ditch on the north shoulder, then up a three-foot embankment and across Simmons onto church property, knocking down a sign, six feet by two feet, before hitting the building.

The car went into the east side of the south wing of the building, into a room known as the junior room.

Smog Board Panel Listed Pared To 12

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — A flood of some 230 Bay Area citizens, many admittedly inspired by the prospect of making money while fighting air pollution, yesterday swamped smog officials with applications for a key hearing board.

Air Pollution Control District directors slashed away for hours at a foot-high stack of applications and resumes, whittling it down to 12 persons who will be interviewed for appointment to the hearing board. Two will be chosen for addition to the board recently expanded to five members by the Legislature.

The quasijudicial board hears pleas for exemptions from district regulations, issues abatement orders and initiates legal proceedings against violators.

A public invitation last month for applications noted that board members are paid $100 a meeting, for a total annual pay averaging almost $5,000.

The three incumbents will be reappointed: Charles Kruger, a professor of mechanical engineering at Stanford University; Napa attorney Ralph Trower, a former district director, and Theodore Cleveland, a consulting chemical engineer and a former member of the advisory council.

The list finally was pared to four doctors to be considered for the medical slot and eight others.

The four doctors to be interviewed are: Glen W. Kent, Contra Costa County's health officer; Rodney Beard, head of the division of preventive medicine at Stanford University Medical School; Kathryn Smick, tuberculosis and chronic pulmonary disease physician at Contra Costa County Hospital, and James Malcolm, retired head of the Alameda County Public Health Department.

The eight selected for interviews for the public slot are:

Kenneth A. Manaster, assistant professor of law at the University of Santa Clara; C. William Moore, a mechanical engineer at Sandia Laboratory at Livermore; Madyln W. Stein, a research assistant at the University of California Medical Center.

And Hortense Vasquez, a research chemist at International Business Machines in San Jose; Donna S. Souza of Walnut Creek, an active member of the League of Women Voters; Cheriel M. Jensen of Santa Clara, a design consultant; Roger B. Sperling, a San Francisco mechanical engineer, and E. Robert Stallings, retired San Mateo County administrator.

The interviews will be held next Wednesday afternoon.

Many Meanings To 'Redevelopment'

Many things go by the name of "redevelopment."

This should be born in mind with "redevelopment fever" spreading among Marin's cities.

San Rafael, first city in Marin to invoke the 1952 California Community Redevelopment Act, chose what might be termed the classic approach. It also is the approach for which the act and its accompanying constitutional amendment were designed.

The constitutional amendment, adopted also in 1952, permits diversion of taxes from assessment increases to redevelopment. The Community Redevelopment Act provides that such diversion may be used to rehabilitate an area found by the city's redevelopment agency to be a blighted area.

THE ACT WAS aimed primarily at rehabilitating two types of neighborhoods: residential slums and deteriorating business districts. The "old downtowns" of some of California's larger cities already were in trouble by 1952.

San Rafael chose to apply the act primarily to the downtown and the often-derided Francisco Boulevard commercial strip. It found these to be blighted areas. They certainly fit the definition as applied elsewhere, and as upheld in court tests of the act.

Corte Madera and Larkspur, however, have taken different approaches.

IN CORTE MADERA, the area proposed for redevelopment is not, in the main, developed at all. It is raw land, on which an investor intends to build a major shopping center.

The public improvements proposed to be funded from tax diversion in Corte Madera would be largely for the benefit of the developer and tenants of the shopping center — which is not yet in being. They would in part consist of improvements which it is customary for the developer to finance.

Rather than rehabilitating a blighted area, the Corte Madera plan appears very likely to create one: the present Corte Madera Shopping Center, developed with private funds. Some of its tenants already have announced plans to move to the new center, if and when it is built.

LARKSPUR USED a "catch-all" approach in its redevelopment program. It included within the redevelopment area the old downtown, the Bon Air Shopping Center and adjacent lands on which the owners hope to expand that center, and the San Quentin Peninsula portion of the city, which now is mostly bare land but is being eyed for major developments.

The Larkspur plan thus may be partially self-defeating. Public improvements to serve an enlarged Bon Air Center would be likely to further blight the old downtown. Those on the San Quentin Peninsula portion would, like those in Corte Madera, chiefly benefit new developers who ordinarily would be expected to bear their own costs.

INCLUSION OF bare lands in "redevelopment" has been upheld in court tests. However, what cannot be blighted since it is unbuilt and uninhabited is not actually subject to redevelopment. Only what has once been developed can be redeveloped — in fact if not in legalese.

It appears that Larkspur and Corte Madera are using their redevelopment plans largely in a battle to see which one can win a major shopping center. Actual redevelopment has been largely left out.

Reagan Seeks To Preclude Taxation Breaking Point

By EARL G. WATERS

Oppressive taxation, history records, ultimately results in the fall of government. Either the victims of excessive taxation pack up and leave or they revolt. In either case the government collapses.

An early example of this is told in Exodus. To escape the Pharoah's oppression, the Israelites migrated and the mighty Rameses faded. The American colonists' revolt against the king was sparked by unjust taxation.

While there has been no open revolt in modern America over taxes, there has been a good bit of quiet migration. Many individuals have moved to other places to escape taxes.

The country has recently awakened to the disastrous effects upon the dollar brought about in part by the exodus of giant corporation capital into foreign lands. With the capital have gone many jobs formerly available to Americans.

California has witnessed some migration of business from the state to places where taxes are more favorable.

THERE IS NO DOUBT that the knowledge of such events is the motivation for Governor Reagan's desire to nail down state spending by enacting a limit on taxes.

Perhaps the mechanics of Reagan's proposal need perfecting. But the idea of pegging future spending to present levels of taxation is not bad. What Reagan seems to be saying is that since the current expenditures equal X percentage of the gross state income, that percentage should be made the lid.

This is not a dollar budget limitation as some have charged. If, by reason of population growth or increased prosperity, the gross state income rises, then the budget can be enlarged.

It is incontrovertible that without a ceiling, the budget will continue to climb and the tax burden will become heavier and heavier. For, as the eminent Professor C. Northcote Parkinson has said, "Expenditures rise to meet income." And taxes will be imposed to meet expenditures.

IT IS ALSO absolute that there is a limit to taxation beyond which there is a breaking point.

Exactly at what level this point of refusal occurs can be argued. For some individuals and corporations it already has.

In the empires of ancient times migration was relatively simple. Today, mass migration is not so easy and the taxpayers generally are captive.

But as the Victorian econimist J. R. McCulloch wrote, "Oppression either raises men into heroes or sinks them into slaves; and taxation, according to its magnitude and the mode in which it is imposed, either makes men industrious, enterprising and wealthy, or indolent, dispirited and impoverished."

Thomas Jefferson warned, "I place economy among the first and most important virtues, and public debt as the greatest of dangers . . . To preserve our independence we must not let our rulers load us with public debt . . . If we can prevent the government from wasting the labor of the people under the pretense of caring for them, they will be happy."

As Parkinson states: "There is clearly, somewhere, a line to be drawn . . . Taxation should stop at that point."

It is this "line to be dran", the point at which taxation should stop. that the governor is seeking.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Questionnaire Not Prepared By Town

The Corte Madera Town Meeting has prepared questionnaires which are being circulated throughout Corte Madera at this time. According to the forwarding letter, the questions are to gather information directly from Corte Madera residents to "relate attitudes", etc.

The first paragraph of the covering letter states this is a "survey put together by the Corte Madera Town Meeting Association with the assistance of homeowners associations, PTA's, the Corte Madera Women's Improvement Club, Sedway-Cooke, the Corte Madera Park and Recreation Commission, town staff, and the town's general plan study committee."

While members of the town staff, Sedway-Cooke, members of the park and recreation commission, or members of the town's general plan study committee may have been asked to submit questions to the effort initiated by the Town Meeting Association, the questions as presented in the survey being ciruclated have not been reviewed or commented upon by the town staff or anybody responsible to the town council.

'It All Depends Whose Ox Is Gored'

It strikes me as ironic that the bleeding hearts in the Congress who beat their breasts about the effects of inflation on the public are the same men who now condemn the President for his attempt to curb governmental spending, the major cause of inflation. Everyone wants the budget cut it seems just so long as their pet projects are not the ones under the knife. To these men I say, keep your Medicare, farm subsidies, school aid programs etc., and cut my taxes and leave me and the rest of us alone. We elect you to run certain facets of the society, not our lives.

Only Pilots Of 747 Get That Top Pay

Mr. Peterzell does me and the other 40,000 airline pilots a disservice in his column of Feb. 19. After several paragraphs alluding to government and political scandals, shortcomings and waste he winds up the day with a reference to 600 highly paid airline pilots under, "Would you believe it . . ." I find the implied connection very onerous. In addition to committing an insult by inference he also commits a sin of omission. He does not mention that 600 pilots represents one and a half per cent of the 40,000 in the country. Their average salary is less than half that $68,000 figure. Their hours worked is considerably higher than 47.5.

But that's only part of the story.

The simple comparison of the years 1965 and 1972 is done without mentioning that the Boeing 747 came into widespread use in 1970 and 1971. Pilots are paid according to the equipment they operate. A 747 is over twice as large as the 707 or DC-8, is faster, and is almost three times as productive a machine. In addition it costs about three times as much as a 707. The top 600 now fly this airplane. Note: their salaries did not triple.

Let me quote from a recent article by C.V. Glines in the Airline Pilot magazine: "There's a common misconception that airline pilots fly only a few hours a month and play golf the rest of the time. Those unfamiliar with the profession haven't heard about the many hours consumed in simulator training, ground school courses, and check rides, not to mention time used in flight planning, getting briefed and debriefed. Total time spent on the various aspects of the job total about 160 hours, or four 40-hour weeks each month, the same as most breadwinning Americans" . . .

Water District Should Preserve Salt Marshes

The Corte Madera Marshlands (both diked and undiked) east of Highway 101, part of which the Hahn Co. of Los Angeles proposes to fill, are the last remaining significant marshlands in all of urban Marin. Their importance to the health and welfare of nearby residents as well as their absolute necessity for the biologic and hydrologic integrity of the area are well known. It would indeed be shortsighted to fill these lands; even the diked areas must eventually be restored to fully viable marsh.

Half of these marshes, extending up to Kentfield, have already been filled and the creek channeled, pushing the natural process of winter flooding downstream onto Highway 101. If the remaining marshes are filled, the life of Corte Madera Bay will be greatly shortened.

Recent laws make it possible for Marin Municipal Water District to take a positive plning and advisory role through countywide planning in the management of all water resources — including salt marsh.

There are strong health and water quality reasons why the MMWD should refuse pipeline extensions for developments proposed for viable or restorable marshlands or overflow areas. . .

Vietnam War Itself On Trial In Pentagon Papers Case

LOS ANGELES — The fate of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo Jr. hangs in the balance here, as this is written, in one of the most complex and far-reaching trials in American judicial history.

The government contends that nothing more than criminal charges, espionage, theft and conspiracy are at issue in the copying and distribution by the two defendants of the pentagon papers. Yet, no one can doubt that if Ellsberg and Russo are convicted on one or more of the 15 counts of the indictment and their conviction upheld by the Supreme Court, the shadow of secrecy and suppression will be felt at every level of government. With the hailing of reporters for refusing to disclose confidentiality of sources — with two notable cases here in California — state courts are beginning to close their doors to the coverage of trials that would normally be open. Those most concerned with keeping the channels open describe it as a contagion of suppression.

WHAT IS MOST impressive in the great gray cliff of the federal courts building here is the power of the federal government as it has been marshalled in this case. It is all there — the FBI, the Department of Justice, the top military — felt if not seen in the subdued aqueous light, the careful silence of courtroom No. 19.

As a manifestation of that power, the defense has charged the prosecution with deliberately withholding a document that would have refuted testimony on the damage done to national security by release of the Pentagon study of decision-document was an affidavit by an analyst for the Central Intelligence Agency stating that figures giving Communist strength at the time of the Tet offensive in 1968 had been fabricated in December of 1967. Lt. Gen. William G. Depuy, a government witness, had previously testified that releasing the Joint Chiefs of Staff study of the Communist order of battle would have helped Hanoi.

At times, as in this instance, the atmosphere in courtroom No. 19 is strangely unreal. The phantoms of that longest and most divisive of all wars are summoned out of the past by the defense and the prosecution.

THE RECORD PILES UP in a whole library of volumes. At 3 a.m. each day, the transcript of the day before is available. The young volunteers working for defense counsel collect it and comb it over preparatory to more of the same.

The cost is astronomical. At last report the defense was $60,000 in the hole. Chief Defense Counsel Leonard B. Bouding has three associates and Russo has two lawyers. A small army of researchers and secretaries does the spade work. Money to foot the bill is raised by a variety of fund-raising devices, always falling behind the need.

The prosecution having presented the case against the defendants in two months, the defense now takes ovr. Six to seven weeks will be taken up with a procession of witnesses who will testify not only that no damage was done to national security but that Ellsberg and Russo served the right to know in exposing the bland optimism of the decision-makers in public as contrasted with their continuous escalation of the war.

The service to the nation in the revelation of the Pentagon Papers, the defense will contend, is to show the catastrophe of secret and private presidential wars — in this case an unwinnable war that divided the nation, alienated world opinion, and threatended at times a third world holocaust. In a sense the verdict will be passed on the war itself, those who prosecuted it and those who opposed it.

WEEK AFTER WEEK, month after month, the jury sits in impassive silence listening to technicalities of the law that seem at times to confuse even the battery of lawyers on opposing sides of the counsel table. Ten women and two men — of the latter, one is one black and one Chicano — are average citizens such as jury panels turn up.

How these 12 men and women can separate the emotions of the war, their prejudices whether dove or hawk, from the allegation of criminality is the question that will press harder as the day of summation and then decision draws nearer. The prosecution holds to the narrow line of criminality, making out the defendants as thieves and saboteurs.

In the weeks ahead the defense will try to paint a portrait of men motivated by stern conscience to reveal to the nation the duplicity and deceit that generated the tragedy of Vietnam. The fate of the two individuals to one side, the verdict when it comes can only accentuate the divisiveness which is one of the tragic consequences of the war.

WASHINGTON COMMENT

Press, Unlike The Government, Operates In Goldfish Bowl

By GODFREY SPERLING Jr.

WASHINGTON — Sometimes rather small but acute comments help to illuminate big issues. Recently New York Times columnist James Reston observed that if judges actually got their hands on reporters' notes through their power of subpoena, they probably couldn't read them anyway. Mr. Reston thus discloses a deep and dark trade secret, held close to the bosom of most of us in this profession — that our squibbles and homemade shorthand efforts are indecipherable by others and, unless we interpret them fairly quickly, they become "cold" and indecipherable even to ourselves. When my wife or my children see one of my old notebooks, they laugh — loudly and rudely. So I usually keep them out of sight.

Now another reporter has come along and made a brief but cogent comment on the problems of the press. Reflecting on growing evidence of public dissatisfaction with the Fourth Estate, this newsman said: "I think there is a tremendous check and balance against excesses by reporters that most people overlook — and it is this: every time I sit down to write a story, I am quite conscious that several hundred thousand readers are looking over my shoulder, watching my every word. If I am not accurat, if I am not fair, if I am not balanced, I will hear from them — and so will my editors."

HAVE YOUR EVER thought about this? What if you were a housewife and you had all those people checking on you as you tended the baby, washed dishes, cleaned house? What if you were a surgeon, a lawyer, a carpenter, or a plumber — or whatever — with a vast audience watching your every move? If this kind of mass scrutiny did not completely unsettle you, wouldn't it tend to make you try to do an even better job than usual? But you can also be sure that no matter how conscientious you were, you would get a lot of letters telling you how you had done it all wrong, or at least, partly wrong.

Further, what if the public kept such a minute-by-minute watch over the ethical practices of professions other than the press —such as lawyers, doctors, businessmen, just to name a few? Can't you think of some who might have to go out of business if they were — as reporters are daily — subjected to this kind of mass-audience judgment?

Thus, the press operates in a goldfish bowl where all our blemishes — and they are many, to be sure — are there for everyone to see. But government, like an iceberg, operates mostly beneath the surface. The reporter's job is to bring government out into the open, so that the public can view it.

THOSE OF US in the press who are called upon to speak from time to time are usually grilled hard these days on what many people see as the growing unreliability of newsmen and newspapers, together with radio and television. It makes us very aware of what some recent polls have been showing: that the press has hit a new low in its public credibility rating.

No doubt about it, we must do a better job. Better research. Better writing — fairer, more accurate. But limiting the press in its freedom is not the answer. Our Founding Fathers in putting into effect the grand experiment — democracy — knew that if the people were to govern intelligently they must have access to a free flow of information on what was going on and, particularly, on what their elected leaders were doing. The public's right to know — not the press, itself — was thus protected by the First Amendment. Hence it is clear that any restraint imposed on the free flow of information is, first of all, a restraint on the public's right to know. Some people miss this point. Madison very early underscored this truth, writing that no way had been found to curb the press without restricting our democracy.

NOW THE REPORTER'S right to protect his sources is under question. If government sources can't, on occasion, talk confidentially to reporters, the public loses. The government worker who is critical of the way business is being conducted in his shop usually won't talk to reporters unless his anonymity is insured.

He is unwilling to face the prospect of reprisals from his bosses from such a disclosure.

So if this confidential relationship is no longer certain, the public gets nothing but the official government version of what is going on. And who wants to rely solely on what our leaders want us to believe? Thus, the public's right to know — indeed, its need to know — is clearly wiped out if "adverse" sources dry up. Yes, I admit to a bias here, being a member of the press. But you, the reader, should be biased, too — for insofar as we, the press, bring your government out into the open, we are serving you and your right to know.

While there has been no open revolt in modern America over taxes, there has been a good bit of quiet migration. Many individuals have moved to other places to escape taxes.

The country has recently awakened to the disastrous effects upon the dollar brought about in part by the exodus of giant corporation capital into foreign lands. With the capital have gone many jobs formerly available to Americans.

California has witnessed some migration of business from the state to places where taxes are more favorable.

THERE IS NO DOUBT that the knowledge of such events is the motivation for Governor Reagan's desire to nail down state spending by enacting a limit on taxes.

Perhaps the mechanics of Reagan's proposal need perfecting. But the idea of pegging future spending to present levels of taxation is not bad. What Reagan seems to be saying is that since the current expenditures equal X percentage of the gross state income, that percentage should be made the lid.

This is not a dollar budget limitation as some have charged. If, by reason of population growth or increased prosperity, the gross state income rises, then the budget can be enlarged.

It is incontrovertible that without a ceiling, the budget will continue to climb and the tax burden will become heavier and heavier. For, as the eminent Professor C. Northcote Parkinson has said, "Expenditures rise to meet income." And taxes will be imposed to meet expenditures.

IT IS ALSO absolute that there is a limit to taxation beyond which there is a breaking point.

Exactly at what level this point of refusal occurs can be argued. For some individuals and corporations it already has.

In the empires of ancient times migration was relatively simple. Today, mass migration is not so easy and the taxpayers generally are captive.

But as the Victorian econimist J. R. McCulloch wrote, "Oppression either raises men into heroes or sinks them into slaves; and taxation, according to its magnitude and the mode in which it is imposed, either makes men industrious, enterprising and wealthy, or indolent, dispirited and impoverished."

Thomas Jefferson warned, "I place economy among the first and most important virtues, and public debt as the greatest of dangers . . . To preserve our independence we must not let our rulers load us with public debt . . . If we can prevent the government from wasting the labor of the people under the pretense of caring for them, they will be happy."

As Parkinson states: "There is clearly, somewhere, a line to be drawn . . . Taxation should stop at that point."

It is this "line to be dran", the point at which taxation should stop, that the governor is seeking.

It strikes me as ironic that the bleeding hearts in the Congress who beat their breasts about the effects of inflation on the public are the same men who now condemn the President for his attempt to curb governmental spending, the major cause of inflation. Everyone wants the budget cut it seems just so long as their pet projects are not the ones under the knife. Only Pilots Of 747 Get That Top Pay

Mr. Peterzell does me and the other 40,000 airline pilots a disservice in his column of Feb. 19. After several paragraphs alluding to government and political scandals, shortcomings and waste he winds up the day with a reference to 600 highly paid airline pilots under, "Would you believe it . . ." I find the implied connection very onerous. In addition to committing an insult by inference he also commits a sin of omission. He does not mention that 600 pilots represents one and a half per cent of the 40,000 in the country. Their average salary is less than half that $68,000 figure. Their hours worked is considerably higher than 47.5.

But that's only part of the story.

The simple comparison of the years 1965 and 1972 is done without mentioning that the Boeing 747 came into widespread use in 1970 and 1971. Pilots are paid according to the equipment they operate. A 747 is over twice as large as the 707 or DC-8, is faster, and is almost three times as productive a machine. In addition it costs about three times as much as a 707. The top 600 now fly this airplane. Note: their salaries did not triple.

Let me quote from a recent article by C.V. Glines in the Airline Pilot magazine: "There's a common misconception that airline pilots fly only a few hours a month and play golf the rest of the time. Those unfamiliar with the profession haven't heard about the many hours consumed in simulator training, ground school courses, and check rides, not to mention time used in flight planning, getting briefed and debriefed. Total time spent on the various aspects of the job total about 160 hours, or four 40-hour weeks each month, the same as most breadwinning Americans" . . .

Water District Should Preserve Salt Marshes

The Corte Madera Marshlands (both diked and undiked) east of Highway 101, part of which the Hahn Co. of Los Angeles proposes to fill, are the last remaining significant marshlands in all of urban Marin. Their importance to the health and welfare of nearby residents as well as their absolute necessity for the biologic and hydrologic integrity of the area are well known. It would indeed be shortsighted to fill these lands; even the diked areas must eventually be restored to fully viable marsh.

Half of these marshes, extending up to Kentfield, have already been filled and the creek channeled, pushing the natural process of winter flooding downstream onto Highway 101. If the remaining marshes are filled, the life of Corte Madera Bay will be greatly shortened.

Recent laws make it possible for Marin Municipal Water District to take a positive plning and advisory role through countywide planning in the management of all water resources — including salt marsh.

There are strong health and water quality reasons why the MMWD should refuse pipeline extensions for developments proposed for viable or restorable marshlands or overflow areas. . .

Vietnam War Itself On Trial In Pentagon Papers Case

LOS ANGELES — The fate of Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo Jr. hangs in the balance here, as this is written, in one of the most complex and far-reaching trials in American judicial history.

The government contends that nothing more than criminal charges, espionage, theft and conspiracy are at issue in the copying and distribution by the two defendants of the pentagon papers. Yet, no one can doubt that if Ellsberg and Russo are convicted on one or more of the 15 counts of the indictment and their conviction upheld by the Supreme Court, the shadow of secrecy and suppression will be felt at every level of government. With the hailing of reporters for refusing to disclose confidentiality of sources — with two notable cases here in California — state courts are beginning to close their doors to the coverage of trials that would normally be open. Those most concerned with keeping the channels open describe it as a contagion of suppression.

WHAT IS MOST impressive in the great gray cliff of the federal courts building here is the power of the federal government as it has been marshalled in this case. It is all there — the FBI, the Department of Justice, the top military — felt if not seen in the subdued aqueous light, the careful silence of courtroom No. 19.

As a manifestation of that power, the defense has charged the prosecution with deliberately withholding a document that would have refuted testimony on the damage done to national security by release of the Pentagon study of decision-document was an affidavit by an analyst for the Central Intelligence Agency stating that figures giving Communist strength at the time of the Tet offensive in 1968 had been fabricated in December of 1967. Lt. Gen. William G. Depuy, a government witness, had previously testified that releasing the Joint Chiefs of Staff study of the Communist order of battle would have helped Hanoi.

At times, as in this instance, the atmosphere in courtroom No. 19 is strangely unreal. The phantoms of that longest and most divisive of all wars are summoned out of the past by the defense and the prosecution.

THE RECORD PILES UP in a whole library of volumes. At 3 a.m. each day, the transcript of the day before is available. The young volunteers working for defense counsel collect it and comb it over preparatory to more of the same.

The cost is astronomical. At last report the defense was $60,000 in the hole. Chief Defense Counsel Leonard B. Bouding has three associates and Russo has two lawyers. A small army of researchers and secretaries does the spade work. Money to foot the bill is raised by a variety of fund-raising devices, always falling behind the need.

The prosecution having presented the case against the defendants in two months, the defense now takes ovr. Six to seven weeks will be taken up with a procession of witnesses who will testify not only that no damage was done to national security but that Ellsberg and Russo served the right to know in exposing the bland optimism of the decision-makers in public as contrasted with their continuous escalation of the war.

The service to the nation in the revelation of the Pentagon Papers, the defense will contend, is to show the catastrophe of secret and private presidential wars — in this case an unwinnable war that divided the nation, alienated world opinion, and threatended at times a third world holocaust. In a sense the verdict will be passed on the war itself, those who prosecuted it and those who opposed it.

WEEK AFTER WEEK, month after month, the jury sits in impassive silence listening to technicalities of the law that seem at times to confuse even the battery of lawyers on opposing sides of the counsel table. Ten women and two men — of the latter, one is one black and one Chicano — are average citizens such as jury panels turn up.

How these 12 men and women can separate the emotions of the war, their prejudices whether dove or hawk, from the allegation of criminality is the question that will press harder as the day of summation and then decision draws nearer. The prosecution holds to the narrow line of criminality, making out the defendants as thieves and saboteurs.

In the weeks ahead the defense will try to paint a portrait of men motivated by stern conscience to reveal to the nation the duplicity and deceit that generated the tragedy of Vietnam. The fate of the two individuals to one side, the verdict when it comes can only accentuate the divisiveness which is one of the tragic consequences of the war.

WASHINGTON COMMENT

Press, Unlike The Government, Operates In Goldfish Bowl

By GODFREY SPERLING Jr.

WASHINGTON — Sometimes rather small but acute comments help to illuminate big issues. Recently New York Times columnist James Reston observed that if judges actually got their hands on reporters' notes through their power of subpoena, they probably couldn't read them anyway. Mr. Reston thus discloses a deep and dark trade secret, held close to the bosom of most of us in this profession — that our squibbles and homemade shorthand efforts are indecipherable by others and, unless we interpret them fairly quickly, they become "cold" and indecipherable even to ourselves. When my wife or my children see one of my old notebooks, they laugh — loudly and rudely. So I usually keep them out of sight.

Now another reporter has come along and made a brief but cogent comment on the problems of the press. Reflecting on growing evidence of public dissatisfaction with the Fourth Estate, this newsman said: "I think there is a tremendous check and balance against excesses by reporters that most people overlook — and it is this: every time I sit down to write a story, I am quite conscious that several hundred thousand readers are looking over my shoulder, watching my every word. If I am not accurat, if I am not fair, if I am not balanced, I will hear from them — and so will my editors."

HAVE YOUR EVER thought about this? What if you were a housewife and you had all those people checking on you as you tended the baby, washed dishes, cleaned house? What if you were a surgeon, a lawyer, a carpenter, or a plumber — or whatever — with a vast audience watching your every move? If this kind of mass scrutiny did not completely unsettle you, wouldn't it tend to make you try to do an even better job than usual? But you can also be sure that no matter how conscientious you were, you would get a lot of letters telling you how you had done it all wrong, or at least, partly wrong.

Further, what if the public kept such a minute-by-minute watch over the ethical practices of professions other than the press —such as lawyers, doctors, businessmen, just to name a few? Can't you think of some who might have to go out of business if they were — as reporters are daily — subjected to this kind of mass-audience judgment?

Thus, the press operates in a goldfish bowl where all our blemishes — and they are many, to be sure — are there for everyone to see. But government, like an iceberg, operates mostly beneath the surface. The reporter's job is to bring government out into the open, so that the public can view it.

THOSE OF US in the press who are called upon to speak from time to time are usually grilled hard these days on what many people see as the growing unreliability of newsmen and newspapers, together with radio and television. It makes us very aware of what some recent polls have been showing: that the press has hit a new low in its public credibility rating.

No doubt about it, we must do a better job. Better research. Better writing — fairer, more accurate. But limiting the press in its freedom is not the answer. Our Founding Fathers in putting into effect the grand experiment — democracy — knew that if the people were to govern intelligently they must have access to a free flow of information on what was going on and, particularly, on what their elected leaders were doing. The public's right to know — not the press, itself — was thus protected by the First Amendment. Hence it is clear that any restraint imposed on the free flow of information is, first of all, a restraint on the public's right to know. Some people miss this point. Madison very early underscored this truth, writing that no way had been found to curb the press without restricting our democracy.

NOW THE REPORTER'S right to protect his sources is under question. If government sources can't, on occasion, talk confidentially to reporters, the public loses. The government worker who is critical of the way business is being conducted in his shop usually won't talk to reporters unless his anonymity is insured.

He is unwilling to face the prospect of reprisals from his bosses from such a disclosure.

So if this confidential relationship is no longer certain, the public gets nothing but the official government version of what is going on. And who wants to rely solely on what our leaders want us to believe? Thus, the public's right to know — indeed, its need to know — is clearly wiped out if "adverse" sources dry up. Yes, I admit to a bias here, being a member of the press. But you, the reader, should be biased, too — for insofar as we, the press, bring your government out into the open, we are serving you and your right to know.

Many Meanings To 'Redevelopment'

This should be born in mind with "redevelopment fever" spreading among Marin's cities.

San Rafael, first city in Marin to invoke the 1952 California Community Redevelopment Act, chose what might be termed the classic approach. It also is the approach for which the act and its accompanying constitutional amendment were designed.

The constitutional amendment, adopted also in 1952, permits diversion of taxes from assessment increases to redevelopment. The Community Redevelopment Act provides that such diversion may be used to rehabilitate an area found by the city's redevelopment agency to be a blighted area.

THE ACT WAS aimed primarily at rehabilitating two types of neighborhoods: residential slums and deteriorating business districts. The "old downtowns" of some of California's larger cities already were in trouble by 1952.

San Rafael chose to apply the act primarily to the downtown and the often-derided Francisco Boulevard commercial strip. It found these to be blighted areas. They certainly fit the definition as applied elsewhere, and as upheld in court tests of the act.

Corte Madera and Larkspur, however, have taken different approaches.

IN CORTE MADERA, the area proposed for redevelopment is not, in the main, developed at all. It is raw land, on which an investor intends to build a major shopping center.

The public improvements proposed to be funded from tax diversion in Corte Madera would be largely for the benefit of the developer and tenants of the shopping center — which is not yet in being. They would in part consist of improvements which it is customary for the developer to finance.

Rather than rehabilitating a blighted area, the Corte Madera plan appears very likely to create one: the present Corte Madera Shopping Center, developed with private funds. Some of its tenants already have announced plans to move to the new center, if and when it is built.

LARKSPUR USED a "catch-all" approach in its redevelopment program. It included within the redevelopment area the old downtown, the Bon Air Shopping Center and adjacent lands on which the owners hope to expand that center, and the San Quentin Peninsula portion of the city, which now is mostly bare land but is being eyed for major developments.

The Larkspur plan thus may be partially self-defeating. Public improvements to serve an enlarged Bon Air Center would be likely to further blight the old downtown. Those on the San Quentin Peninsula portion would, like those in Corte Madera, chiefly benefit new developers who ordinarily would be expected to bear their own costs.

INCLUSION OF bare lands in "redevelopment" has been upheld in court tests. However, what cannot be blighted since it is unbuilt and uninhabited is not actually subject to redevelopment. Only what has once been developed can be redeveloped — in fact if not in legalese.

It appears that Larkspur and Corte Madera are using their redevelopment plans largely in a battle to see which one can win a major shopping center. Actual redevelopment has been largely left out.

Reagan Seeks To Preclude Taxation Breaking Point

By EARL G. WATERS

Oppressive taxation, history records, ultimately results in the fall of government. Either the victims of excessive taxation pack up and leave or they revolt. In either case the government collapses.

An early example of this is told in Exodus. To escape the Pharoah's oppression, the Israelites migrated and the mighty Rameses faded. The American colonists' revolt against the king was sparked by unjust taxation.

While there has been no open revolt in modern America over taxes, there has been a good bit of quiet migration. Many individuals have moved to other places to escape taxes.

The country has recently awakened to the disastrous effects upon the dollar brought about in part by the exodus of giant corporation capital into foreign lands. With the capital have gone many jobs formerly available to Americans.

THERE IS NO DOUBT that the knowledge of such events is the motivation for Governor Reagan's desire to nail down state spending by enacting a limit on taxes.

Perhaps the mechanics of Reagan's proposal need perfecting. But the idea of pegging future spending to present levels of taxation is not bad. What Reagan seems to be saying is that since the current expenditures equal X percentage of the gross state income, that percentage should be made the lid.

This is not a dollar budget limitation as some have charged. If, by reason of population growth or increased prosperity, the gross state income rises, then the budget can be enlarged.

As Parkinson states: "There is clearly, somewhere, a line to be drawn . . . Taxation should stop at that point."

It is this "line to be dran", the point at which taxation should stop. that the governor is seeking.

Press, Unlike The Government, Operates In Goldfish Bowl

By GODFREY SPERLING Jr.

WASHINGTON — Sometimes rather small but acute comments help to illuminate big issues. Recently New York Times columnist James Reston observed that if judges actually got their hands on reporters' notes through their power of subpoena, they probably couldn't read them anyway. Mr. Reston thus discloses a deep and dark trade secret, held close to the bosom of most of us in this profession — that our squibbles and homemade shorthand efforts are indecipherable by others and, unless we interpret them fairly quickly, they become "cold" and indecipherable even to ourselves. When my wife or my children see one of my old notebooks, they laugh — loudly and rudely. So I usually keep them out of sight.

Now another reporter has come along and made a brief but cogent comment on the problems of the press. Reflecting on growing evidence of public dissatisfaction with the Fourth Estate, this newsman said: "I think there is a tremendous check and balance against excesses by reporters that most people overlook — and it is this: every time I sit down to write a story, I am quite conscious that several hundred thousand readers are looking over my shoulder, watching my every word. If I am not accurat, if I am not fair, if I am not balanced, I will hear from them — and so will my editors."

HAVE YOUR EVER thought about this? What if you were a housewife and you had all those people checking on you as you tended the baby, washed dishes, cleaned house? What if you were a surgeon, a lawyer, a carpenter, or a plumber — or whatever — with a vast audience watching your every move? If this kind of mass scrutiny did not completely unsettle you, wouldn't it tend to make you try to do an even better job than usual? But you can also be sure that no matter how conscientious you were, you would get a lot of letters telling you how you had done it all wrong, or at least, partly wrong.

Further, what if the public kept such a minute-by-minute watch over the ethical practices of professions other than the press —such as lawyers, doctors, businessmen, just to name a few? Can't you think of some who might have to go out of business if they were — as reporters are daily — subjected to this kind of mass-audience judgment?

Thus, the press operates in a goldfish bowl where all our blemishes — and they are many, to be sure — are there for everyone to see. But government, like an iceberg, operates mostly beneath the surface. The reporter's job is to bring government out into the open, so that the public can view it.

THOSE OF US in the press who are called upon to speak from time to time are usually grilled hard these days on what many people see as the growing unreliability of newsmen and newspapers, together with radio and television. It makes us very aware of what some recent polls have been showing: that the press has hit a new low in its public credibility rating.

No doubt about it, we must do a better job. Better research. Better writing — fairer, more accurate. But limiting the press in its freedom is not the answer. Our Founding Fathers in putting into effect the grand experiment — democracy — knew that if the people were to govern intelligently they must have access to a free flow of information on what was going on and, particularly, on what their elected leaders were doing. The public's right to know — not the press, itself — was thus protected by the First Amendment. Hence it is clear that any restraint imposed on the free flow of information is, first of all, a restraint on the public's right to know. Some people miss this point. Madison very early underscored this truth, writing that no way had been found to curb the press without restricting our democracy.

NOW THE REPORTER'S right to protect his sources is under question. If government sources can't, on occasion, talk confidentially to reporters, the public loses. The government worker who is critical of the way business is being conducted in his shop usually won't talk to reporters unless his anonymity is insured.

He is unwilling to face the prospect of reprisals from his bosses from such a disclosure.

So if this confidential relationship is no longer certain, the public gets nothing but the official government version of what is going on. And who wants to rely solely on what our leaders want us to believe? Thus, the public's right to know — indeed, its need to know — is clearly wiped out if "adverse" sources dry up. Yes, I admit to a bias here, being a member of the press. But you, the reader, should be biased, too — for insofar as we, the press, bring your government out into the open, we are serving you and your right to know.

You Can't Believe What You Read In A Time Capsule

The stowaway is a copy of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader which was placed in the custom-built box before it was sealed by designer James E. Kusterer of Richmond, Va.

Apparently the newspaper was added to the collection of Marin memorabilia because it contained a story and picture of Kutterer building the box.

It's not that I object to the newspaper being added; in fact it's kind of an interesting story about how the box was built and sealed.

What bothers me is that the newspaper story contains several gross errors about Marin County — hardly something that should be cherished for a hundred or so years in the county's time capsule.

THE STORY'S FIRST three paragraphs are the offenders:

"A California county has looked to a Richmonder for designing a 'time capsule' for its new courthouse and preserving the items going into it.

"The Marin County Courthouse burned last year and a new courthouse and Civic Center have been constructed.

"The old courthouse was part of the San Rafael complex that was the scene of the fatal 1970 shootout, in which black philosophy instructor Angela Davis was charged and later acquitted."

Egads! Years of colorful controversy over Frank Lloyd Wright's creation have just been washed away.

BESIDES THE BOOTLEGGED newspaper, the tightly packed time capsule contains editions of all Marin County newspapers except the Novato Advance.

A sampling of other items includes:

Also included are items taken from the old courthouse time capsule, such as gold coins, newspapers and sheriff's irons.

Burying of the box was originally scheduled for last summer but was delayed due to problems in shipping the time capsule from Virginia, among other reasons.

County officials say they are waiting for "some appropriate date" to bury the box.

Judge Rules Felony Charge In Car Theft

A Marin Municipal Court judge has ruled there is enough evidence to try 18-year-old Ronald Roland Cardinalli of San Rafael on a felony charge of stealing a used car from a San Rafael auto dealer.

Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered him to appear Wednesday in superior court for pretrial proceedings.

Acting on a tip, San Rafael police arrested him Jan. 20 at Fourth and E streets shortly after a 1967 BMW was taken from the BMW Auto Zentrum at 1826 Fourth Street.

Streptococcus Leads List

Eighty-seven cases of streptococcus infections were reported in Marin County last week, according to Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

Other communicable diseases reported were gonorrhea, 10 cases; measles, one case; syphilis, two cases; tuberculosis, one case; salmonella, one case, and infectious hepatitis, one case.

Terms Of 'Peace With Honor' Won In War On Poverty

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The United States government announced today that the War on Poverty is over and the United States has won. In a historic ceremony at the White House, the President signed the peace treaty which had been negotiated over a period of several months.

The terms of the treaty were outlined for reporters:

"THE UNITED STATES will withdraw all troops from the War on Poverty within 30 days and will no longer supply financial aid to war-strewn poverty areas.

"Poor people will be allowed to choose their own destinies without interference from outside sources.

"All advisers to the War on Poverty will be brought home.

"Attacks on health problems, unemployment, housing and education will cease as of midnight, March 5. A team of Administration officials will be sent into the field to see that there are o violations of the agreement. If they find anyone continuing the War on Poverty, they shall report them to the Justice Department in Washington.

"Legal aid for poor people will be withdrawn from combat areas.

"Poverty victims will remain in their own homes and will be forbidden to move into other territory while the treaty is in force.

ALL WEAPONS used to fight Poverty will be removed, crated and shipped out of the fighting areas.

"Those who were wounded in the War on Poverty will be compensated with daily food stamps worth 50 cents.

"Prisoners of Poverty will not be exchanged. They must remain where they are until they are able to figure a way to escape their ghetto.

"As soon as the peace treaty goes into effect, all references to Poverty will be stricken from U.S. publications and the word will not be used by any Administration official."

A WHITE HOUSE spokesman told reporters: "The President believes this is the greatest peace treaty in the history of mankind.

"This was a war he did not start, but one which he vowed to end. Poverty has been defeated, and the President achieved the defeat with honor, something his critics predicted he could not do."

A reporter asked, "But suppose the forces of Poverty continue their aggression?"

The spokesman said, "The United States has done all it can to fight Poverty. No matter what happens now, we're getting out of the war. The poor people are going to have to solve their own problems. This is the foundation of the Nixon Doctrine. The time has come when poor people have to stand on their own two feet and pull themselves up by their bootstraps."

ANOTHER REPORTER asked, "Now that the War on Poverty is over, will there be a peace dividend for the American people?"

"No," the White House spokesman said, "because the money used to fight the War on Poverty is now needed to purchase military hardware which has been sadly neglected during the last seven years."

"Will the President grant amnesty to those who refused to fight in the War on Poverty?" a reporter queried.

"Yes, he will," the spokesman said. "The President believes a man who refused to fight Poverty because of personal convictions should not carry this scar around with him for the rest of his life."

Guilty Plea In Recorder Theft

An 18-year-old San Rafael youth who took a tape recorder from a parked car as office workers looked on has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor burglary charge.

Donald Jeffery Seader pleaded guilty after Judge Robert A. Smallman reduced a felony count Tuesday. The judge made no sentence commitment, but a deputy district attorney said a maximum of 60 days will be recommended.

Seader and a 16-year-old companion were arrested Feb. 13 after four office workers in the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. building in San Rafael told police they saw the theft in the nearby city parking lot at Third Street and Lootens Place.

The two broke into the car of Jody Linda Bushton by smashing a wing window, police said.

Behr Wants Agency To Lift Hiring Lid

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, yesterday called on the state Health and Welfare Agency to end its hiring freeze.

Doctors and patients with Medi-Cal problems are meeting unreasonable delays because the agency hasn't enough workers to answer the telephone in its San Francisco office, Behr said.

The legislator noted that the Reagan Administration is making a sweeping reorganization of state welfare and health agencies under the leadership of Dr. Earl Brian. Agency hiring was frozen last Nov. 14. At that time, two of the agency's 34 authorized positions were vacant and strength now is six below par, Behr said.

He reported that Marin County doctors were compelled to wait 20 to 30 minutes on the telephone before getting answers to questions. Patients' records, normally processed in five days, have been delayed as long as three weeks, Behr said.

Behr urged that Brian's agency hire more personnel for the San Francisco office that serves Marin and the Upper Peninsula.

Brian's office said personnel are being shifted within the agency to solve the problem until reorganization determines how many employees the agency ultimately will need.

Tiburon Panel Is Loser In Delaying Development

The Strawberry Area Community Council has lost in its bid to delay approval of a development plan for an eight-unit apartment development on Tiburon Boulevard.

County supervisors approved the project unanimously Tuesday over the protests of a council spokesman, who said his group had not been notified by the planning department that the project was under consideration.

The project, to be located in an open area at Tiburon Boulevard and Cecilia Way, was approved earlier this year by the county planning commission.

Harvey Bragdon, chief of current county planning, told supervisors a notice had been routinely mailed to the council but it apparently had been lost in the shuffle during a change of council officers.

Supervisors, while sympathizing with the council, said it would be unfair to the developer to delay the project because the council had misplaced its notice.

Two Win Ford Scholarships

Miss Norwood, who graduated from Tamalpais High School, lives in Mill Valley. She is a communications major and will transfer in the fall to the California State University in San Francisco.

Miss Wright, who also lives in Mill Valley, graduated from a Nebraska High School. She plans to major in sociology and will transfer to Dominican College next year.

Legion Leader's Amnesty Stand Draws Hurrahs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Five hundred American Legion members gave their national commander a standing ovation Tuesday when he told a congressional hearing there should be no amnesty for deserters and those who evaded the draft.

Joe L. Matthews discussed the amnesty issue when he appeared before the veterans affairs committees of both houses to discuss the Legion's legislative program for the coming year.

Matthews said he wanted to place on the public record "our view that America's obligation is to those who served, not to those who ran."

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

ERIK M. INGRAM

You Can't Believe What You Read In A Time Capsule

The stowaway is a copy of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader which was placed in the custom-built box before it was sealed by designer James E. Kusterer of Richmond, Va.

Apparently the newspaper was added to the collection of Marin memorabilia because it contained a story and picture of Kutterer building the box.

It's not that I object to the newspaper being added; in fact it's kind of an interesting story about how the box was built and sealed.

What bothers me is that the newspaper story contains several gross errors about Marin County — hardly something that should be cherished for a hundred or so years in the county's time capsule.

THE STORY'S FIRST three paragraphs are the offenders:

"A California county has looked to a Richmonder for designing a 'time capsule' for its new courthouse and preserving the items going into it.

"The Marin County Courthouse burned last year and a new courthouse and Civic Center have been constructed.

"The old courthouse was part of the San Rafael complex that was the scene of the fatal 1970 shootout, in which black philosophy instructor Angela Davis was charged and later acquitted."

Egads! Years of colorful controversy over Frank Lloyd Wright's creation have just been washed away.

BESIDES THE BOOTLEGGED newspaper, the tightly packed time capsule contains editions of all Marin County newspapers except the Novato Advance.

A sampling of other items includes:

Also included are items taken from the old courthouse time capsule, such as gold coins, newspapers and sheriff's irons.

Burying of the box was originally scheduled for last summer but was delayed due to problems in shipping the time capsule from Virginia, among other reasons.

County officials say they are waiting for "some appropriate date" to bury the box.

Judge Rules Felony Charge In Car Theft

A Marin Municipal Court judge has ruled there is enough evidence to try 18-year-old Ronald Roland Cardinalli of San Rafael on a felony charge of stealing a used car from a San Rafael auto dealer.

Judge Peter Allen Smith ordered him to appear Wednesday in superior court for pretrial proceedings.

Acting on a tip, San Rafael police arrested him Jan. 20 at Fourth and E streets shortly after a 1967 BMW was taken from the BMW Auto Zentrum at 1826 Fourth Street.

Streptococcus Leads List

Eighty-seven cases of streptococcus infections were reported in Marin County last week, according to Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

Other communicable diseases reported were gonorrhea, 10 cases; measles, one case; syphilis, two cases; tuberculosis, one case; salmonella, one case, and infectious hepatitis, one case.

Terms Of 'Peace With Honor' Won In War On Poverty

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The United States government announced today that the War on Poverty is over and the United States has won. In a historic ceremony at the White House, the President signed the peace treaty which had been negotiated over a period of several months.

The terms of the treaty were outlined for reporters:

"THE UNITED STATES will withdraw all troops from the War on Poverty within 30 days and will no longer supply financial aid to war-strewn poverty areas.

"Poor people will be allowed to choose their own destinies without interference from outside sources.

"All advisers to the War on Poverty will be brought home.

"Attacks on health problems, unemployment, housing and education will cease as of midnight, March 5. A team of Administration officials will be sent into the field to see that there are o violations of the agreement. If they find anyone continuing the War on Poverty, they shall report them to the Justice Department in Washington.

"Legal aid for poor people will be withdrawn from combat areas.

"Poverty victims will remain in their own homes and will be forbidden to move into other territory while the treaty is in force.

ALL WEAPONS used to fight Poverty will be removed, crated and shipped out of the fighting areas.

"Those who were wounded in the War on Poverty will be compensated with daily food stamps worth 50 cents.

"Prisoners of Poverty will not be exchanged. They must remain where they are until they are able to figure a way to escape their ghetto.

"As soon as the peace treaty goes into effect, all references to Poverty will be stricken from U.S. publications and the word will not be used by any Administration official."

A WHITE HOUSE spokesman told reporters: "The President believes this is the greatest peace treaty in the history of mankind.

"This was a war he did not start, but one which he vowed to end. Poverty has been defeated, and the President achieved the defeat with honor, something his critics predicted he could not do."

A reporter asked, "But suppose the forces of Poverty continue their aggression?"

The spokesman said, "The United States has done all it can to fight Poverty. No matter what happens now, we're getting out of the war. The poor people are going to have to solve their own problems. This is the foundation of the Nixon Doctrine. The time has come when poor people have to stand on their own two feet and pull themselves up by their bootstraps."

ANOTHER REPORTER asked, "Now that the War on Poverty is over, will there be a peace dividend for the American people?"

"No," the White House spokesman said, "because the money used to fight the War on Poverty is now needed to purchase military hardware which has been sadly neglected during the last seven years."

"Will the President grant amnesty to those who refused to fight in the War on Poverty?" a reporter queried.

"Yes, he will," the spokesman said. "The President believes a man who refused to fight Poverty because of personal convictions should not carry this scar around with him for the rest of his life."

Guilty Plea In Recorder Theft

An 18-year-old San Rafael youth who took a tape recorder from a parked car as office workers looked on has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Municipal Court to a reduced misdemeanor burglary charge.

Donald Jeffery Seader pleaded guilty after Judge Robert A. Smallman reduced a felony count Tuesday. The judge made no sentence commitment, but a deputy district attorney said a maximum of 60 days will be recommended.

Seader and a 16-year-old companion were arrested Feb. 13 after four office workers in the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. building in San Rafael told police they saw the theft in the nearby city parking lot at Third Street and Lootens Place.

The two broke into the car of Jody Linda Bushton by smashing a wing window, police said.

Behr Wants Agency To Lift Hiring Lid

Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, yesterday called on the state Health and Welfare Agency to end its hiring freeze.

Doctors and patients with Medi-Cal problems are meeting unreasonable delays because the agency hasn't enough workers to answer the telephone in its San Francisco office, Behr said.

The legislator noted that the Reagan Administration is making a sweeping reorganization of state welfare and health agencies under the leadership of Dr. Earl Brian. Agency hiring was frozen last Nov. 14. At that time, two of the agency's 34 authorized positions were vacant and strength now is six below par, Behr said.

He reported that Marin County doctors were compelled to wait 20 to 30 minutes on the telephone before getting answers to questions. Patients' records, normally processed in five days, have been delayed as long as three weeks, Behr said.

Behr urged that Brian's agency hire more personnel for the San Francisco office that serves Marin and the Upper Peninsula.

Brian's office said personnel are being shifted within the agency to solve the problem until reorganization determines how many employees the agency ultimately will need.

Tiburon Panel Is Loser In Delaying Development

The Strawberry Area Community Council has lost in its bid to delay approval of a development plan for an eight-unit apartment development on Tiburon Boulevard.

County supervisors approved the project unanimously Tuesday over the protests of a council spokesman, who said his group had not been notified by the planning department that the project was under consideration.

The project, to be located in an open area at Tiburon Boulevard and Cecilia Way, was approved earlier this year by the county planning commission.

Harvey Bragdon, chief of current county planning, told supervisors a notice had been routinely mailed to the council but it apparently had been lost in the shuffle during a change of council officers.

Supervisors, while sympathizing with the council, said it would be unfair to the developer to delay the project because the council had misplaced its notice.

Two Win Ford Scholarships

Miss Norwood, who graduated from Tamalpais High School, lives in Mill Valley. She is a communications major and will transfer in the fall to the California State University in San Francisco.

Miss Wright, who also lives in Mill Valley, graduated from a Nebraska High School. She plans to major in sociology and will transfer to Dominican College next year.

Legion Leader's Amnesty Stand Draws Hurrahs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Five hundred American Legion members gave their national commander a standing ovation Tuesday when he told a congressional hearing there should be no amnesty for deserters and those who evaded the draft.

Joe L. Matthews discussed the amnesty issue when he appeared before the veterans affairs committees of both houses to discuss the Legion's legislative program for the coming year.

Matthews said he wanted to place on the public record "our view that America's obligation is to those who served, not to those who ran."

Orchestra Piccola's Fine Night

By VERA M. OLMSTED

Marin's finest young musical group, the Orchestra Piccola, gave a concert last night that left everyone talking in superlatives. The Veterans Memorial Building was almost completely filled with an appreciative audience that erupted into a standing ovation at the conclusion.

The Orchestra Piccola is a chamber group of 27 musicians of junior high and high school age, chosen from the Marin Youth Orchestra's most outstanding players. They are directed by San Rafael High School's Hugo Rinaldi and sponsored by the Marin Symphony Association. This talented group has been invited to appear at the Spoleto Music Festival in Italy this summer, and last night's performance showed us why it was asked.

Dan Smiley and Mariko Smiley, violinists, gave a polished and expressive interpretation of the "Double" Concerto in D Minor by J. S. Bach, showing a maturity and stage presence beyond their years.

The slow movement, "largo ma non tanto," is particularly beautiful, containing some of Bach's most lyric passages. The two soloists maintained their singing tone throughout, balancing the intertwining voices well, although Dan Smiley's greater experience and the tone of his more brilliant violin gave his line a little more weight.

Extremely interesting was the West Coast premiere of Frank Martin's "Petite Symphonie Concertante" for harp, piano, harpsichord and two string orchestras (1946).

This work pits the unusual solo instruments against two string groups in a very fresh and imaginative way. Martin uses twelve-tone rows melodically and combines them with major-minor chords, producing highly intriguing coloristic effects.

The three solosits, Sheila Colwell on harp, Elaine Lust on piano and Evelyne Lust on harpsichord, did an outstanding job in the technically difficult piece. They played their respective instruments clearly and cleanly, and were always aware of one another and the two chamber groups, giving full attention to the dynamics and nuances.

They were fully supported by members of the orchestra, whose own parts were full of cross rhythms and complicated lines. The musicians closely followed conductor Hugo Rinaldi's expressive and explicit directions, and delivered a stunning performance. This work is sure to be a hit in Italy.

The last half of the program was devoted to Ralph Vaughan Williams' cantata "Dona nobis pacem," using the combined high school choirs of Redwood, San Domenico, San Rafael, Sir Francis Drake, Tamalpais, and Terra Linda, and including some additional instrumentalists from the Marin Youth Orchestra.

"Dona nobis pacem" was written several years before the beginning of World War II. Its strong message condemns the brutality of war and offers a hopeful vision of universal peace. The work is divided into six sections using text drawn from the Old Testament and the liturgy of the Mass, and quotations from Walt Whitman and John Bright.

Soprano Marian Marsh and baritone Byron Jones were soloists. Miss Marsh sang with a full, graceful voice, but the words were lost to the listener. She was unable to locate the pitch in several of the unaccompanied sections, particularly the very last statement of "Dona nobis pacem." Jones sang with a firm, clear voice and excellent diction.

The combined choirs were quite effective in their presentation, and initial credit must go to the teachers at each school wo prepared the groups. Rinaldi was able to control this massive chorus kd get it to respond to all of his demands.

All of the winds, brass and percussion (in addition t the Piccola group) did a first-rate job, particularly in the sections describing the inhumanity of war.

Another Guilty In Carrier Riot

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — A three-man military jury Wednesday returned another conviction in the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk race riot case.

Airman Apprentice Ronald Glover, 21, Columbia, S.C., was found guilty of one count of assault. The jury cleared him of three additional counts of assault and one of breach of the peace.

The case was to continue Thursday with the penalty phase to decide the sailor's sentence. Glover was one of 23 sailors, all but one black, accused of riot and assault after the disturbance at sea last October in which 46 crewmen were injured.

Demand For Probe Of Bombing Killed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Resolutions introduced by antiwar congressmen demanding a full Defense Department accounting for the heavy December air raids on North Vietnam have been killed by the House Armed Services Committee.

The committee took the action Wednesday. Sponsors of the resolutions, apparently convinced that the bombing issue was not worth pursuing because of the Vietnam cease-fire, did not attend the committee session.

MUSIC REVIEW

Orchestra Piccola's Fine Night

By VERA M. OLMSTED

Marin's finest young musical group, the Orchestra Piccola, gave a concert last night that left everyone talking in superlatives. The Veterans Memorial Building was almost completely filled with an appreciative audience that erupted into a standing ovation at the conclusion.

The Orchestra Piccola is a chamber group of 27 musicians of junior high and high school age, chosen from the Marin Youth Orchestra's most outstanding players. They are directed by San Rafael High School's Hugo Rinaldi and sponsored by the Marin Symphony Association. This talented group has been invited to appear at the Spoleto Music Festival in Italy this summer, and last night's performance showed us why it was asked.

Dan Smiley and Mariko Smiley, violinists, gave a polished and expressive interpretation of the "Double" Concerto in D Minor by J. S. Bach, showing a maturity and stage presence beyond their years.

The slow movement, "largo ma non tanto," is particularly beautiful, containing some of Bach's most lyric passages. The two soloists maintained their singing tone throughout, balancing the intertwining voices well, although Dan Smiley's greater experience and the tone of his more brilliant violin gave his line a little more weight.

Extremely interesting was the West Coast premiere of Frank Martin's "Petite Symphonie Concertante" for harp, piano, harpsichord and two string orchestras (1946).

This work pits the unusual solo instruments against two string groups in a very fresh and imaginative way. Martin uses twelve-tone rows melodically and combines them with major-minor chords, producing highly intriguing coloristic effects.

The three solosits, Sheila Colwell on harp, Elaine Lust on piano and Evelyne Lust on harpsichord, did an outstanding job in the technically difficult piece. They played their respective instruments clearly and cleanly, and were always aware of one another and the two chamber groups, giving full attention to the dynamics and nuances.

They were fully supported by members of the orchestra, whose own parts were full of cross rhythms and complicated lines. The musicians closely followed conductor Hugo Rinaldi's expressive and explicit directions, and delivered a stunning performance. This work is sure to be a hit in Italy.

The last half of the program was devoted to Ralph Vaughan Williams' cantata "Dona nobis pacem," using the combined high school choirs of Redwood, San Domenico, San Rafael, Sir Francis Drake, Tamalpais, and Terra Linda, and including some additional instrumentalists from the Marin Youth Orchestra.

"Dona nobis pacem" was written several years before the beginning of World War II. Its strong message condemns the brutality of war and offers a hopeful vision of universal peace. The work is divided into six sections using text drawn from the Old Testament and the liturgy of the Mass, and quotations from Walt Whitman and John Bright.

Soprano Marian Marsh and baritone Byron Jones were soloists. Miss Marsh sang with a full, graceful voice, but the words were lost to the listener. She was unable to locate the pitch in several of the unaccompanied sections, particularly the very last statement of "Dona nobis pacem." Jones sang with a firm, clear voice and excellent diction.

The combined choirs were quite effective in their presentation, and initial credit must go to the teachers at each school wo prepared the groups. Rinaldi was able to control this massive chorus kd get it to respond to all of his demands.

All of the winds, brass and percussion (in addition t the Piccola group) did a first-rate job, particularly in the sections describing the inhumanity of war.

Another Guilty In Carrier Riot

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — A three-man military jury Wednesday returned another conviction in the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk race riot case.

Airman Apprentice Ronald Glover, 21, Columbia, S.C., was found guilty of one count of assault. The jury cleared him of three additional counts of assault and one of breach of the peace.

The case was to continue Thursday with the penalty phase to decide the sailor's sentence. Glover was one of 23 sailors, all but one black, accused of riot and assault after the disturbance at sea last October in which 46 crewmen were injured.

Demand For Probe Of Bombing Killed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Resolutions introduced by antiwar congressmen demanding a full Defense Department accounting for the heavy December air raids on North Vietnam have been killed by the House Armed Services Committee.

The committee took the action Wednesday. Sponsors of the resolutions, apparently convinced that the bombing issue was not worth pursuing because of the Vietnam cease-fire, did not attend the committee session.

A GOOD WAY to teach the alphabet, the sounds of letters, and sight words all at once is by making a picture dictionary of cards similar to these. Flash cards, used by teachers in all the primary grades, are useful to present words which you cannot sound out with phonics. Words like come, some, right, would, again, eight, and others you will come across in children's books, can be printed on any sturdy card and used to help the child build a reserve of words he can call on when needed. One game to use with flash cards is Big Bad Box.

Take a shoe box and cut a slit in the cover. If you are creative, paint a face on the box, just to make the game more fun. Give your child 10 cards to learn. Go over the 10 words with him and be sure he sees and hears the words and their meanings before you start the game. Now show him a card. If he knows the word, he gets to keep the card. If he doesn't know it, the Big Bad Box gets the card. Slip it through the slot and use the cards in the box for the next game.

Remember to reteach the words he missed before you start the game again. Be enthusiastic and make remarks like, "Don't let the box get this one!" or "You really beat the Big Bad Box this time."

FOR SHEET NUMBER 6 . . . LONG VOWELS . . . (which we discussed Monday). It is useful to make a list of words which can be changed to sound the long vowel just by adding "e" at the end. Pin, pine; rat, rate; fat, fate; man, mane. One of the rules we teach in school is that, often, when we add a silent "e" at the end of a one-syllable word, we change the vowel in that word from short to long.

I illustrate by actually putting a line through the "e" to show that it does not make a sound.

For the child who has trouble remembering the sounds of the long vowel, just tell him that these vowels say their alphabet letter name. Train him to listen for the long sound when you say words like, home, Rome, make, take, mule, cube, ride, side. Then include the words like rain, seek, meat, goat. Be sure to show your youngster that these words use a different spelling to make the long sound of the vowel.

THIS WOULD BE a good time to make a set of vowel sound cards. On 5-by-7 cards, print the vowels. On the "a" card, using a different color crayon or pencil, print the different spellings of long "a" . . . ai as in rain, ey as in they, ei as in eight. For "e" . . . ee as in seek, ea as in meat. For "i" . . . igh as in right. For "o" . . . oa as in boat, ow as in snow. For "u" . . . ew as in few, ough as in through.

If your child has scored many mistakes in all the areas, follow the progression of the test sheets and make your games remediate one sheet at a time.

Save your test sheets and after working with your child for a couple of weeks, retest him. You'll be amazed at how much he has improved.

If you have found that your youngster is not comprehending what he has read, or what you read to him, you mus categorize your questions into the What, When, Where, How, Why areas.

Each time he misses the point of the question, explain why he made a mistake. Also explain that the When questions need an answer concerned with time, the What question wants to know what happened, the Where question is concerned with a location or place, and so on.

USING PARAGRAPHS from readers which are below his school reading level, or comic strips which tell a short story you can present your questions and, if he is having a really difficult time getting the concept, look back in the story or comic strip with him and show him the printed answer.

Say your question again, and read the sentence which best answers it. He will learn by your example, and if you keep the exercises short and simple — very simple — he'll catch on.

Exercises for the older child should include different spellings we use every day, but which are unusual; word lists or word families using ay, day, play, say, ray; ou, house, mouse, round, found, around; ow, cow, plow, now; au, haul, Paul, taught; aw, paw, saw, draw; oy, boy, goy; oi, oil, boil. Whenever you come to an unusual combination of letters, try to make a general category and think of all the words you can to fit into it. Just seeing these words, using them in sentences, and, really, just know-

A GOOD WAY to teach the alphabet, the sounds of letters, and sight words all at once is by making a picture dictionary of cards similar to these. Use pictures of objects from old magazines if you can't draw. Use bold printing for emphasis and reinforce the cards by saying the beginning letters so your child can hear the sound.

(Third of five articles)

Flash cards, used by teachers in all the primary grades, are useful to present words which you cannot sound out with phonics. Words like come, some, right, would, again, eight, and others you will come across in children's books, can be printed on any sturdy card and used to help the child build a reserve of words he can call on when needed. One game to use with flash cards is Big Bad Box.

Take a shoe box and cut a slit in the cover. If you are creative, paint a face on the box, just to make the game more fun. Give your child 10 cards to learn. Go over the 10 words with him and be sure he sees and hears the words and their meanings before you start the game. Now show him a card. If he knows the word, he gets to keep the card. If he doesn't know it, the Big Bad Box gets the card. Slip it through the slot and use the cards in the box for the next game.

Remember to reteach the words he missed before you start the game again. Be enthusiastic and make remarks like, "Don't let the box get this one!" or "You really beat the Big Bad Box this time."

FOR SHEET NUMBER 6 . . . LONG VOWELS . . . (which we discussed Monday). It is useful to make a list of words which can be changed to sound the long vowel just by adding "e" at the end. Pin, pine; rat, rate; fat, fate; man, mane. One of the rules we teach in school is that, often, when we add a silent "e" at the end of a one-syllable word, we change the vowel in that word from short to long.

I illustrate by actually putting a line through the "e" to show that it does not make a sound.

For the child who has trouble remembering the sounds of the long vowel, just tell him that these vowels say their alphabet letter name. Train him to listen for the long sound when you say words like, home, Rome, make, take, mule, cube, ride, side. Then include the words like rain, seek, meat, goat. Be sure to show your youngster that these words use a different spelling to make the long sound of the vowel.

THIS WOULD BE a good time to make a set of vowel sound cards. On 5-by-7 cards, print the vowels. On the "a" card, using a different color crayon or pencil, print the different spellings of long "a" . . . ai as in rain, ey as in they, ei as in eight. For "e" . . . ee as in seek, ea as in meat. For "i" . . . igh as in right. For "o" . . . oa as in boat, ow as in snow. For "u" . . . ew as in few, ough as in through.

If your child has scored many mistakes in all the areas, follow the progression of the test sheets and make your games remediate one sheet at a time.

Save your test sheets and after working with your child for a couple of weeks, retest him. You'll be amazed at how much he has improved.

If you have found that your youngster is not comprehending what he has read, or what you read to him, you mus categorize your questions into the What, When, Where, How, Why areas.

Each time he misses the point of the question, explain why he made a mistake. Also explain that the When questions need an answer concerned with time, the What question wants to know what happened, the Where question is concerned with a location or place, and so on.

USING PARAGRAPHS from readers which are below his school reading level, or comic strips which tell a short story you can present your questions and, if he is having a really difficult time getting the concept, look back in the story or comic strip with him and show him the printed answer.

Say your question again, and read the sentence which best answers it. He will learn by your example, and if you keep the exercises short and simple — very simple — he'll catch on.

Exercises for the older child should include different spellings we use every day, but which are unusual; word lists or word families using ay, day, play, say, ray; ou, house, mouse, round, found, around; ow, cow, plow, now; au, haul, Paul, taught; aw, paw, saw, draw; oy, boy, goy; oi, oil, boil. Whenever you come to an unusual combination of letters, try to make a general category and think of all the words you can to fit into it. Just seeing these words, using them in sentences, and, really, just know-

His Honest Answer To A Dumb Question Upsets Relationship

HELEN AND SUE:

Sometimes I wonder if I should ever ask questions. Especially when the answers aren't what I'd like to hear. Like:

My boyfriend lives in another town and I only see him on weekends. We were getting along fine last Saturday until — the dumb question: We were watching TV and I felt like talking so I asked if he'd ever dated another girl since we started going together? He said "Yes."

That wasn't so bad: we don't really have any ties on each other except we're sort of half way in love — but we've both agreed to "no strings."

But then we talked some more, and I found out he'd gone to bed with this girl. He says she means nothing to him —it just happened after a fraternity party and they'll probably not see each other again.

I guess that's what made me feel so awful —that any girl would do, so maybe he feels this way about me too.

Then I asked him how he'd react if I told him I'd been with another guy —and the double standard reared its ugly head. He got real upset, thinking that I meant I'd gone out on him.

Well, there went our weekend. I was hurt and he was suspicious, which made me mad because he should surely know I'm not the type to play around. But, on the other hand, if he does it, why should he expect me not to, just because I'm a girl?

He's not a "collector," and I keep telling myself a man has certain needs, and this was one of those unexpected happenings. I tried very hard to be "modern" and laugh it off, but there's now a wall between us. And I can see he's worried too. Please help me straighten my head out. I don't know right from wrong anymore, or which of us, if any, has a reason to be upset. — A SECRET PAIN

S.P.:

It's hard to believe that love can hurt so much.

This situation could bring some couples loser together; others, it would tear apart. It's up to you which way this goes —for you started the questioning. A long, serious (non-blaming) talk about pride, trust, needs, expectations, etc. — including the unfairness of the double standard — might turn a "sort of half way love" into a commitment that solves your worries. — SUE

DEAR S.P.:

Elder Bottel say: Girl who asks questions of honest guy usually get answers she'd rather not hear. Same goes for the guy. Doesn't "no strings" include "no prying?"

Now that you've both discovered you care enough to be jealous, perhaps you'll realize that a real relationship always means commitment, and you were fooling yourselves with that talk of "no strings."

By this time, you two are either closer than you ever were before, or you have broken up. Let us know which. — HELEN

HELEN

I am going out with two boys at the same time. One asked me to marry him. But I like the other one just as much.

I do not have enough nerve to tell one I am getting married or the other I don't want to marry him. Neither knows about the other. I can't tell them both to drop dead because I am too involved already. What should I do? — HOPELESS

HOPELESS:

You're so involved you left us back at the first proposal.

But it's safe to say if you like both boys equally well, you aren't ready to marry either right now. Take it, Mom! — SUE

DEAR H.:

I'd rather not, but here goes: Tell ach boy about the other and they may solve your problem. By disappearing! — HELEN

PARENT AND CHILD

Students Write It Like It Is

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

When "Parent and Child" asked its readers to write in and say what they thought about the giving of Christmas gifts to teachers, we heard from more than 100 elementary school children.

One of my favorite letters was one that did not follow the pattern clearly set out by the teacher when she gave out the assignment. It is reprinted here with original spelling and punctuation, not because it is "rude," but because it comes from the heart. It is interesting to note that all the other children in the class used "Dear Sir" as the opening of their letters. Not so for Dan, who wrote:

"Dear whatever your name is. . .The teachers say we can't spend over 50 and there isn't much for 50 so I don't get anything for the pin head teachers Sincerely yours."

An emphatic third-grader telephoned her feelings, "Of course we should give gifts to the teachers. You shouldn't just be getting at Christmas."

A FOURTH-GRADER, who has always made something for her teacher, wrote in to say, "All my teachers like surprises. I don't think they should give us presents because they do all sorts of things for us. But we should give them something at Christmas and a card on Valentine's."

Money was a dominant theme in many of the children's letters. A sixth-grader who confessed in a postscript to being lefthanded wrote the following:

"Dear Sir, You probably won't read this letter, it's just one in a million others. My opinion is perhaps shared by 2,000 others. Our teacher gave this to us as an assinment. I think if you have the money, by your teacher a present unless you have 10 teachers. This is all I have to say, right now one of the teachers is watching over us like an eagle, peering over our shoulders."

Another sixth-grader was even was even more direct. After a "Dear Sir" opening he stated, "I don't really feel like giving my teacher anything for Christmas unless the teacher is real nice. I didn't give my 4th grade teacher nothing because she was a crab."

The relationship of the student to the teacher and vice versa was the subject of several letters from students. The following letter has been fixed up a little in punctuation and spelling for reprinting here. Its message, though, is unmistakable:

"I THINK it all depends on the teacher if she or he is mean or nice. But if they're mean or stuck up I don't give them a present. But if they're nice and they take jokes I wood like to get them one. I wood like to buy them all one if they were nice."

A student who signed himself "An American," put it even more bluntly: "Pupils should give teachers a present if they want to have a friend."

A frustrated giver wrote, "I think kids ought to give presents to their teachers. I didn't this year because our teacher insisted that we shouldn't give her anything and she got serious about it. So I didn't but I wanted to real badly."

The question often comes up about children whose families can't afford gifts. This is what one such child wrote, "I did not give a present to my teacher because my parents did not have vary much money to even spend on our own kids. I think we should give our teachers gifts because they spend all their time teaching us and they give us presents too."

"Dear Sir:

"I think it is fun getting and giveing presents for your teacher. It is fun to wacth the teacher open the presents.

"So far every year I gave all my teacters presents because they give me presents and in fare turn I give them one to."

Psychiatrist Says Children Take Death In Their Stride

By PAT BALMES

Psychiatrist Dr. William Lamers Jr. spoke on children's reaction to death to a small group of physicians, nurses, social workers and lay people at St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere yesterday.

A private practitioner in Ross, the chief of psychiatry at Ross General Hospital said, "Children are very flexible; they can adjust to everything. Our obstacle as adults working with children is that we do not recognize their innate strength. Be quiet and do not come at them."

Reaction to loss is not all that bad. It is an essential part of living. Growing up without stress would be a danger to you as an adult, he said. Creative adults (in contrast to noncreative adults) are people who have coped with stress at an early age.

"We should not shield children from the fact of death any more than we should shield them from a cold," the doctor said, remarking on parents who try to prevent a child from seeing a dead animal or knowing that a relative has died.

In the case of siblings of a child with a fatal illness he advised, "Let the other kids know what is going on."

TO GIVE some understanding of the way we react to loss, Lamers said mourning is an ongoing process, not an event. For the work to be done it will take a whole year. Adults and children go through the same processes.

"Allow people to express their feelings, he said. If you feel angry at the separation, be angry," he said.

At the funeral we work through immediate reaction to loss and give solace to the grieving for the long pull ahead, said the psychiatrist drawing the "long pull" on a display board — the roadmap for a child's normal process of reaction to loss.

During the initial period he protests, reacting with disbelief, denial, shock, anger and self-recrimination. He weeps, searches, feels pain, and experiences changes in memory, sleep, appetite and digestion. If reunited, he can return to normal immediately.

In the second stage the child progresses through grief, depression and despair, displaying psychomotor retardation, social inhibition and disturbances in sleeping, eating, bowel and bladder function. Reunited at this stage, his return to normal would take longer.

THE THIRD stage is detachment; he is apathetic, isolated from his environment and his actions are meaningless. He is without interests, physical activity and his full range of emotions.

"Little kids worry about the possibility that they are not going to be cared for. They cannot begin to react to loss until they know that they are going to be taken care of," he said.

The reaction process finally is resolved by forming a new relationship with a substitute, such as a "nanny," according to Lamers.

He spoke of a woman who was assigned to the children's ward of a hospital each night, called "Grandma." Everybody called her Grandma, even the doctors, he said.

"She was essential. She was beautiful. Every hospital needs a grandma," he said.

HE MENTIONED a study showing that a large number of important losses to an adult during a year is likely to bring physical or emotional problems within the following year.

Addressing the problem of what can be done to get through the reaction process with as little damage as possible, he said that the funeral is of primary importance because it is a focus for survivors to acknowledge that their loved one is truly dead.

Another help is to allow the grieving person to express grief. He told of a sorrowing patient who said to him, "I want some tranquilizers."

The psychiatrist replied, "No way. I want some tears."

HELEN AND SUE:

Sometimes I wonder if I should ever ask questions. Especially when the answers aren't what I'd like to hear. Like:

My boyfriend lives in another town and I only see him on weekends. We were getting along fine last Saturday until — the dumb question: We were watching TV and I felt like talking so I asked if he'd ever dated another girl since we started going together? He said "Yes."

That wasn't so bad: we don't really have any ties on each other except we're sort of half way in love — but we've both agreed to "no strings."

But then we talked some more, and I found out he'd gone to bed with this girl. He says she means nothing to him —it just happened after a fraternity party and they'll probably not see each other again.

I guess that's what made me feel so awful —that any girl would do, so maybe he feels this way about me too.

Then I asked him how he'd react if I told him I'd been with another guy —and the double standard reared its ugly head. He got real upset, thinking that I meant I'd gone out on him.

Well, there went our weekend. I was hurt and he was suspicious, which made me mad because he should surely know I'm not the type to play around. But, on the other hand, if he does it, why should he expect me not to, just because I'm a girl?

He's not a "collector," and I keep telling myself a man has certain needs, and this was one of those unexpected happenings. I tried very hard to be "modern" and laugh it off, but there's now a wall between us. And I can see he's worried too. Please help me straighten my head out. I don't know right from wrong anymore, or which of us, if any, has a reason to be upset. — A SECRET PAIN

S.P.:

It's hard to believe that love can hurt so much.

This situation could bring some couples loser together; others, it would tear apart. It's up to you which way this goes —for you started the questioning. A long, serious (non-blaming) talk about pride, trust, needs, expectations, etc. — including the unfairness of the double standard — might turn a "sort of half way love" into a commitment that solves your worries. — SUE

DEAR S.P.:

Elder Bottel say: Girl who asks questions of honest guy usually get answers she'd rather not hear. Same goes for the guy. Doesn't "no strings" include "no prying?"

Now that you've both discovered you care enough to be jealous, perhaps you'll realize that a real relationship always means commitment, and you were fooling yourselves with that talk of "no strings."

By this time, you two are either closer than you ever were before, or you have broken up. Let us know which. — HELEN

HELEN

I am going out with two boys at the same time. One asked me to marry him. But I like the other one just as much.

I do not have enough nerve to tell one I am getting married or the other I don't want to marry him. Neither knows about the other. I can't tell them both to drop dead because I am too involved already. What should I do? — HOPELESS

HOPELESS:

You're so involved you left us back at the first proposal.

But it's safe to say if you like both boys equally well, you aren't ready to marry either right now. Take it, Mom! — SUE

DEAR H.:

I'd rather not, but here goes: Tell ach boy about the other and they may solve your problem. By disappearing! — HELEN

When "Parent and Child" asked its readers to write in and say what they thought about the giving of Christmas gifts to teachers, we heard from more than 100 elementary school children.

One of my favorite letters was one that did not follow the pattern clearly set out by the teacher when she gave out the assignment. It is reprinted here with original spelling and punctuation, not because it is "rude," but because it comes from the heart. It is interesting to note that all the other children in the class used "Dear Sir" as the opening of their letters. Not so for Dan, who wrote:

"Dear whatever your name is. . .The teachers say we can't spend over 50 and there isn't much for 50 so I don't get anything for the pin head teachers Sincerely yours."

An emphatic third-grader telephoned her feelings, "Of course we should give gifts to the teachers. You shouldn't just be getting at Christmas."

A FOURTH-GRADER, who has always made something for her teacher, wrote in to say, "All my teachers like surprises. I don't think they should give us presents because they do all sorts of things for us. But we should give them something at Christmas and a card on Valentine's."

Money was a dominant theme in many of the children's letters. A sixth-grader who confessed in a postscript to being lefthanded wrote the following:

"Dear Sir, You probably won't read this letter, it's just one in a million others. My opinion is perhaps shared by 2,000 others. Our teacher gave this to us as an assinment. I think if you have the money, by your teacher a present unless you have 10 teachers. This is all I have to say, right now one of the teachers is watching over us like an eagle, peering over our shoulders."

Another sixth-grader was even was even more direct. After a "Dear Sir" opening he stated, "I don't really feel like giving my teacher anything for Christmas unless the teacher is real nice. I didn't give my 4th grade teacher nothing because she was a crab."

The relationship of the student to the teacher and vice versa was the subject of several letters from students. The following letter has been fixed up a little in punctuation and spelling for reprinting here. Its message, though, is unmistakable:

"I THINK it all depends on the teacher if she or he is mean or nice. But if they're mean or stuck up I don't give them a present. But if they're nice and they take jokes I wood like to get them one. I wood like to buy them all one if they were nice."

A student who signed himself "An American," put it even more bluntly: "Pupils should give teachers a present if they want to have a friend."

A frustrated giver wrote, "I think kids ought to give presents to their teachers. I didn't this year because our teacher insisted that we shouldn't give her anything and she got serious about it. So I didn't but I wanted to real badly."

The question often comes up about children whose families can't afford gifts. This is what one such child wrote, "I did not give a present to my teacher because my parents did not have vary much money to even spend on our own kids. I think we should give our teachers gifts because they spend all their time teaching us and they give us presents too."

"Dear Sir:

"I think it is fun getting and giveing presents for your teacher. It is fun to wacth the teacher open the presents.

"So far every year I gave all my teacters presents because they give me presents and in fare turn I give them one to."

Psychiatrist Says Children Take Death In Their Stride

By PAT BALMES

Psychiatrist Dr. William Lamers Jr. spoke on children's reaction to death to a small group of physicians, nurses, social workers and lay people at St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere yesterday.

A private practitioner in Ross, the chief of psychiatry at Ross General Hospital said, "Children are very flexible; they can adjust to everything. Our obstacle as adults working with children is that we do not recognize their innate strength. Be quiet and do not come at them."

Reaction to loss is not all that bad. It is an essential part of living. Growing up without stress would be a danger to you as an adult, he said. Creative adults (in contrast to noncreative adults) are people who have coped with stress at an early age.

"We should not shield children from the fact of death any more than we should shield them from a cold," the doctor said, remarking on parents who try to prevent a child from seeing a dead animal or knowing that a relative has died.

In the case of siblings of a child with a fatal illness he advised, "Let the other kids know what is going on."

TO GIVE some understanding of the way we react to loss, Lamers said mourning is an ongoing process, not an event. For the work to be done it will take a whole year. Adults and children go through the same processes.

"Allow people to express their feelings, he said. If you feel angry at the separation, be angry," he said.

At the funeral we work through immediate reaction to loss and give solace to the grieving for the long pull ahead, said the psychiatrist drawing the "long pull" on a display board — the roadmap for a child's normal process of reaction to loss.

During the initial period he protests, reacting with disbelief, denial, shock, anger and self-recrimination. He weeps, searches, feels pain, and experiences changes in memory, sleep, appetite and digestion. If reunited, he can return to normal immediately.

In the second stage the child progresses through grief, depression and despair, displaying psychomotor retardation, social inhibition and disturbances in sleeping, eating, bowel and bladder function. Reunited at this stage, his return to normal would take longer.

THE THIRD stage is detachment; he is apathetic, isolated from his environment and his actions are meaningless. He is without interests, physical activity and his full range of emotions.

"Little kids worry about the possibility that they are not going to be cared for. They cannot begin to react to loss until they know that they are going to be taken care of," he said.

The reaction process finally is resolved by forming a new relationship with a substitute, such as a "nanny," according to Lamers.

He spoke of a woman who was assigned to the children's ward of a hospital each night, called "Grandma." Everybody called her Grandma, even the doctors, he said.

"She was essential. She was beautiful. Every hospital needs a grandma," he said.

HE MENTIONED a study showing that a large number of important losses to an adult during a year is likely to bring physical or emotional problems within the following year.

Addressing the problem of what can be done to get through the reaction process with as little damage as possible, he said that the funeral is of primary importance because it is a focus for survivors to acknowledge that their loved one is truly dead.

Another help is to allow the grieving person to express grief. He told of a sorrowing patient who said to him, "I want some tranquilizers."

The psychiatrist replied, "No way. I want some tears."

Children Learn Society Roles In Split Homes

Children may learn the different roles that men and women play in society even if both parents aren't in the home, a recent cross-national study of 4, 5, and 6 year-olds by the National Institute of Mental Health suggests.

Those children whose fathers are absent or whose mothers work have conventional notions about adult roles, the study indicates. Parental example and sanctions are not alwyas necessary for a child's learning of these roles, since information about them are provided by brothers and sisters, other relatives, mass media and school experience.

The investigation was carried out by Joan Aldous of the University of Minnesota and Takeji Kamido of Osaka City University, Japan, who studied Head Start children in Tennessee and rural Japanese children from low income families.

By PAT BALMES

Psychiatrist Dr. William Lamers Jr. spoke on children's reaction to death to a small group of physicians, nurses, social workers and lay people at St. Stephen's Church in Belvedere yesterday.

A private practitioner in Ross, the chief of psychiatry at Ross General Hospital said, "Children are very flexible; they can adjust to everything. Our obstacle as adults working with children is that we do not recognize their innate strength. Be quiet and do not come at them."

Reaction to loss is not all that bad. It is an essential part of living. Growing up without stress would be a danger to you as an adult, he said. Creative adults (in contrast to noncreative adults) are people who have coped with stress at an early age.

"We should not shield children from the fact of death any more than we should shield them from a cold," the doctor said, remarking on parents who try to prevent a child from seeing a dead animal or knowing that a relative has died.

In the case of siblings of a child with a fatal illness he advised, "Let the other kids know what is going on."

TO GIVE some understanding of the way we react to loss, Lamers said mourning is an ongoing process, not an event. For the work to be done it will take a whole year. Adults and children go through the same processes.

"Allow people to express their feelings, he said. If you feel angry at the separation, be angry," he said.

At the funeral we work through immediate reaction to loss and give solace to the grieving for the long pull ahead, said the psychiatrist drawing the "long pull" on a display board — the roadmap for a child's normal process of reaction to loss.

During the initial period he protests, reacting with disbelief, denial, shock, anger and self-recrimination. He weeps, searches, feels pain, and experiences changes in memory, sleep, appetite and digestion. If reunited, he can return to normal immediately.

In the second stage the child progresses through grief, depression and despair, displaying psychomotor retardation, social inhibition and disturbances in sleeping, eating, bowel and bladder function. Reunited at this stage, his return to normal would take longer.

THE THIRD stage is detachment; he is apathetic, isolated from his environment and his actions are meaningless. He is without interests, physical activity and his full range of emotions.

"Little kids worry about the possibility that they are not going to be cared for. They cannot begin to react to loss until they know that they are going to be taken care of," he said.

The reaction process finally is resolved by forming a new relationship with a substitute, such as a "nanny," according to Lamers.

He spoke of a woman who was assigned to the children's ward of a hospital each night, called "Grandma." Everybody called her Grandma, even the doctors, he said.

"She was essential. She was beautiful. Every hospital needs a grandma," he said.

HE MENTIONED a study showing that a large number of important losses to an adult during a year is likely to bring physical or emotional problems within the following year.

Addressing the problem of what can be done to get through the reaction process with as little damage as possible, he said that the funeral is of primary importance because it is a focus for survivors to acknowledge that their loved one is truly dead.

Another help is to allow the grieving person to express grief. He told of a sorrowing patient who said to him, "I want some tranquilizers."

The psychiatrist replied, "No way. I want some tears."

Children Learn Society Roles In Split Homes

Children may learn the different roles that men and women play in society even if both parents aren't in the home, a recent cross-national study of 4, 5, and 6 year-olds by the National Institute of Mental Health suggests.

Those children whose fathers are absent or whose mothers work have conventional notions about adult roles, the study indicates. Parental example and sanctions are not alwyas necessary for a child's learning of these roles, since information about them are provided by brothers and sisters, other relatives, mass media and school experience.

The investigation was carried out by Joan Aldous of the University of Minnesota and Takeji Kamido of Osaka City University, Japan, who studied Head Start children in Tennessee and rural Japanese children from low income families.

ing they exist will help the poor reader.

ANOTHER SKILL the older child must have is syllabication. First you must be sure he can hear the syllables in a word. Say the words and clap for each syllable, or have him tap a pencil on the table each time he thinks he hears a syllable.

Starting this listening game with younger children will help them develop an awareness of the parts of words. If the older child needs exercises in syllabication, print five two-and three-syllable words on cards. Cut them into syllables with a scissors. You help him by first reading the words to him and discussing their meanings. Mix the pieces and try to sort them out.

I always write the original list of words on a separate piece of paper so the child can refer to it and match his words to it. This is better than having him struggle with the pieces and frustrate himself.

POOR READERS need all the visual aids and all the memory aids they can get. In my remedial reading room I have charts showing the short vowels and a picture for each one, the long vowels and a picture for each one, the "ch" and "sh" sound and a train saying "ch, ch, ch" next to a lady with her finger up to her lips saying "sh" to illustrate those sounds. I keep word family lists for the sound we are studying on the board so that the children can say these words together until they are learned.

If you have a truly disabled reader in your home, make these charts. Show your child what he is supposed to learn from each one. Help him remember how to recall those difficult sounds. When he can't recall the sound of short "o", say: "Remember how it sounds at the beginning of the word ostrich of octopus?" Point to your short vowel chart. Don't take the charts and pictures away until he has stopped looking at them when he's in trouble. You'll know soon enough, when that times has come.

THIS MAY SOUND complicated to you at first. If you are concerned and sincerely want to do something, read and reread this column. Try to understand that you are presenting something to be learned, you are explaining it, you are going to try to show it in use, you are going to reinforce this learning by playing a game that teaches it. Be patient, and pleasant.

Remember to follow the rules I set up for you. Don't force the child to play when he is tired. Try to make this a part of the day he looks forward to. When you see him improving, you'll look forward to it too.

TOMORROW: How to make your child want to read.

Panel At Tam High School Views Consumer's Problems

By BETTY FROST

Consumer problems were discussed from two points of view by panelists probing "The Differences Between a Consumption Directed Economy and a Consumer Directed Economy" at the opening of the Consumer Resource Center at Tamalpais High School yesterday afternoon.

John J. Rouse, regional coordinator for the California Department of Consumer Affairs, talked on the recourses open to citizens whose consumer rights had been violated.

Jean Fitzgerald of KTIM, panel moderator, set the tone for the discussion when she told the 40 people in the audience that the consumer is caught in a changing society where industry, instead of supplying needs, is often guilty of artificially creating needs.

"CONSUMER PROBLEMS start in the cradle," Mrs. Cross said. "Commercials have Americans programmed from childhood to want things not just for enjoyment but for status. Frequently supermarkets are so arranged that little hands can reach candy bars and trinkets that find their way to the shopping cart."

"People have been seduced with convenience," the author continued. "But how hard is it really to pour your own sugar on dry cereal, when the sugar added by the manufacturer averages out to one dollar and 20 cents a pound?"

She unraveled one of the mysteries of labeling when she explained that a can of "spaghetti with meat balls and sauce" contains 6 per cent more meat than a similar can labeled "spaghetti with sauce and meat balls." When the word "meat" comes first in the label, more of it is present, Mrs. Cross said.

The recently instituted nutritional labeling of canned foods was hailed by Mrs. Cross, Marceletti Henry, Consumer Resource Center director, and Nancy Bratt, home economist and an assistant director.

Mrs. Bratt called the breakdown on the label of nutritional elements such as calorie, vitamin and mineral content, "a fantastic breakthrough."

Mrs. Cross stated, "there are not enough good laws on the books. Business lobbies are stronger than consumer lobbies. Consumers must organize so they can exercise real political clout."

Rouse, who is also deputy chief of the division of investigation, Department of Consumer Affairs, is in charge of investigations for licensees in professions from accountants to veterinarians, and including such occupations as barbers, contractors, dry cleaners and pharmaceutical manufacturers.

"IF CONSUMERS will report frauds to the Department of Consumer Affairs violations will be investigated, a hearing held, the license revoked and the guilty offender put out of business," he said.

Rouse noted that nearly 10 years had been spent investigating fraudulent practices in the television repair business. "During that time 100 illegal operators were put out of business. The people feel more secure about TV repair," he said.

Redress is available, the state official emphasized, on page 55 of the Marin County telephone directory, under the heading "Consumer Complaint and Protection Coordinators." The local, state and federal government agencies offering assistance to consumers are listed.

Prior to the discussion, held in the school student center, Mrs. Henry and her staff welcomed over 100 civic officials, students, teachers and members of the community to the Consumer Resource Center in Wood Hall.

On display were publications on such consumer topics as food, purchase of major and minor appliances, insurance, cosmetics, legal assistance and housing. Visitors could also watch film strips or listen to tapes on consumer subjects. This information, gathered over a six-month period, will be available to students and the public. Appointments to use the resource center may be made by calling Tamalpais High School.

Chinese Method Of Picking Bride

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Chinese proverb for a man contemplating marriage goes like this:

"A man should marry a woman half his age plus seven years."

Dinners Will Precede Play

Hosting dinner parties prior to the performance of "How the Other Half Loves" Saturday night are members of the Marin Music Chest, Messrs. and Mmes. Girvin Wait, A. Barlow Ferguson, Rollin K. Post, Wallace Scott, John Finn III, Dr. and Mrs. Emmet Rixford and Mmes. John A. Lesoine, Georgia Jordan and Roger Erickson.

FOR THE 20TH annual Mardi Gras Ball Saturday night the Palace Court of the Sheraton Palace Hotel in San Francisco will be transformed into a scene reminiscent of the Hapsburg Empire and the Palace at Schonbrunn during the reign of Emperor Franz Joseph and Empress Elizabeth.

A king and queen will be selected by past ball queens and crowned in a formal coronation ceremony with crown jewels, replicas of the crown jewels of England.

The orchestra will be encircled by a double stairway leading up to the coronation dais, and hundreds of balloons and flowers in fuchsia, silver, white and gold will decorate the room in the tradition of Austria in the days of the Vienna waltz.

HEINZ WINSAUER of Austria is visiting the Alan Shelmerdine family in Mill Valley for a week. The Austrian is an American Field Service exchange student attending school in Roseville. The week-long visit will give him an opportunity to attend classes at Tamalpais High School.

Heinz was honored Sunday at a lunch at the home of the Bruce Wrisleys in Mill Valley. The party was attended by players on the Tam soccer team, after a game. Co-hosts with the Wrisleys were the Shelmerdines and Dr. and Mrs. Martin H. Long of Mill Valley.

A CHAMPAGNE shower on Feb. 17 at the home of Mrs. Joan Davis in San Rafael honored two engaged couples, Terrie Huston and David Soldner, and Mark Huston and Robin Links.

Terrie and David plan an October wedding, and Robin and Mark plan to be married in August.

Make Own Teaching Aids

ing they exist will help the poor reader.

ANOTHER SKILL the older child must have is syllabication. First you must be sure he can hear the syllables in a word. Say the words and clap for each syllable, or have him tap a pencil on the table each time he thinks he hears a syllable.

Starting this listening game with younger children will help them develop an awareness of the parts of words. If the older child needs exercises in syllabication, print five two-and three-syllable words on cards. Cut them into syllables with a scissors. You help him by first reading the words to him and discussing their meanings. Mix the pieces and try to sort them out.

I always write the original list of words on a separate piece of paper so the child can refer to it and match his words to it. This is better than having him struggle with the pieces and frustrate himself.

POOR READERS need all the visual aids and all the memory aids they can get. In my remedial reading room I have charts showing the short vowels and a picture for each one, the long vowels and a picture for each one, the "ch" and "sh" sound and a train saying "ch, ch, ch" next to a lady with her finger up to her lips saying "sh" to illustrate those sounds. I keep word family lists for the sound we are studying on the board so that the children can say these words together until they are learned.

If you have a truly disabled reader in your home, make these charts. Show your child what he is supposed to learn from each one. Help him remember how to recall those difficult sounds. When he can't recall the sound of short "o", say: "Remember how it sounds at the beginning of the word ostrich of octopus?" Point to your short vowel chart. Don't take the charts and pictures away until he has stopped looking at them when he's in trouble. You'll know soon enough, when that times has come.

THIS MAY SOUND complicated to you at first. If you are concerned and sincerely want to do something, read and reread this column. Try to understand that you are presenting something to be learned, you are explaining it, you are going to try to show it in use, you are going to reinforce this learning by playing a game that teaches it. Be patient, and pleasant.

Remember to follow the rules I set up for you. Don't force the child to play when he is tired. Try to make this a part of the day he looks forward to. When you see him improving, you'll look forward to it too.

TOMORROW: How to make your child want to read.

Panel At Tam High School Views Consumer's Problems

By BETTY FROST

Consumer problems were dissussed from two points of view by panelists probing "The Differences Between a Consumption Directed Economy and a Consumer Directed Economy" at the opening of the Consumer Resource Center at Tamalpais High School yesterday afternoon.

John J. Rouse, regional coordinator for the California Department of Consumer Affairs, talked on the recourses open to citizens whose consumer rights had been violated.

Jean Fitzgerald of KTIM, panel moderator, set the tone for the discussion when she told the 40 people in the audience that the consumer is caught in a changing society where industry, instead of supplying needs, is often guilty of artificially creating needs.

"CONSUMER PROBLEMS start in the cradle," Mrs. Cross said. "Commercials have Americans programmed from childhood to want things not just for enjoyment but for status. Frequently supermarkets are so arranged that little hands can reach candy bars and trinkets that find their way to the shopping cart."

"People have been seduced with convenience," the author continued. "But how hard is it really to pour your own sugar on dry cereal, when the sugar added by the manufacturer averages out to one dollar and 20 cents a pound?"

She unraveled one of the mysteries of labeling when she explained that a can of "spaghetti with meat balls and sauce" contains 6 per cent more meat than a similar can labeled "spaghetti with sauce and meat balls." When the word "meat" comes first in the label, more of it is present, Mrs. Cross said.

The recently instituted nutritional labeling of canned foods was hailed by Mrs. Cross, Marceletti Henry, Consumer Resource Center director, and Nancy Bratt, home economist and an assistant director.

Mrs. Bratt called the breakdown on the label of nutritional elements such as calorie, vitamin and mineral content, "a fantastic breakthrough."

Mrs. Cross stated, "there are not enough good laws on the books. Business lobbies are stronger than consumer lobbies. Consumers must organize so they can exercise real political clout."

Rouse, who is also deputy chief of the division of investigation, Department of Consumer Affairs, is in charge of investigations for licensees in professions from accountants to veterinarians, and including such occupations as barbers, contractors, dry cleaners and pharmaceutical manufacturers.

"IF CONSUMERS will report frauds to the Department of Consumer Affairs violations will be investigated, a hearing held, the license revoked and the guilty offender put out of business," he said.

Rouse noted that nearly 10 years had been spent investigating fraudulent practices in the television repair business. "During that time 100 illegal operators were put out of business. The people feel more secure about TV repair," he said.

Redress is available, the state official emphasized, on page 55 of the Marin County telephone directory, under the heading "Consumer Complaint and Protection Coordinators." The local, state and federal government agencies offering assistance to consumers are listed.

Prior to the discussion, held in the school student center, Mrs. Henry and her staff welcomed over 100 civic officials, students, teachers and members of the community to the Consumer Resource Center in Wood Hall.

On display were publications on such consumer topics as food, purchase of major and minor appliances, insurance, cosmetics, legal assistance and housing. Visitors could also watch film strips or listen to tapes on consumer subjects. This information, gathered over a six-month period, will be available to students and the public. Appointments to use the resource center may be made by calling Tamalpais High School.

Dinners Will Precede Play

Hosting dinner parties prior to the performance of "How the Other Half Loves" Saturday night are members of the Marin Music Chest, Messrs. and Mmes. Girvin Wait, A. Barlow Ferguson, Rollin K. Post, Wallace Scott, John Finn III, Dr. and Mrs. Emmet Rixford and Mmes. John A. Lesoine, Georgia Jordan and Roger Erickson.

FOR THE 20TH annual Mardi Gras Ball Saturday night the Palace Court of the Sheraton Palace Hotel in San Francisco will be transformed into a scene reminiscent of the Hapsburg Empire and the Palace at Schonbrunn during the reign of Emperor Franz Joseph and Empress Elizabeth.

A king and queen will be selected by past ball queens and crowned in a formal coronation ceremony with crown jewels, replicas of the crown jewels of England.

The orchestra will be encircled by a double stairway leading up to the coronation dais, and hundreds of balloons and flowers in fuchsia, silver, white and gold will decorate the room in the tradition of Austria in the days of the Vienna waltz.

HEINZ WINSAUER of Austria is visiting the Alan Shelmerdine family in Mill Valley for a week. The Austrian is an American Field Service exchange student attending school in Roseville. The week-long visit will give him an opportunity to attend classes at Tamalpais High School.

Heinz was honored Sunday at a lunch at the home of the Bruce Wrisleys in Mill Valley. The party was attended by players on the Tam soccer team, after a game. Co-hosts with the Wrisleys were the Shelmerdines and Dr. and Mrs. Martin H. Long of Mill Valley.

A CHAMPAGNE shower on Feb. 17 at the home of Mrs. Joan Davis in San Rafael honored two engaged couples, Terrie Huston and David Soldner, and Mark Huston and Robin Links.

Terrie and David plan an October wedding, and Robin and Mark plan to be married in August.

Ambrose Bierce No Marriage Fan

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ambrose Bierce, who roamed the earth between 1842 and 1914 or thereabouts, wasn't known for saying sweet things. His remarks, in fact, have been described as acidic. Among the acidic words credited to him are the following—a definition of marriage.

"Marriage: a community consisting of a master, a mistress, and two slaves, making in all, two."

That Setting Trick Does Not Come Easy—Work Is Involved

HIGH DIAMOND

East took the queen of diamonds and contentedly led the ace of diamonds next. This made for contentment all around; South made the contract, and nobody noticed that East had muffed the defense.

South ruffed the second diamond and led a trump to West's ace. Declarer took the club return, drew two more rounds of trumps and tried a heart finesse. When the king of hearts appeared, South was home.

WORK IT OUT

You can work it out if you take the East seat and concentrate on just your own hand and the dummy. You win the first trick with the queen of diamonds and ask yourself how you can get three additional tricks.

You don't expect a second diamond trick in view of West's raise and the fall of the jack. If West has nothing in hearts, your king will be useless, and your partner will have to take three tricks all by himself. This is impossible, since West would have bid more if he had held so strong a hand.

ONLY HOPE

The only hope is that West has something in hearts. Hence you switch at the second trick to the king of hearts.

South must win the trick and lead a trump, but West takes the ace of spades and the queen of hearts, after which he leads his last heart to give you a ruff. Your ruffing trick defeats the contract, but you had to work for it.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer bids one heart, your partner doubles (for takeout), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- Q 8 7 6
♥- 9 6 5 4 2
♦- 9 5
♣- A 10.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

Despite your length in hearts you should not pass the double for penalties. The time to pass is when you have such solid trumps that you can afford to draw trumps yourself.

Actress Elaine Stritch Married

LONDON (UPI) — Elaine Stritch and John Bay — both 45, both American actors appearing in a London play and both previously unmarried — married one another Tuesday. They first met in New York 15 years ago. When they came to London to play in Tennessee Williams' "Small Craft Warnings," they decided to wed.

"I just never felt it was right before," Miss Stritch said. "It is now It's as simple as that"

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

1. DAVID NIVEN, handsome Hollywood actor, could be 53 to 63 today. Which? He has just published a best-selling autobiography called "The Moon Is a Balloon," telling all the fun he has had since being born in Scotland years ago. He won an Academy Award in the picture, "Separate Tables."

2. HARRY BELAFONTE is that black American star who is either 46 or 56 today. This New Yorker became favorite after taking the stage in the early 1950's, proving he was a first-rate actor and singer in such films as "The Bright Road," "Carmen Jones," and "The World, the Flesh, and the Devil." A multiple-award winner, he is an adviser to CORE and the Peace Corps.

3. DINAH SHORE is another of today's birthday celebrants, 46 or 56? This gal from Winchester, Tenn., got her singing break on a New York radio station (WNEW), then joined NBC which began featuring her on network shows. The star of her own TV show for years, she came back to demonstrate her cooking style two years ago on NBC's "Morning Show."

4. ROBERT CONRAD, star of TV's "Assignment Vienna," might claim 28 or 38 today. Born in Chicago, he studied drama at Northwestern University and entered show business as a singer. But Hollywood saw his star potential, featuring him regularly in "Lawman," "Maverick," "Colt 45," and "77 Sunset Strip." He speaks Spanish fluently and lives in Encino, Calif.

HIGH DIAMOND

East took the queen of diamonds and contentedly led the ace of diamonds next. This made for contentment all around; South made the contract, and nobody noticed that East had muffed the defense.

South ruffed the second diamond and led a trump to West's ace. Declarer took the club return, drew two more rounds of trumps and tried a heart finesse. When the king of hearts appeared, South was home.

WORK IT OUT

You can work it out if you take the East seat and concentrate on just your own hand and the dummy. You win the first trick with the queen of diamonds and ask yourself how you can get three additional tricks.

You don't expect a second diamond trick in view of West's raise and the fall of the jack. If West has nothing in hearts, your king will be useless, and your partner will have to take three tricks all by himself. This is impossible, since West would have bid more if he had held so strong a hand.

ONLY HOPE

The only hope is that West has something in hearts. Hence you switch at the second trick to the king of hearts.

South must win the trick and lead a trump, but West takes the ace of spades and the queen of hearts, after which he leads his last heart to give you a ruff. Your ruffing trick defeats the contract, but you had to work for it.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer bids one heart, your partner doubles (for takeout), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- Q 8 7 6
♥- 9 6 5 4 2
♦- 9 5
♣- A 10.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

Despite your length in hearts you should not pass the double for penalties. The time to pass is when you have such solid trumps that you can afford to draw trumps yourself.

Actress Elaine Stritch Married

LONDON (UPI) — Elaine Stritch and John Bay — both 45, both American actors appearing in a London play and both previously unmarried — married one another Tuesday. They first met in New York 15 years ago. When they came to London to play in Tennessee Williams' "Small Craft Warnings," they decided to wed.

"I just never felt it was right before," Miss Stritch said. "It is now It's as simple as that"

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

1. DAVID NIVEN, handsome Hollywood actor, could be 53 to 63 today. Which? He has just published a best-selling autobiography called "The Moon Is a Balloon," telling all the fun he has had since being born in Scotland years ago. He won an Academy Award in the picture, "Separate Tables."

2. HARRY BELAFONTE is that black American star who is either 46 or 56 today. This New Yorker became favorite after taking the stage in the early 1950's, proving he was a first-rate actor and singer in such films as "The Bright Road," "Carmen Jones," and "The World, the Flesh, and the Devil." A multiple-award winner, he is an adviser to CORE and the Peace Corps.

3. DINAH SHORE is another of today's birthday celebrants, 46 or 56? This gal from Winchester, Tenn., got her singing break on a New York radio station (WNEW), then joined NBC which began featuring her on network shows. The star of her own TV show for years, she came back to demonstrate her cooking style two years ago on NBC's "Morning Show."

4. ROBERT CONRAD, star of TV's "Assignment Vienna," might claim 28 or 38 today. Born in Chicago, he studied drama at Northwestern University and entered show business as a singer. But Hollywood saw his star potential, featuring him regularly in "Lawman," "Maverick," "Colt 45," and "77 Sunset Strip." He speaks Spanish fluently and lives in Encino, Calif.

ON THE ROAD — An elephant meanders along an African road in a scene from "Cape to Kenya," feature length travel film which will be shown in Marin Monday.

Africa To Be Topic Of Film On Monday

"Africa, Cape to Kenya," a new feature length color travel adventure film, will be narrated in person by its producer, Thayer Soule, as part of the the Explorama series at 8:15 p.m. Monday at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

The film is a photographic essay of Soule's latest trip to Africa and features his travels from the Cape of Good Hope in the south to snowpcapped Mount Kenya on the equator.

Highlights include scenes of the city of Capetown, Zululand, Kruger Park, Nairobi in East Africa, Victoria Falls, the Mount Kenya Safari Club, Mount Kilimanjaro and considerable footage of African wild life.

Soule was production assistant to Burton Holmes for some 20 years. He has been traveling most of his life and has been appearing professionally since 1936. He has produced four earlier films.

The dinner is sponsored by several poetry groups including the American Association of University Women Poets' Group of Marin County.

A Busy Theatrical Week Ahead

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

A busy theatrical week is ahead in the Bay Area.

Mark Twain, or rather Hal Holbrook, will return for an engagement at San Francisco's Masonic Auditorium on Saturday night. Holbrook's "Mark Twain Tonight" will also be presented Tuesday night at the Veterans Memorial Building in Marin County.

"Butley," an English comedy by Simon Gray and starring noted British actor Alan Bates, will open a two-week engagement at San Francisco's Curran Theater on Monday night. "Butley" has just ended a successful run in New York. Prior to that, Bates was hailed in the part by London critics.

And on Tuesday night, the Royal Shakespeare Company's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," will arrive at the Geary Theater for a special three-week engagement as part of the American Conservatory Theater's current season.

Directed by Peter Brook, the unconventional production of the Shakespeare comedy has earned critical acclaim on both sides of the Atlantic since its 1970 debut at England's Stratford-on-Avon.

HAL HOLBROOK
As Mark Twain

It will also be a banner week in the field of dance.

The American Ballet Theater of New York will arrive at the San Francisco Opera House Sunday for eight performances. "Giselle" will be the opening offering with Cynthia Gregory dancing the matinee and Natalia Makarova the evening performance.

The troupe will offer three performances of "Swan Lake."

Arriving Monday night in San Francisco will be Japan's famous puppet company, "Bunraku" for eight performances at Nourse Auditorium. The company made its first appearance in San Francisco in 1966. The nearly life-size puppets are operated by a three-man team.

ART

An interesting exhibit is currently at the Oakland Museum. It presents the palatial grandeur of California's movie theaters from the 1920s to the 1940s. Interior drawings, photographs and objects from theaters designed by Anthony Heinsbergen make up the show. During the opulent era of Hollywood, Heinsbergen created interior for 747 movie palaces.

Other events:

Geary Theater — "you Can't Take It With You," today, 8:30 p.m. and Saturday, 2:30 p.m.; "That Championship Season," tomorrow, 8:30 p.m.; "A Doll's House," Saturday, 8:30 p.m.; Royal Shakespeare Company's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," opens Tuesday, 7:30 p.m. and then for three weeks: Monday through Saturday, 7:30 p.m.; matinees March 10, 14, 17 and 24.

Senegalese Dance Unit To Perform

The National Dance Company of Senegal, including 42 singers and dancers, will appear at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building at 8:30 p.m. March 14.

Ethnic dances of Africa will be performed by the company, who wear costumes of beaded caps, feather headdresses, body jewelry, pleated balloon pants, grass skirts, multi-colored sashes and dashikis. The women dance bare-breasted.

The dances features enormous leaps by the men, often accompanied by constant movement by other dances, and accompanied by drums, bells worn on wrists and ankles, cymbals and the beating of sticks.

Senegalese dances aimed at insuring good harvests, propitiating the gods, exorcising evil spirits and assuring fertility will be included on the program.

ON THE ROAD — An elephant meanders along an African road in a scene from "Cape to Kenya," feature length travel film which will be shown in Marin Monday.

Africa To Be Topic Of Film On Monday

"Africa, Cape to Kenya," a new feature length color travel adventure film, will be narrated in person by its producer, Thayer Soule, as part of the the Explorama series at 8:15 p.m. Monday at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

The film is a photographic essay of Soule's latest trip to Africa and features his travels from the Cape of Good Hope in the south to snowpcapped Mount Kenya on the equator.

Highlights include scenes of the city of Capetown, Zululand, Kruger Park, Nairobi in East Africa, Victoria Falls, the Mount Kenya Safari Club, Mount Kilimanjaro and considerable footage of African wild life.

Soule was production assistant to Burton Holmes for some 20 years. He has been traveling most of his life and has been appearing professionally since 1936. He has produced four earlier films.

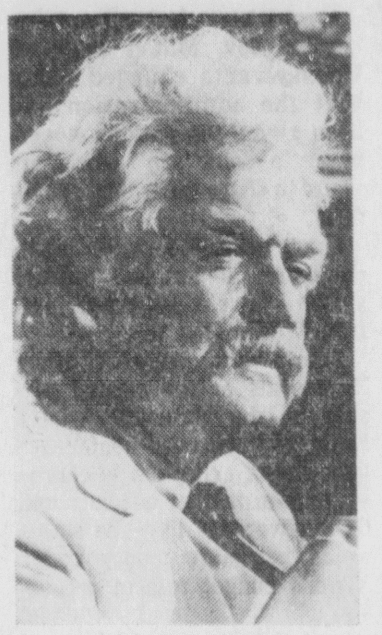
MUSIC, ART, DRAMA

A Busy Theatrical Week Ahead

By JAMES E. WILLIAMS

A busy theatrical week is ahead in the Bay Area.

Mark Twain, or rather Hal Holbrook, will return for an engagement at San Francisco's Masonic Auditorium on Saturday night. Holbrook's "Mark Twain Tonight" will also be presented Tuesday night at the Veterans Memorial Building in Marin County.



HAL HOLBROOK
As Mark Twain

"Butley," an English comedy by Simon Gray and starring noted British actor Alan Bates, will open a two-week engagement at San Francisco's Curran Theater on Monday night. "Butley" has just ended a successful run in New York. Prior to that, Bates was hailed in the part by London critics.

And on Tuesday night, the Royal Shakespeare Company's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," will arrive at the Geary Theater for a special three-week engagement as part of the American Conservatory Theater's current season.

Directed by Peter Brook, the unconventional production of the Shakespeare comedy has earned critical acclaim on both sides of the Atlantic since its 1970 debut at England's Stratford-on-Avon.

It will also be a banner week in the field of dance.

The American Ballet Theater of New York will arrive at the San Francisco Opera House Sunday for eight performances. "Giselle" will be the opening offering with Cynthia Gregory dancing the matinee and Natalia Makarova the evening performance.

The troupe will offer three performances of "Swan Lake."

Arriving Monday night in San Francisco will be Japan's famous puppet company, "Bunraku" for eight performances at Nourse Auditorium. The company made its first appearance in San Francisco in 1966. The nearly life-size puppets are operated by a three-man team.

ART

An interesting exhibit is currently at the Oakland Museum. It presents the palatial grandeur of California's movie theaters from the 1920s to the 1940s. Interior drawings, photographs and objects from theaters designed by Anthony Heinsbergen make up the show. During the opulent era of Hollywood, Heinsbergen created interior for 747 movie palaces.

Other events:

Geary Theater — "you Can't Take It With You," today, 8:30 p.m. and Saturday, 2:30 p.m.; "That Championship Season," tomorrow, 8:30 p.m.; "A Doll's House," Saturday, 8:30 p.m.; Royal Shakespeare Company's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," opens Tuesday, 7:30 p.m. and then for three weeks: Monday through Saturday, 7:30 p.m.; matinees March 10, 14, 17 and 24.

Curran Theater — "Butley" opens 8:30 p.m. Monday for two-week engagement. Monday through Saturday, 8:30 p.m.; Saturday, 2:30 p.m.

Begins Term

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Ambassador Aquilino E. Boyd of Panama begins a month's term as president of the U.N. Security Council today.

Senegalese Dance Unit To Perform

The National Dance Company of Senegal, including 42 singers and dancers, will appear at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building at 8:30 p.m. March 14.

Ethnic dances of Africa will be performed by the company, who wear costumes of beaded caps, feather headdresses, body jewelry, pleated balloon pants, grass skirts, multi-colored sashes and dashikis. The women dance bare-breasted.

The dances features enormous leaps by the men, often accompanied by constant movement by other dances, and accompanied by drums, bells worn on wrists and ankles, cymbals and the beating of sticks.

Senegalese dances aimed at insuring good harvests, propitiating the gods, exorcising evil spirits and assuring fertility will be included on the program.

Senegalese Dance Unit To Perform

The National Dance Company of Senegal, including 42 singers and dancers, will appear at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building at 8:30 p.m. March 14.

Ethnic dances of Africa will be performed by the company, who wear costumes of beaded caps, feather headdresses, body jewelry, pleated balloon pants, grass skirts, multi-colored sashes and dashikis. The women dance bare-breasted.

The dances features enormous leaps by the men, often accompanied by constant movement by other dances, and accompanied by drums, bells worn on wrists and ankles, cymbals and the beating of sticks.

Senegalese dances aimed at insuring good harvests, propitiating the gods, exorcising evil spirits and assuring fertility will be included on the program.

JOLLY JACK NIGHT!
at the "Chez Pierre"

Tonight!—from eight to late!

No big deal, really. Just a jolly good way to appease the rain gods — to shake the February fluies — to wind up the meanest Marin winter in years. Here are some highlights . . .

(1.) A cataclysmic cocktail, the "Jolly Folly," specially concocted by none other than Jolly Jack Seaver himself. It is absolutely guaranteed to kick your crumby winter blues! (2.) Free "Jolly Buttons" — two different kinds — to keep you pinned together until spring smiles full-time on our county. (3.) A medley of maniacal dance songs, performed by the incomparable Jolly Jack Jumpeteers. (4.) An exclusive showing of the Jolly Jack Gallery - a rare collection of character studies, including the only known photograph of Jolly Jack frowning. (5.) Jolly Jack himself - Mr. Springtime! So if you're waterlogged, tired, mean, depressed, fed up, whatever - now's the time to shake that silly winter stuff. Jolly Jack Night at the Chez Pierre! Tonight — from eight to late! You deserve to be there!

POSSIBLE COMMUTER AID

A worker displays the latest device being used by the Golden Gate Bridge District in its efforts to speed up auto traffic across the span. Motorists would be furnished the small battery-operated transmitter and be charged for a specific number of commute trips. Each trip would correspond with an impulse and the device could be programmed to emit a specific number of impulses, each registering in the toll booth when triggered by the motorist. When one transmitter is completed, the motorist would receive a freshly charged device, reset for more trips. Currently only a few are in experimental use.

Alaskan Line Hearings Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Interior Committee will hold hearings March 9 on legislation that would remove legal obstacles to construction of the Alaska Oil pipeline, according to chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

As the committee approved the nomination of Jack Horton to be an assistant interior secretary for land and water resources, Jackson said Wednesday he hoped the bill could clear the committee for floor action by the end of March.

The measure would overturn a decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals that the proposed 789-mile pipeline would violate a 1920 law prohibiting the granting of rights-of-way wider than 54 feet.

Special Panel To Rule On Property

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Three members of the Assessment Appeals Board are unhappy with the valuations placed on their property by the county assessor. In the ordinary course of things, property owners appeal to the Assessment Appeals Board—which in this case would mean the board members would be judging their own complaints.

The county Board of Supervisors has accepted a plan to appoint a special three-member panel to rule on assessment appeals from members of the Assessment Appeals Board.

Shapp Calls Federal Tax Revenue Plan 'Snow Job'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania charged today that the administration had been giving the nation's governors "a snow job" about its plans to share federal tax revenues.

Shapp said the states might do better under the present system of aid programs run from Washington.

Shapp and several other Democrats at the closing session of the three-day winter National Governors Conference took strong exception to claims by administration officials and GOP governors that the states would get more money under Nixon's budget reform proposals.

Republicans snapped back at the Democrats during the only public session of the conference that it was premature to talk about abandoning revenue sharing before it had been given a chance to work.

The Democrats, representing 31 states, agreed unanimously at a closed breakfast caucus before the open session to withhold at least temporarily their support from Nixon's proposed second-step "special revenue sharing" plan.

They decided to make their own independent analysis of the administration's budget plans for the year starting July 1. They plan to meet in the spring to discuss the position they will take on Nixon's long-delayed proposal to substitute about half a dozen revenue sharing payments to states and localities for the current list of about 1,000 single-purpose aid programs financed and supervised from Washington.

Although Shapp's criticism of the administration was the sharpest at this morning's public session, other Democrats joined in.

Gov. Patrick Lucey of Wisconsin said he found it "difficult not to conclude the states are being cut back."

"It seems to me we6are being short-changed somewhere," said Lucey.

Gov. J. J. Exon of Nebraska said he wanted to avoid partisanship, but "if you think the programs are not being cut, you are being misled."

Republican governors persisted in their argument that there was more money for the states. Gov. Jack Williams of Arizona said "this is not a slashed budget" and Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa said he had been assured the administration did not intend to "just cut these programs — there will be more money, not less."

In his speech, Shapp noted: "The sun is shining in Washington but this revenue sharing issue is still shrouded in fog."

"The fact remains we are being cut," Shapp said. "It is an illusion to think revenue sharing as proposed is going to help us. We ought to be thinking whether the whole revenue sharing concept ought to be reversed and go back to categorical grants."

KIDNAPPING ANNIVERSARY

He Remembers Lindbergh Case

By JEFF GREER

Forty-one years ago today, the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped. Two veteran pilots — one now living in Greenbrae, the other in Santa Rosa — were intimately involved in efforts to solve the infamous case.

Neither knew the other lived nearby, through the years, until a recent meeting of aviation pioneers, the Dadaelians.

Retired Air Force Col. Charles T. Stoffer, 79, of Greenbrae mentioned that he had flown the first New York City newsmen to Hopewell, N.J., scene of the kidnapping. And George L. Richard, Santa Rosa businessman, recalled that he had the sad duty, on May 12, 1932, of telling Col. Charles A. Lindbergh that his tiny son had been found dead.

COL. CHARLES T. STOFFER
Recalls Lindbergh case

Both said they still consider the kidnapping, the weird plots over the ransom, and the trail and subsequent electrocution of Bruno Richard Hauptman to be the crime of the century, in terms of the worldwide attention it attracted.

Zealously hounded by reporters and photographers, the Lindberghs scarcely could draw an unobserved breath even before the kidnapping of their firstborn child, Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. Lindbergh's 33-hour solo flight from New York to Paris on May 20-21, 1927 had grabbed the world's attention as much as a fellow flier's first footsteps on the moon decades later.

As a result, Lindbergh had chosen a hideaway in New Jersey's Sourland mountains for his home. The spot was so remote that Stoffer wasn't even familiar with any airfields nearby, when he had to fly the first team of New York newsmen to the kidnap scene.

Stoffer, his wife and another couple were playing bridge in the Stoffers' 72nd Street home in Manhattan when an excited editor "almost shouted over the telephone. 'the Lindbergh baby has been kidnapped . . . can you fly my men to Hopewell?' "

"I really didn't know where Hopewell was," Stoffer confessed 41 years later. "But off we went." It was a dark, windy night.

Stoffer found an airfield at Princeton, a few miles from Hopewell. "There were no perimeter lights. The big Travelair highwing cabin plane I was flying had a parachute flare, but it hadn't been checked for months. I had one of the photographers drop it — and it worked.

"We landed — and there wasn't a soul around, not even a watchman," the Greenbrae man said.

Stoffer, still in a bulky flying suit, and three newspaper men wangled a ride from two passing motorists. The motorists, Stoffer recalled, were in a bad mood already. While returning from a night on the town in New York City they had been held up by police roadblocks at the Holland Tunnel for more than an hour. Dragnets were everywhere for the kidnapper or kidnappers.

An argument at the crossroads over whether the driver should take his friend home first or detour to Hopewell was resolved with a $10 fare pledge. The newsmen were delivered to Hopewell's lone hotel.

Ironically, the pilot recalls, the detour argument took place within 300 to 400 feet of the spot where the Lindbergh baby's body was found weeks later.

Once at the hotel, Stoffer discovered his whole party was "about $1.78 shy" of being able to pay the promised $10 fare — so Stoffer borrowed the money from Paul Gebhardt, the hotel manager. Those were Depression days.

In the hotel were only Gebhardt; Charles Williamson who was the local constable, and "a couple of newspapermen from Philadelphia. We were the first New York newsmen to get to Hopewell," Stoffer said.

But the town's only public telephone was ringing off the wall in the hotel. Williamson was getting calls and answering questions from newspapers all over the United States and Europe.

The next day, March 2, was a busy one, Stoffer's neatly lettered flight log shows. He moved the plane from Princeton to a cow pasture on the Herbert Voorhees farm near Lindbergh's two-story, white frame mansion.

Word came from New York City that the editors wanted a photo of the home, so they could draw in where the wooden ladder had been scaled to get into the kidnapped baby's nursery. Stoffer and a photographer zoomed around the house, then Stoffer rushed the plates to New York and returned, this time landing on a still uncompleted landing strip on the Lindbergh estate.

There was a mob scene, Stoffer recalled, with state troopers trying to clear newsmen and curiosity seekers off the estate, and authorities passing out photos of the missing baby to newsmen. Stoffer flew a copy back to New York "scoring a beat" on landbound competitors jammed along the one road leading to Lindbergh's home.

Wirephoto was not in use in the early 1930s, and the metropolitan newspapers and wire services used herculean efforts to speed photos. Practically a whole squadron of World War I aces and other flying pioneers zoomed in and out of Hopewell after the first day, racing to "scoop" the opposition.

It was worth the effort in those days before television. Stoffer showed a clipping from an old copy of Editor and Publisher magazine, which reported that being first on the street with a Lindbergh case extra could lead to 600,000 extra sales for a New York paper, in 1932.

Stoffer rapidly became involved in the investigation as well as the reporting of the great hunt. He flew Constable Williamson on a low, dangerous criss-crossing of the hundreds of woods trails surrounding the Lindbergh estate, helping map ground searchers' routes.

Both Stoffer and Richard became observers of one of the most bizarre twists taken by the case — the hoax in which Norfolk, Va., boat-builder John Hughes Curtis convinced an Episcopal dean, a retired admiral and ultimately the Lindberghs that he was in contact with the kidnappers.

The Navy assigned Richard, then a young flying lieutenant, as liaison officer for the futile search of Chesapeake Bay and New Jersey waters for the fishing vessel Mary B. Moss, supposed to be the kidnappers' headquarters.

Richard was supposed to tail Curtis to a rendezvous; Stoffer recalled that he sometimes was assigned to tail Richard's plane from a discrete distance.

Finding the baby's body cut short the weary search for a rendezvous point. Lindbergh was aboard the yacht Cachelot that day. Richard and Edwin Bruce, a friend of Lindbergh, had been ashore on an errand where they were told the grim news.

Richard and Bruce hurried back aboard the Cachelot. They found Lindbergh undiscouraged by another day of failing to ind the Mary B. Moss, but sure their luck would be better the next day.

But Lindbergh spotted the pair's uneasiness, Richard recalled.

"He said, 'Spill it'," Richard reported. The two forced themselved to reveal the grim news, and Lindbergh's party immediately began the sad, rain-sodden drive back to Hopewell where Anne Morrow Lindbergh was waiting. She was expecting the birth of their second baby.

"I was soaking wet" on reaching the Lindbergh home, Richard said. "Lindbergh soon came back downstairs with an aspirin and a glass of lemonade for me so I wouldn't catch cold. That's the kind of guy he was" even amid his woes, the retired Navy flier said this week.

Five days after the body was found in Hopewell, Curtis confessed that his story had been a hoax. His excuse was that he was deranged by his boatyard's foundering in the seas of the Depression.

Richard's connection with the case ended, but Stoffer continued to fly newsmen and photos from New Jersey to New York during the subsequent Hauptman trial.

Stoffer recalled the hectic days that followed, while sitting recently in front of a picture window of his home at 65 Corte Toluca.

"I was only in the courtroom five or six days" of the long trial, the Greenbrae man said. "We couldn't take pictures in the courtroom; I used to wait outside the courthouse with photographers," he explained.

The photographers leaned over a police barricade, snapping pictures of key figures in the trial as they emerged from the courthouse whenever the trial recessed.

After the photographers snatched the plates from their bulky press cameras, he would ride a motorcycle to the airport, fly to New York or Newark, N.J., and drop the plates by parachute to other messengers who would race them to newspaper darkrooms.

Stoffer opined that a prosecutor today would have trouble getting a conviction on the evidence presented four decades ago. He said that "they got Hauptman on a trick" of contradictory testimony when he tripped himself up on the witness stand about police coercing him to duplicate the Lindbergh case ransom notes.

Hauptman insisted police made him misspell words in his handwriting samples to match words in the ransom messages. One word he testified, was "signature." The prosecutor pointed out that the word was used in the notes, but not in Hauptman's samples.

Stoffer also said he was dissatisfied with the mystery of Isadore Fisch, Hauptman's friend who died in Germany before the trial. Hauptman insisted that Fisch gave him the Lindbergh ransom money that led to his arrest when he spend part of it.

There was also the mysterious suicide of Violet Sharpe, a maid in the home on Lindbergh's mother-in-law. Had she been an accomplice?

"There were too many strings left hanging" by the spectacular Hauptman trail and all the twists of the ransom plots, Stoffer concluded.

Lettuce Curb Is Short-Lived

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Berkeley City Council's moratorium on the sale of iceberg lettuce was short-lived.

The council passed a nonbinding resolution to halt the sale of iceberg lettuce in Berkeley Tuesday night, saying it endangered health because of possible contamination from the pesticide Monitor-4.

Berkeley director of environmental health, Glenn Lynch, said Wednesday that the moratorium would not be implemented because the insecticide has not been used since Jan. 9 in the Yuba and Imperial Valley, where the lettuce was grown.

The consumer Co-op chain of markets indicated it would cooperate with the moratorium, but the University of California food service, Safeway and Lucky Stores had not commented.

Connally To Make Party Policy Soon

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, a Texas Democrat who served as a cabinet officer in a Republican administration, will announce soon whether he will remain a Democrat or switch to the GOP, says his former aide.

"I think whatever he does at this point in time will be based strictly on philosophical considerations, and not on plans for public office," George Christian said Wednesday. Christian was Connally's press secretary when Connally was governor of Texas.

Nazi's Portrait Is Removed From Armory

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — For years, a charcoal portrait of German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel hung in the cafeteria of the Connecticut State Armory. Near it was a portrait of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

State Sen. Joseph I. Lieberman recently learned about the Rommel portrait.

"Every day this picture hangs in the armory is an insult to all those who fought in the allied forces during World War II and to the millions of civilians sent to their deaths by the German government," Lieberman said. He sent a letter to Maj. Gen. John F. Freund, the state adjutant general, demanding the Rommel portrait be removed.

Freund complied Wednesday. The drawing, done by a soldier, was not meant to offend anyone, he said. "But apparently it does offend someone, and since the armory is a public place, the drawing must go."

City Doesn't Like County Offer On Redevelopment

A proposal by county supervisors to withdraw two court suits blocking San Rafael's redevelopment plans in return for veto power drew largely unfavorable reaction yesterday from San Rafael city leaders.

"If the county's proposal involves veto power, it won't be acceptable," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini. "Absolutely not." Bettini, who said he had not yet seen the county's latest proposal to settle a months-long squabble over the means of financing redevelopment, said the council will "take a look" at the document at 8 p.m. Monday.

"Final projects should be the city's concern," said Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan, who added that the city would nevertheless be willing to "confer and attempt to accommodate" county concerns. The councilman noted that the city rejected a proposal giving the county veto power over some projects last December with a declaration that delegating such power is legally impossible. Mulryan, like other city leaders, said he had not yet reviewed the county proposal.

Councilman John A. Miskimen, more optimistic about the county's latest move in the 10-month quarrel, said it appeared that "we're getting awfully close" to an agreement. Miskimen made no prediction on whether veto power will be unacceptable to the council.

Councilman Fred E. Jensen withheld comment on the matter pending review of the county proposal and consultation with council colleagues.

Declared City Mgr. and Redevelopment Agency director William J. Bielser: "The council has taken the position on the basis of legal advice that veto power is something that the city cannot extend to another public agency."County supervisors on Tuesday tentatively agreed to withdraw court action against the city's redevelopment plans on condition the county receive veto power over the kinds of improvements financed by redevelopment bonds.

Three criteria listed by the county for evaluating redevelopment improvements are: Projects that directly increase assessed valuation in the redevelopment area; projects providing needed community amenities not readily financed by conventional means, and projects that eliminate blighted conditions.

The proposal provides that improvements proposed under redevelopment be submitted to the county along with detailed cost estimates.

"I don't think the council will disagree with the criteria, but people will disagree on whether an improvement meets the criteria or not," Miskimen said.

The council already has rejected a proposal that would grant veto power over projects not expected to increase assessed valuation in the redevelopment area, he noted.

The county proposal also contains many provisions previously agreed to by city officials such as a $6 million ceiling on redevelopment bonds over a seven year period. Another portion of the proposal deals with a complicated formula for repaying taxing agencies whose revenues will be "siphoned off" by the city to finance redevelopment bonds.

COL. CHARLES T. STOFFER
Recalls Lindbergh case

City Doesn't Like County Offer On Redevelopment

A proposal by county supervisors to withdraw two court suits blocking San Rafael's redevelopment plans in return for veto power drew largely unfavorable reaction yesterday from San Rafael city leaders.

"If the county's proposal involves veto power, it won't be acceptable," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini. "Absolutely not." Bettini, who said he had not yet seen the county's latest proposal to settle a months-long squabble over the means of financing redevelopment, said the council will "take a look" at the document at 8 p.m. Monday.

The councilman noted that the city rejected a proposal giving the county veto power over some projects last December with a declaration that delegating such power is legally impossible. Mulryan, like other city leaders, said he had not yet reviewed the county proposal.

Councilman John A. Miskimen, more optimistic about the county's latest move in the 10-month quarrel, said it appeared that "we're getting awfully close" to an agreement. Miskimen made no prediction on whether veto power will be unacceptable to the council.

Councilman Fred E. Jensen withheld comment on the matter pending review of the county proposal and consultation with council colleagues.

Declared City Mgr. and Redevelopment Agency director William J. "I don't think the council will disagree with the criteria, but people will disagree on whether an improvement meets the criteria or not," Miskimen said.

The council already has rejected a proposal that would grant veto power over projects not expected to increase assessed valuation in the redevelopment area, he noted.

The county proposal also contains many provisions previously agreed to by city officials such as a $6 million ceiling on redevelopment bonds over a seven year period. Another portion of the proposal deals with a complicated formula for repaying taxing agencies whose revenues will be "siphoned off" by the city to finance redevelopment bonds.

KIDNAPPING ANNIVERSARY

He Remembers Lindbergh Case

By JEFF GREER

Forty-one years ago today, the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped. Two veteran pilots — one now living in Greenbrae, the other in Santa Rosa — were intimately involved in efforts to solve the infamous case.

Neither knew the other lived nearby, through the years, until a recent meeting of aviation pioneers, the Dadaelians.

Retired Air Force Col. Charles T. Stoffer, 79, of Greenbrae mentioned that he had flown the first New York City newsmen to Hopewell, N.J., scene of the kidnapping. And George L. Richard, Santa Rosa businessman, recalled that he had the sad duty, on May 12, 1932, of telling Col. Charles A. Lindbergh that his tiny son had been found dead.

Both said they still consider the kidnapping, the weird plots over the ransom, and the trail and subsequent electrocution of Bruno Richard Hauptman to be the crime of the century, in terms of the worldwide attention it attracted.

Zealously hounded by reporters and photographers, the Lindberghs scarcely could draw an unobserved breath even before the kidnapping of their firstborn child, Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. Lindbergh's 33-hour solo flight from New York to Paris on May 20-21, 1927 had grabbed the world's attention as much as a fellow flier's first footsteps on the moon decades later.

As a result, Lindbergh had chosen a hideaway in New Jersey's Sourland mountains for his home. The spot was so remote that Stoffer wasn't even familiar with any airfields nearby, when he had to fly the first team of New York newsmen to the kidnap scene.

Stoffer, his wife and another couple were playing bridge in the Stoffers' 72nd Street home in Manhattan when an excited editor "almost shouted over the telephone. 'the Lindbergh baby has been kidnapped . . . can you fly my men to Hopewell?' "

"I really didn't know where Hopewell was," Stoffer confessed 41 years later. "But off we went." It was a dark, windy night.

Stoffer found an airfield at Princeton, a few miles from Hopewell. "There were no perimeter lights. The big Travelair highwing cabin plane I was flying had a parachute flare, but it hadn't been checked for months. I had one of the photographers drop it — and it worked.

"We landed — and there wasn't a soul around, not even a watchman," the Greenbrae man said.

Stoffer, still in a bulky flying suit, and three newspaper men wangled a ride from two passing motorists. The motorists, Stoffer recalled, were in a bad mood already. While returning from a night on the town in New York City they had been held up by police roadblocks at the Holland Tunnel for more than an hour. Dragnets were everywhere for the kidnapper or kidnappers.

An argument at the crossroads over whether the driver should take his friend home first or detour to Hopewell was resolved with a $10 fare pledge. The newsmen were delivered to Hopewell's lone hotel.

Ironically, the pilot recalls, the detour argument took place within 300 to 400 feet of the spot where the Lindbergh baby's body was found weeks later.

Once at the hotel, Stoffer discovered his whole party was "about $1.78 shy" of being able to pay the promised $10 fare — so Stoffer borrowed the money from Paul Gebhardt, the hotel manager. Those were Depression days.

In the hotel were only Gebhardt; Charles Williamson who was the local constable, and "a couple of newspapermen from Philadelphia. We were the first New York newsmen to get to Hopewell," Stoffer said.

COL. CHARLES T. STOFFER
Recalls Lindbergh case

But the town's only public telephone was ringing off the wall in the hotel. Williamson was getting calls and answering questions from newspapers all over the United States and Europe.

The next day, March 2, was a busy one, Stoffer's neatly lettered flight log shows. He moved the plane from Princeton to a cow pasture on the Herbert Voorhees farm near Lindbergh's two-story, white frame mansion.

Word came from New York City that the editors wanted a photo of the home, so they could draw in where the wooden ladder had been scaled to get into the kidnapped baby's nursery. Stoffer and a photographer zoomed around the house, then Stoffer rushed the plates to New York and returned, this time landing on a still uncompleted landing strip on the Lindbergh estate.

There was a mob scene, Stoffer recalled, with state troopers trying to clear newsmen and curiosity seekers off the estate, and authorities passing out photos of the missing baby to newsmen. Stoffer flew a copy back to New York "scoring a beat" on landbound competitors jammed along the one road leading to Lindbergh's home.

Wirephoto was not in use in the early 1930s, and the metropolitan newspapers and wire services used herculean efforts to speed photos. Practically a whole squadron of World War I aces and other flying pioneers zoomed in and out of Hopewell after the first day, racing to "scoop" the opposition.

It was worth the effort in those days before television. Stoffer showed a clipping from an old copy of Editor and Publisher magazine, which reported that being first on the street with a Lindbergh case extra could lead to 600,000 extra sales for a New York paper, in 1932.

Stoffer rapidly became involved in the investigation as well as the reporting of the great hunt. He flew Constable Williamson on a low, dangerous criss-crossing of the hundreds of woods trails surrounding the Lindbergh estate, helping map ground searchers' routes.

Both Stoffer and Richard became observers of one of the most bizarre twists taken by the case — the hoax in which Norfolk, Va., boat-builder John Hughes Curtis convinced an Episcopal dean, a retired admiral and ultimately the Lindberghs that he was in contact with the kidnappers.

The Navy assigned Richard, then a young flying lieutenant, as liaison officer for the futile search of Chesapeak Bay and New Jersey waters for the fishing vessel Mary B. Moss, supposed to be the kidnappers' headquarters.

Richard was supposed to tail Curtis to a rendezvous; Stoffer recalled that he sometimes was assigned to tail Richard's plane from a discrete distance.

Finding the baby's body cut short the weary search for a rendezvous point. Lindbergh was aboard the yacht Cachelot that day. Richard and Edwin Bruce, a friend of Lindbergh, had been ashore on an errand where they were told the grim news.

Richard and Bruce hurried back aboard the Cachelot. They found Lindbergh undiscouraged by another day of failing to ind the Mary B. Moss, but sure their luck would be better the next day.

But Lindbergh spotted the pair's uneasiness, Richard recalled.

"He said, 'Spill it'," Richard reported. The two forced themselved to reveal the grim news, and Lindbergh's party immediately began the sad, rain-sodden drive back to Hopewell where Anne Morrow Lindbergh was waiting. She was expecting the birth of their second baby.

"I was soaking wet" on reaching the Lindbergh home, Richard said. "Lindbergh soon came back downstairs with an aspirin and a glass of lemonade for me so I wouldn't catch cold. That's the kind of guy he was" even amid his woes, the retired Navy flier said this week.

Five days after the body was found in Hopewell, Curtis confessed that his story had been a hoax. His excuse was that he was deranged by his boatyard's foundering in the seas of the Depression.

Richard's connection with the case ended, but Stoffer continued to fly newsmen and photos from New Jersey to New York during the subsequent Hauptman trial.

Stoffer recalled the hectic days that followed, while sitting recently in front of a picture window of his home at 65 Corte Toluca.

"I was only in the courtroom five or six days" of the long trial, the Greenbrae man said. "We couldn't take pictures in the courtroom; I used to wait outside the courthouse with photographers," he explained.

The photographers leaned over a police barricade, snapping pictures of key figures in the trial as they emerged from the courthouse whenever the trial recessed.

After the photographers snatched the plates from their bulky press cameras, he would ride a motorcycle to the airport, fly to New York or Newark, N.J., and drop the plates by parachute to other messengers who would race them to newspaper darkrooms.

Stoffer opined that a prosecutor today would have trouble getting a conviction on the evidence presented four decades ago. He said that "they got Hauptman on a trick" of contradictory testimony when he tripped himself up on the witness stand about police coercing him to duplicate the Lindbergh case ransom notes.

Hauptman insisted police made him misspell words in his handwriting samples to match words in the ransom messages. One word he testified, was "signature." The prosecutor pointed out that the word was used in the notes, but not in Hauptman's samples.

Stoffer also said he was dissatisfied with the mystery of Isadore Fisch, Hauptman's friend who died in Germany before the trial. Hauptman insisted that Fisch gave him the Lindbergh ransom money that led to his arrest when he spend part of it.

There was also the mysterious suicide of Violet Sharpe, a maid in the home on Lindbergh's mother-in-law. Had she been an accomplice?

"There were too many strings left hanging" by the spectacular Hauptman trail and all the twists of the ransom plots, Stoffer concluded.

LINDBERGH BABY SEARCH — Charles T. Stoffer (left) now a retired Air Force colonel living in Greenbrae, consults maps with Constable Charles Williamson, of Hopewell, N.J. The photo was taken in March, 1932, when Stoffer's flying experience was put to use both by investigators and newspapermen. He was a pilot for Knickerbocker charter flying service in New York City.

Lettuce Curb Is Short-Lived

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Berkeley City Council's moratorium on the sale of iceberg lettuce was short-lived.

The council passed a nonbinding resolution to halt the sale of iceberg lettuce in Berkeley Tuesday night, saying it endangered health because of possible contamination from the pesticide Monitor-4.

Berkeley director of environmental health, Glenn Lynch, said Wednesday that the moratorium would not be implemented because the insecticide has not been used since Jan. 9 in the Yuba and Imperial Valley, where the lettuce was grown.

The consumer Co-op chain of markets indicated it would cooperate with the moratorium, but the University of California food service, Safeway and Lucky Stores had not commented.

Connally To Make Party Policy Soon

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, a Texas Democrat who served as a cabinet officer in a Republican administration, will announce soon whether he will remain a Democrat or switch to the GOP, says his former aide.

"I think whatever he does at this point in time will be based strictly on philosophical considerations, and not on plans for public office," George Christian said Wednesday. Christian was Connally's press secretary when Connally was governor of Texas.

Nazi's Portrait Is Removed From Armory

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — For years, a charcoal portrait of German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel hung in the cafeteria of the Connecticut State Armory. Near it was a portrait of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

State Sen. Joseph I. Lieberman recently learned about the Rommel portrait.

"Every day this picture hangs in the armory is an insult to all those who fought in the allied forces during World War II and to the millions of civilians sent to their deaths by the German government," Lieberman said. He sent a letter to Maj. Gen. John F. Freund, the state adjutant general, demanding the Rommel portrait be removed.

Freund complied Wednesday. The drawing, done by a soldier, was not meant to offend anyone, he said. "But apparently it does offend someone, and since the armory is a public place, the drawing must go."

City Doesn't Like County Offer On Redevelopment

A proposal by county supervisors to withdraw two court suits blocking San Rafael's redevelopment plans in return for veto power drew largely unfavorable reaction yesterday from San Rafael city leaders.

"If the county's proposal involves veto power, it won't be acceptable," said Mayor C. Paul Bettini. "Absolutely not." Bettini, who said he had not yet seen the county's latest proposal to settle a months-long squabble over the means of financing redevelopment, said the council will "take a look" at the document at 8 p.m. Monday.

"Final projects should be the city's concern," said Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan, who added that the city would nevertheless be willing to "confer and attempt to accommodate" county concerns. The councilman noted that the city rejected a proposal giving the county veto power over some projects last December with a declaration that delegating such power is legally impossible. Mulryan, like other city leaders, said he had not yet reviewed the county proposal.

Councilman John A. Miskimen, more optimistic about the county's latest move in the 10-month quarrel, said it appeared that "we're getting awfully close" to an agreement. Miskimen made no prediction on whether veto power will be unacceptable to the council.

Councilman Fred E. Jensen withheld comment on the matter pending review of the county proposal and consultation with council colleagues.

Declared City Mgr. and Redevelopment Agency director William J. Bielser: "The council has taken the position on the basis of legal advice that veto power is something that the city cannot extend to another public agency." County supervisors on Tuesday tentatively agreed to withdraw court action against the city's redevelopment plans on condition the county receive veto power over the kinds of improvements financed by redevelopment bonds.

Three criteria listed by the county for evaluating redevelopment improvements are: Projects that directly increase assessed valuation in the redevelopment area; projects providing needed community amenities not readily financed by conventional means, and projects that eliminate blighted conditions.

The proposal provides that improvements proposed under redevelopment be submitted to the county along with detailed cost estimates.

"I don't think the council will disagree with the criteria, but people will disagree on whether an improvement meets the criteria or not," Miskimen said.

The council already has rejected a proposal that would grant veto power over projects not expected to increase assessed valuation in the redevelopment area, he noted.

The county proposal also contains many provisions previously agreed to by city officials such as a $6 million ceiling on redevelopment bonds over a seven year period. Another portion of the proposal deals with a complicated formula for repaying taxing agencies whose revenues will be "siphoned off" by the city to finance redevelopment bonds.

Public Notice

OFFICIAL NOTICE INVITING BIDS FOR THE PURCHASE OF BONDS, MONCADA SEWER ASSESSMENT DISTRICT, SAN RAFAEL SANITATION DISTRICT, MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1913 AND THE IMPROVEMENT BOND ACT OF 1915

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that sealed proposals will be received by the District Administrator of the San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California, located in the San Rafael City Hall, Room 301, 1400 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, California, at the hour of 10:00 A.M. on the 7th day of March, 1973, for the purchase of $62,459.95 principal amount of bonds for Moncada Sewer Assessment District, San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California. Said bids will be publicly opened, examined and declared at said time and place.

These bonds are authorized to be issued, and the assessments are authorized to be levied, under the provisions of Resolution of Intention No. 280 of the Board of Directors of the San Rafael Sanitation District adopted on the 27th day of November, 1972, and proceedings subsequent thereto. The Resolution of Intention provides with relation to said bonds as follows:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that serial bonds to represent unpaid assessments and bearing interest at a rate of not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum shall be issued herein in the manner provided by Division 10 of the Streets and Highways Code, the Improvement Bond Act of 1915, the last installment of which bonds shall mature fourteen (14) years from the 2nd day of July next succeeding ten (10) months from their date.

MATURITIES AND AMOUNT OF BONDS: Said bonds will be in the amount of $62,459.95. All bidders, by submission of a bid, agree to purchase the total amount of bonds to be issued. The maturity schedule on the bonds will be as follows:

Bond Numbers, Inclusive	Bonds Maturing July 2	Amount Maturity
1 to 5	1974	5,459.95
6 to 10	1975	5,000.00
11 to 14	1976	4,000.00
15 to 18	1977	4,000.00
19 to 22	1978	4,000.00
23 to 26	1979	4,000.00
27 to 30	1980	4,000.00
31 to 34	1981	4,000.00
35 to 38	1982	4,000.00
39 to 42	1983	4,000.00
43 to 46	1984	4,000.00
47 to 50	1985	4,000.00
51 to 54	1986	4,000.00
55 to 58	1987	4,000.00
59 to 62	1988	4,000.00
		$62,459.95

Note: All bonds are in the denomination of $1,000.00, except Bond No. 1, which is in the amount of $1,459.95.

DATE OF BONDS AND INTEREST RATE: Bonds are to be dated the 2nd day of April, 1973, and will bear interest from said date. Interest rate is fixed in the Resolution of Intention at not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum. Such interest shall be evidenced by coupons attached to each bond, and each of said coupons shall represent six months' interest on the bond to which it is attached. The first coupon will be for interest from April 2, 1973 to January 2, 1974.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: Said bonds are authorized to be issued by the Board of Directors of the San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California, by Resolution of Intention No. 280 and proceedings subsequent thereto. The purpose is for the construction of a sanitary sewer system, together with the acquisition of all necessary rights of way. These improvements are within the boundaries of the assessment district designated, "Moncada Sewer Assessment District, San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California," and reference for details is made to the proceedings for the formation and completion of said assessment district.

PAYMENT: Both principal and interest are payable in lawful money of the United States at the office of the Marin County Treasurer, Civic Center Building, San Rafael, California.

CALLABLE BONDS: All bonds are callable pursuant to the provisions of the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 twice each year. No bonds may be called except on July 2 or January 2 and there must be a sixty day notice of call. Any bond called will have interest to date of call and a premium of five per cent (5%) of the principal amount.

AUTHORITY FOR ISSUANCE: Said bonds were authorized to be issued by the proceedings in said assessment district and said assessment district was organized and consummated under the provisions of the Municipal Improvement Act of 1913 and bonds provided to be issued under the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 of the State of California.

SECURITY: Said bonds are payable from the redemption fund provided by law which is secured by all of the unpaid assessments within the boundaries of said district. Said bonds are further secured by a limited guarantee on the part of the entity which issued said bonds. Under the provisions of the Improvement Bond Act of 1915, any real property on which the owners have failed to pay installments of assessments as they fall due is sold for delinquencies by the Sanitation District in the same manner as real property is sold for delinquent taxes. It is the duty of the San Rafael Sanitation District to bid such property in at such tax sale. It then becomes the duty of the Sanitation District to transfer to the Redemption Fund the amount of the purchase. In the event there is not sufficient money in the General Fund to transfer this amount into the Redemption Fund, it becomes the mandatory duty of the Sanitation District to levy a tax up to 10c on each $100.00 of assessed valuation of property within the boundaries of the San Rafael Sanitation District sufficient in amount to pay for the delinquencies. It becomes the continuing duty of the Sanitation District throughout the life of the bond issue, to levy such a tax and to pay for the installments upon property sold to the Sanitation District for delinquencies. The maximum levy which the Sanitation District is obligated to make in any one year is 10c on each $100.00 of assessed valuation. The assessed valuation of all taxable real property in the San Rafael Sanitation District for the fiscal year 1972-73 is $114,720,120.00. Ten cents on the $100.00 would therefore raise, in the San Rafael Sanitation District, the sum of $114,720.00.

LEGAL OPINION: The legal opinion of the law firm of Sturgis, Den-Dulk, Douglass & Anderson, 1322 Webster Street, Oakland, California, 94612, approving the validity of said bonds will be furnished to the successful bidder without charge. In the opinion of Counsel, interest on the bonds is exempt from all federal income taxes, and from State of California personal income taxes, under presently existing statutes, regulations and court decisions, and the bonds are also exempt from all California taxes except inheritance, gift and franchise taxes.

HIGHEST BID: Bidders are requested to name the interest rate or rates not exceeding seven per cent (7%) per annum in multiples of 1/8 or 1/20 of one per cent (1%) Each bidder must specify in his bid the amount and maturities of the bonds of each rate and all bonds maturing on the same date must bear interest at the same rate. No bid may name more than four interest rates, any of which may be repeated. No rate may be more than one and one-half per cent (1-1½%) higher than the lowest rate named in the bid. The interest payable on any bond on any interest payment date may, however, be represented by one or more coupons. A zero rate cannot be named for all or any of the time from the date of the bond to its stated maturity and the premium, if any, must be paid in the funds specified for payment of the bonds as part of the purchase price. No bid of less than 98% of par and accrued interest or for less than all of the bonds offered will be entertained. Unless all bids are rejected, the bonds will be awarded to the bidder whose proposal results in the lowest net interest cost to the issuer, and the net interest cost will be determined by deducting the amount of any premium paid from or adding the amount of any discount to the aggregate amount of interest upon all of the bonds from their date until their respective maturities.

RIGHT OF REJECTION: The San Rafael Sanitation District reserves the right at its discretion to reject any and all bids and to waive any irregularity or informality in any bid. Any bid must be in strict conformity with this Official Notice Inviting Bids, and without any qualification.

PROMPT AWARD: The San Rafael Sanitation District will take action awarding the bonds or rejecting all bids not later than forty-eight (48) hours after expiration of the time herein prescribed for the receipt of proposals.

PROMPT DELIVERY: Delivery of the bonds will be made to the successful bidder at the office of the County Treasurer of the County of Marin, Ex-Officio Treasurer of the San Rafael Sanitation District, Civic Center Building, San Rafael, California, as soon as the bonds can be prepared, but not earlier than the date of said bonds. Successful bidder, by making a bid, agrees to pay for and take delivery of the bonds within forty-eight (48) hours after notification by San Rafael Sanitation District that the bonds are ready for delivery, but bidder is not obligated to take delivery earlier than the date of the bonds. The successful bidder shall have the right at his option to cancel his offer to purchase if the bonds are not tendered for delivery within 45 days from the date of the bonds.

FORM OF BID: All bids must be for not less than all of the bonds herein offered for sale. Each bid, together with bidder's check, must be enclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the Secretary of the San Rafael Sanitation District, and endorsed "Proposal for Bonds, Moncada Sewer Assessment District, San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California."

BID CHECK: With each bid must be submitted a certified check or cashier's check for $2,000.00 drawn on a bank or trust company transacting business in the State of California, payable to the order of the San Rafael Sanitation District to secure the Sanitation District from any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid. Check of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned by mail upon the award of the bonds. Check of successful bidder will be credited upon the purchase price of the bonds, and no interest will be paid upon the deposit of any successful bidder. Check of the successful bidder will be forfeited to the Sanitation District if the bidder fails to pay for and take delivery of the bonds within the time provided for in this notice as liquidated damages.

NO LITIGATION CERTIFICATE: The San Rafael Sanitation District will furnish to the successful bidder, at the time of the delivery of the bonds, a no-litigation certificate, certifying that there is no controversy or litigation pending or threatened concerning the validity of the bonds

Dated: February 21, 1973

San Rafael Sanitation District,
Marin County, California

Boyle's Brother Fights For Job

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — The brother of former United Mine Workers President Tony Boyle has launched a legal battle to keep a union job he has held for more than two decades.

R. J. (Dick) Boyle, president of UMW District 27 since December 1948, sued the union's international leadership this week to prevent it from closing its office here.

Boyle charged that the new president, Arnold R. Miller, and other officials were violating federal labor laws by acting in "reprisal for his support of the former president."

Some Pacemaker Users Suffer Psychological Effects On Sides

A grateful California woman writes: "A permanent cardiac pacemaker was implanted in my 82-year-old grandfather. He is as happy as a lark and is thinking of remarrying. All his heart symptoms have disappeared and our doctor said that his pulse has gone from 45 to 70 beats per minute. Isn't this some sort of a record?"

No, inasmuch as there are medical reports on the successful implantation of permanent cardiac pacemakers in centenarians and people in their nineties. The device preserves and prlongs life, but some users are bothered by the psychological effects.

ONE OF THESE was a 103-year-old New Jersey man who returned home to his usual level of activity — mainly, casual strolls through his garden. According to Dr. Joseph Grayzel, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, the man ultimately died of a broken heart.

For many years, the gentleman had lived with his 80-year-old daughter who suddenly found that she was unable to give him proper care. She placed him in a nice institution, but he became extremely depressed when he realized that he never would return to his flower garden. He ate poorly, drank less, and died of malnutrition and dehydration. His heart was truly broken.

PACEMAKERS are used mainly in older people, and usually are implanted as an emergency measure. As a result, the user has very little time to prepare mentally for the operation. He regards the pacemaker as another step in the proces of "bodily deterioration." Unlike patients wvmn artificial limb, the pacemaker recipient has no control over the implant. He appreciates what it will do, but knows that eventually it will fail because new batteries are needed every two years. Many are afraid it might stop when they are asleep.

Still others object to artificial accessories or being run by a machine. In addition, the pacemaker is not a cure — there always will be something wrong with the heart. Depression is likely, but uncommon considering that 100,000 people have pacemakers.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

DISK TROUBLE

H.D. writes: What are manifestations of a deteriorated spinal disk that should be investigated by the physician?

REPLY

Pain in the lower back and sciatica down the leg are the most common manifestations. Involvement of a disk in the vertebra of the neck may lead to pain in the neck, the shoulder, or the arm. There are many good tests to determine whether the condition exists.

HEART ATTACKS

A reader writes: At what age do women get heart attacks?

REPLY

At any age, but most commonly after 60.

SILENT CORONARY

C.C. writes: How is a silent heart attack detected?

REPLY

By a chance electrocardiogram or when complications develop. These include irregularities of the beat, shortness of breath, or swelling of the ankles.

TWINS ON TOES

A reader writes: My 21-month-old twins walk on their toes. What makes them do this?

REPLY

Habit, if the feet otherwise are normal. Have these children examined by your physician to make sure that the tendons are not too short or that clubfoot is not present.

CANCER OF PANCREAS

T. T. writes: What are the signs of cancer of the pancreas?

REPLY

Symptoms depend upon the location of the cancer in the pancreas. There may be none when the lesion is located at the tail end of the organ. The first manifestations are caused by spread of the malignancy to other structures. In carcinoma of the body of the pancreas, pain of a deep boring type is noted. When the head of the organ is involved the skin becomes yellowish due to blockage of the duct from the liver.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, March 1, the 60th day of 1973 with 305 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

British actor David Niven was born March 1, 1910.

On this day in history:

In 1781, the American colonies adopted articles of confederation, paving the way for a federal union.

In 1803, Ohio became the 17th state in the Union.

In 1932, famed flyer Charles Lindbergh's 20-month-old son was kidnaped. The boy's body was found on May 12, and Bruno Hauptmann was electrocuted for the kidnap-murder in 1936.

In 1954, five congressmen were wounded when Puerto Rican nationalists began firing wildly from the gallery of the U.S. House of Representatives.

A thought for the day: American writer Henry Thoreau said, "It is characteristic of wisdom not to do desperate things."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Public Notice

OFFICIAL NOTICE INVITING BIDS FOR THE PURCHASE OF BONDS, MONCADA SEWER ASSESSMENT DISTRICT, SAN RAFAEL SANITATION DISTRICT, MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1913 AND THE IMPROVEMENT BOND ACT OF 1915

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that sealed proposals will be received by the District Administrator of the San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California, located in the San Rafael City Hall, Room 301, 1400 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, California, at the hour of 10:00 A.M. on the 7th day of March, 1973, for the purchase of $62,459.95 principal amount of bonds for Moncada Sewer Assessment District, San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California. Said bids will be publicly opened, examined and declared at said time and place.

These bonds are authorized to be issued, and the assessments are authorized to be levied, under the provisions of Resolution of Intention No. 280 of the Board of Directors of the San Rafael Sanitation District adopted on the 27th day of November, 1972, and proceedings subsequent thereto. The Resolution of Intention provides with relation to said bonds as follows:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that serial bonds to represent unpaid assessments and bearing interest at a rate of not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum shall be issued herein in the manner provided by Division 10 of the Streets and Highways Code, the Improvement Bond Act of 1915, the last installment of which bonds shall mature fourteen (14) years from the 2nd day of July next succeeding ten (10) months from their date.

MATURITIES AND AMOUNT OF BONDS: Said bonds will be in the amount of $62,459.95. All bidders, by submission of a bid, agree to purchase the total amount of bonds to be issued. The maturity schedule on the bonds will be as follows:

Bond Numbers, Inclusive	Bonds Maturing July 2	Amount Maturity
1 to 5	1974	5,459.95
6 to 10	1975	5,000.00
11 to 14	1976	4,000.00
15 to 18	1977	4,000.00
19 to 22	1978	4,000.00
23 to 26	1979	4,000.00
27 to 30	1980	4,000.00
31 to 34	1981	4,000.00
35 to 38	1982	4,000.00
39 to 42	1983	4,000.00
43 to 46	1984	4,000.00
47 to 50	1985	4,000.00
51 to 54	1986	4,000.00
55 to 58	1987	4,000.00
59 to 62	1988	4,000.00
		$62,459.95

Note: All bonds are in the denomination of $1,000.00, except Bond No. 1, which is in the amount of $1,459.95.

DATE OF BONDS AND INTEREST RATE: Bonds are to be dated the 2nd day of April, 1973, and will bear interest from said date. Interest rate is fixed in the Resolution of Intention at not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum. Such interest shall be evidenced by coupons attached to each bond, and each of said coupons shall represent six months' interest on the bond to which it is attached. The first coupon will be for interest from April 2, 1973 to January 2, 1974.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: Said bonds are authorized to be issued by the Board of Directors of the San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California, by Resolution of Intention No. 280 and proceedings subsequent thereto. The purpose is for the construction of a sanitary sewer system, together with the acquisition of all necessary rights of way. These improvements are within the boundaries of the assessment district designated, "Moncada Sewer Assessment District, San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California," and reference for details is made to the proceedings for the formation and completion of said assessment district.

PAYMENT: Both principal and interest are payable in lawful money of the United States at the office of the Marin County Treasurer, Civic Center Building, San Rafael, California.

CALLABLE BONDS: All bonds are callable pursuant to the provisions of the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 twice each year. No bonds may be called except on July 2 or January 2 and there must be a sixty day notice of call. Any bond called will have interest to date of call and a premium of five per cent (5%) of the principal amount.

AUTHORITY FOR ISSUANCE: Said bonds were authorized to be issued by the proceedings in said assessment district and said assessment district was organized and consummated under the provisions of the Municipal Improvement Act of 1913 and bonds provided to be issued under the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 of the State of California.

SECURITY: Said bonds are payable from the redemption fund provided by law which is secured by all of the unpaid assessments within the boundaries of said district. Said bonds are further secured by a limited guarantee on the part of the entity which issued said bonds. Under the provisions of the Improvement Bond Act of 1915, any real property on which the owners have failed to pay installments of assessments as they fall due is sold for delinquencies by the Sanitation District in the same manner as real property is sold for delinquent taxes. It is the duty of the San Rafael Sanitation District to bid such property in at such tax sale. It then becomes the duty of the Sanitation District to transfer to the Redemption Fund the amount of the purchase. In the event there is not sufficient money in the General Fund to transfer this amount into the Redemption Fund, it becomes the mandatory duty of the Sanitation District to levy a tax up to 10c on each $100.00 of assessed valuation of property within the boundaries of the San Rafael Sanitation District sufficient in amount to pay for the delinquencies. It becomes the continuing duty of the Sanitation District throughout the life of the bond issue, to levy such a tax and to pay for the installments upon property sold to the Sanitation District for delinquencies. The maximum levy which the Sanitation District is obligated to make in any one year is 10c on each $100.00 of assessed valuation. The assessed valuation of all taxable real property in the San Rafael Sanitation District for the fiscal year 1972-73 is $114,720,120.00. Ten cents on the $100.00 would therefore raise, in the San Rafael Sanitation District, the sum of $114,720.00.

LEGAL OPINION: The legal opinion of the law firm of Sturgis, Den-Dulk, Douglass & Anderson, 1322 Webster Street, Oakland, California, 94612, approving the validity of said bonds will be furnished to the successful bidder without charge. In the opinion of Counsel, interest on the bonds is exempt from all federal income taxes, and from State of California personal income taxes, under presently existing statutes, regulations and court decisions, and the bonds are also exempt from all California taxes except inheritance, gift and franchise taxes.

HIGHEST BID: Bidders are requested to name the interest rate or rates not exceeding seven per cent (7%) per annum in multiples of 1/8 or 1/20 of one per cent (1%) Each bidder must specify in his bid the amount and maturities of the bonds of each rate and all bonds maturing on the same date must bear interest at the same rate. No bid may name more than four interest rates, any of which may be repeated. No rate may be more than one and one-half per cent (1-1½%) higher than the lowest rate named in the bid. The interest payable on any bond on any interest payment date may, however, be represented by one or more coupons. A zero rate cannot be named for all or any of the time from the date of the bond to its stated maturity and the premium, if any, must be paid in the funds specified for payment of the bonds as part of the purchase price. No bid of less than 98% of par and accrued interest or for less than all of the bonds offered will be entertained. Unless all bids are rejected, the bonds will be awarded to the bidder whose proposal results in the lowest net interest cost to the issuer, and the net interest cost will be determined by deducting the amount of any premium paid from or adding the amount of any discount to the aggregate amount of interest upon all of the bonds from their date until their respective maturities.

RIGHT OF REJECTION: The San Rafael Sanitation District reserves the right at its discretion to reject any and all bids and to waive any irregularity or informality in any bid. Any bid must be in strict conformity with this Official Notice Inviting Bids, and without any qualification.

PROMPT AWARD: The San Rafael Sanitation District will take action awarding the bonds or rejecting all bids not later than forty-eight (48) hours after expiration of the time herein prescribed for the receipt of proposals.

PROMPT DELIVERY: Delivery of the bonds will be made to the successful bidder at the office of the County Treasurer of the County of Marin, Ex-Officio Treasurer of the San Rafael Sanitation District, Civic Center Building, San Rafael, California, as soon as the bonds can be prepared, but not earlier than the date of said bonds. Successful bidder, by making a bid, agrees to pay for and take delivery of the bonds within forty-eight (48) hours after notification by San Rafael Sanitation District that the bonds are ready for delivery, but bidder is not obligated to take delivery earlier than the date of the bonds. The successful bidder shall have the right at his option to cancel his offer to purchase if the bonds are not tendered for delivery within 45 days from the date of the bonds.

FORM OF BID: All bids must be for not less than all of the bonds herein offered for sale. Each bid, together with bidder's check, must be enclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the Secretary of the San Rafael Sanitation District, and endorsed "Proposal for Bonds, Moncada Sewer Assessment District, San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California."

BID CHECK: With each bid must be submitted a certified check or cashier's check for $2,000.00 drawn on a bank or trust company transacting business in the State of California, payable to the order of the San Rafael Sanitation District to secure the Sanitation District from any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid. Check of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned by mail upon the award of the bonds. Check of successful bidder will be credited upon the purchase price of the bonds, and no interest will be paid upon the deposit of any successful bidder. Check of the successful bidder will be forfeited to the Sanitation District if the bidder fails to pay for and take delivery of the bonds within the time provided for in this notice as liquidated damages.

NO LITIGATION CERTIFICATE: The San Rafael Sanitation District will furnish to the successful bidder, at the time of the delivery of the bonds, a no-litigation certificate, certifying that there is no controversy or litigation pending or threatened concerning the validity of the bonds

Boyle's Brother Fights For Job

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — The brother of former United Mine Workers President Tony Boyle has launched a legal battle to keep a union job he has held for more than two decades.

R. J. (Dick) Boyle, president of UMW District 27 since December 1948, sued the union's international leadership this week to prevent it from closing its office here.

Boyle charged that the new president, Arnold R. Miller, and other officials were violating federal labor laws by acting in "reprisal for his support of the former president."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

A grateful California woman writes: "A permanent cardiac pacemaker was implanted in my 82-year-old grandfather. He is as happy as a lark and is thinking of remarrying. All his heart symptoms have disappeared and our doctor said that his pulse has gone from 45 to 70 beats per minute. Isn't this some sort of a record?"

No, inasmuch as there are medical reports on the successful implantation of permanent cardiac pacemakers in centenarians and people in their nineties. The device preserves and prlongs life, but some users are bothered by the psychological effects.

ONE OF THESE was a 103-year-old New Jersey man who returned home to his usual level of activity — mainly, casual strolls through his garden. According to Dr. Joseph Grayzel, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, the man ultimately died of a broken heart.

For many years, the gentleman had lived with his 80-year-old daughter who suddenly found that she was unable to give him proper care. She placed him in a nice institution, but he became extremely depressed when he realized that he never would return to his flower garden. He ate poorly, drank less, and died of malnutrition and dehydration. His heart was truly broken.

PACEMAKERS are used mainly in older people, and usually are implanted as an emergency measure. As a result, the user has very little time to prepare mentally for the operation. He regards the pacemaker as another step in the proces of "bodily deterioration." Unlike patients wvmn artificial limb, the pacemaker recipient has no control over the implant. He appreciates what it will do, but knows that eventually it will fail because new batteries are needed every two years. Many are afraid it might stop when they are asleep.

Still others object to artificial accessories or being run by a machine. In addition, the pacemaker is not a cure — there always will be something wrong with the heart. Depression is likely, but uncommon considering that 100,000 people have pacemakers.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

DISK TROUBLE

H.D. writes: What are manifestations of a deteriorated spinal disk that should be investigated by the physician?

REPLY

Pain in the lower back and sciatica down the leg are the most common manifestations. Involvement of a disk in the vertebra of the neck may lead to pain in the neck, the shoulder, or the arm. There are many good tests to determine whether the condition exists.

HEART ATTACKS

A reader writes: At what age do women get heart attacks?

REPLY

At any age, but most commonly after 60.

SILENT CORONARY

C.C. writes: How is a silent heart attack detected?

REPLY

By a chance electrocardiogram or when complications develop. These include irregularities of the beat, shortness of breath, or swelling of the ankles.

TWINS ON TOES

A reader writes: My 21-month-old twins walk on their toes. What makes them do this?

REPLY

Habit, if the feet otherwise are normal. Have these children examined by your physician to make sure that the tendons are not too short or that clubfoot is not present.

CANCER OF PANCREAS

T. T. writes: What are the signs of cancer of the pancreas?

REPLY

Symptoms depend upon the location of the cancer in the pancreas. There may be none when the lesion is located at the tail end of the organ. The first manifestations are caused by spread of the malignancy to other structures. In carcinoma of the body of the pancreas, pain of a deep boring type is noted. When the head of the organ is involved the skin becomes yellowish due to blockage of the duct from the liver.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, March 1, the 60th day of 1973 with 305 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

British actor David Niven was born March 1, 1910.

On this day in history:

In 1781, the American colonies adopted articles of confederation, paving the way for a federal union.

In 1803, Ohio became the 17th state in the Union.

In 1932, famed flyer Charles Lindbergh's 20-month-old son was kidnaped. The boy's body was found on May 12, and Bruno Hauptmann was electrocuted for the kidnap-murder in 1936.

In 1954, five congressmen were wounded when Puerto Rican nationalists began firing wildly from the gallery of the U.S. House of Representatives.

A thought for the day: American writer Henry Thoreau said, "It is characteristic of wisdom not to do desperate things."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Public Notice

OFFICIAL NOTICE INVITING BIDS FOR THE PURCHASE OF BONDS, MONCADA SEWER ASSESSMENT DISTRICT, SAN RAFAEL SANITATION DISTRICT, MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1913 AND THE IMPROVEMENT BOND ACT OF 1915

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that sealed proposals will be received by the District Administrator of the San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California, located in the San Rafael City Hall, Room 301, 1400 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, California, at the hour of 10:00 A.M. on the 7th day of March, 1973, for the purchase of $62,459.95 principal amount of bonds for Moncada Sewer Assessment District, San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California. Said bids will be publicly opened, examined and declared at said time and place.

These bonds are authorized to be issued, and the assessments are authorized to be levied, under the provisions of Resolution of Intention No. 280 of the Board of Directors of the San Rafael Sanitation District adopted on the 27th day of November, 1972, and proceedings subsequent thereto. The Resolution of Intention provides with relation to said bonds as follows:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that serial bonds to represent unpaid assessments and bearing interest at a rate of not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum shall be issued herein in the manner provided by Division 10 of the Streets and Highways Code, the Improvement Bond Act of 1915, the last installment of which bonds shall mature fourteen (14) years from the 2nd day of July next succeeding ten (10) months from their date.

MATURITIES AND AMOUNT OF BONDS: Said bonds will be in the amount of $62,459.95. All bidders, by submission of a bid, agree to purchase the total amount of bonds to be issued. The maturity schedule on the bonds will be as follows:

Bond Numbers, Inclusive	Bonds Maturing July 2	Amount Maturity
1 to 5	1974	5,459.95
6 to 10	1975	5,000.00
11 to 14	1976	4,000.00
15 to 18	1977	4,000.00
19 to 22	1978	4,000.00
23 to 26	1979	4,000.00
27 to 30	1980	4,000.00
31 to 34	1981	4,000.00
35 to 38	1982	4,000.00
39 to 42	1983	4,000.00
43 to 46	1984	4,000.00
47 to 50	1985	4,000.00
51 to 54	1986	4,000.00
55 to 58	1987	4,000.00
59 to 62	1988	4,000.00
		$62,459.95

Note: All bonds are in the denomination of $1,000.00, except Bond No. 1, which is in the amount of $1,459.95.

DATE OF BONDS AND INTEREST RATE: Bonds are to be dated the 2nd day of April, 1973, and will bear interest from said date. Interest rate is fixed in the Resolution of Intention at not to exceed seven per cent (7%) per annum. Such interest shall be evidenced by coupons attached to each bond, and each of said coupons shall represent six months' interest on the bond to which it is attached. The first coupon will be for interest from April 2, 1973 to January 2, 1974.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: Said bonds are authorized to be issued by the Board of Directors of the San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California, by Resolution of Intention No. 280 and proceedings subsequent thereto. The purpose is for the construction of a sanitary sewer system, together with the acquisition of all necessary rights of way. These improvements are within the boundaries of the assessment district designated, "Moncada Sewer Assessment District, San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California," and reference for details is made to the proceedings for the formation and completion of said assessment district.

PAYMENT: Both principal and interest are payable in lawful money of the United States at the office of the Marin County Treasurer, Civic Center Building, San Rafael, California.

CALLABLE BONDS: All bonds are callable pursuant to the provisions of the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 twice each year. No bonds may be called except on July 2 or January 2 and there must be a sixty day notice of call. Any bond called will have interest to date of call and a premium of five per cent (5%) of the principal amount.

AUTHORITY FOR ISSUANCE: Said bonds were authorized to be issued by the proceedings in said assessment district and said assessment district was organized and consummated under the provisions of the Municipal Improvement Act of 1913 and bonds provided to be issued under the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 of the State of California.

SECURITY: Said bonds are payable from the redemption fund provided by law which is secured by all of the unpaid assessments within the boundaries of said district. Said bonds are further secured by a limited guarantee on the part of the entity which issued said bonds. Under the provisions of the Improvement Bond Act of 1915, any real property on which the owners have failed to pay installments of assessments as they fall due is sold for delinquencies by the Sanitation District in the same manner as real property is sold for delinquent taxes. It is the duty of the San Rafael Sanitation District to bid such property in at such tax sale. It then becomes the duty of the Sanitation District to transfer to the Redemption Fund the amount of the purchase. In the event there is not sufficient money in the General Fund to transfer this amount into the Redemption Fund, it becomes the mandatory duty of the Sanitation District to levy a tax up to 10c on each $100.00 of assessed valuation of property within the boundaries of the San Rafael Sanitation District sufficient in amount to pay for the delinquencies. It becomes the continuing duty of the Sanitation District throughout the life of the bond issue, to levy such a tax and to pay for the installments upon property sold to the Sanitation District for delinquencies. The maximum levy which the Sanitation District is obligated to make in any one year is 10c on each $100.00 of assessed valuation. The assessed valuation of all taxable real property in the San Rafael Sanitation District for the fiscal year 1972-73 is $114,720,120.00. Ten cents on the $100.00 would therefore raise, in the San Rafael Sanitation District, the sum of $114,720.00.

LEGAL OPINION: The legal opinion of the law firm of Sturgis, Den-Dulk, Douglass & Anderson, 1322 Webster Street, Oakland, California, 94612, approving the validity of said bonds will be furnished to the successful bidder without charge. In the opinion of Counsel, interest on the bonds is exempt from all federal income taxes, and from State of California personal income taxes, under presently existing statutes, regulations and court decisions, and the bonds are also exempt from all California taxes except inheritance, gift and franchise taxes.

HIGHEST BID: Bidders are requested to name the interest rate or rates not exceeding seven per cent (7%) per annum in multiples of 1/8 or 1/20 of one per cent (1%) Each bidder must specify in his bid the amount and maturities of the bonds of each rate and all bonds maturing on the same date must bear interest at the same rate. No bid may name more than four interest rates, any of which may be repeated. No rate may be more than one and one-half per cent (1-1½%) higher than the lowest rate named in the bid. The interest payable on any bond on any interest payment date may, however, be represented by one or more coupons. A zero rate cannot be named for all or any of the time from the date of the bond to its stated maturity and the premium, if any, must be paid in the funds specified for payment of the bonds as part of the purchase price. No bid of less than 98% of par and accrued interest or for less than all of the bonds offered will be entertained. Unless all bids are rejected, the bonds will be awarded to the bidder whose proposal results in the lowest net interest cost to the issuer, and the net interest cost will be determined by deducting the amount of any premium paid from or adding the amount of any discount to the aggregate amount of interest upon all of the bonds from their date until their respective maturities.

RIGHT OF REJECTION: The San Rafael Sanitation District reserves the right at its discretion to reject any and all bids and to waive any irregularity or informality in any bid. Any bid must be in strict conformity with this Official Notice Inviting Bids, and without any qualification.

PROMPT AWARD: The San Rafael Sanitation District will take action awarding the bonds or rejecting all bids not later than forty-eight (48) hours after expiration of the time herein prescribed for the receipt of proposals.

PROMPT DELIVERY: Delivery of the bonds will be made to the successful bidder at the office of the County Treasurer of the County of Marin, Ex-Officio Treasurer of the San Rafael Sanitation District, Civic Center Building, San Rafael, California, as soon as the bonds can be prepared, but not earlier than the date of said bonds. Successful bidder, by making a bid, agrees to pay for and take delivery of the bonds within forty-eight (48) hours after notification by San Rafael Sanitation District that the bonds are ready for delivery, but bidder is not obligated to take delivery earlier than the date of the bonds. The successful bidder shall have the right at his option to cancel his offer to purchase if the bonds are not tendered for delivery within 45 days from the date of the bonds.

FORM OF BID: All bids must be for not less than all of the bonds herein offered for sale. Each bid, together with bidder's check, must be enclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the Secretary of the San Rafael Sanitation District, and endorsed "Proposal for Bonds, Moncada Sewer Assessment District, San Rafael Sanitation District, Marin County, California."

BID CHECK: With each bid must be submitted a certified check or cashier's check for $2,000.00 drawn on a bank or trust company transacting business in the State of California, payable to the order of the San Rafael Sanitation District to secure the Sanitation District from any loss resulting from the failure of the bidder to comply with the terms of his bid. Check of the unsuccessful bidders will be returned by mail upon the award of the bonds. Check of successful bidder will be credited upon the purchase price of the bonds, and no interest will be paid upon the deposit of any successful bidder. Check of the successful bidder will be forfeited to the Sanitation District if the bidder fails to pay for and take delivery of the bonds within the time provided for in this notice. as liquidated damages.

NO LITIGATION CERTIFICATE: The San Rafael Sanitation District will furnish to the successful bidder, at the time of the delivery of the bonds, a no-litigation certificate, certifying that there is no controversy or litigation pending or threatened concerning the validity of the bonds

Boyle's Brother Fights For Job

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — The brother of former United Mine Workers President Tony Boyle has launched a legal battle to keep a union job he has held for more than two decades.

R. J. (Dick) Boyle, president of UMW District 27 since December 1948, sued the union's international leadership this week to prevent it from closing its office here.

Boyle charged that the new president, Arnold R. Miller, and other officials were violating federal labor laws by acting in "reprisal for his support of the former president."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

A grateful California woman writes: "A permanent cardiac pacemaker was implanted in my 82-year-old grandfather. He is as happy as a lark and is thinking of remarrying. All his heart symptoms have disappeared and our doctor said that his pulse has gone from 45 to 70 beats per minute. Isn't this some sort of a record?"

No, inasmuch as there are medical reports on the successful implantation of permanent cardiac pacemakers in centenarians and people in their nineties. The device preserves and prlongs life, but some users are bothered by the psychological effects.

ONE OF THESE was a 103-year-old New Jersey man who returned home to his usual level of activity — mainly, casual strolls through his garden. According to Dr. Joseph Grayzel, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, the man ultimately died of a broken heart.

For many years, the gentleman had lived with his 80-year-old daughter who suddenly found that she was unable to give him proper care. She placed him in a nice institution, but he became extremely depressed when he realized that he never would return to his flower garden. He ate poorly, drank less, and died of malnutrition and dehydration. His heart was truly broken.

PACEMAKERS are used mainly in older people, and usually are implanted as an emergency measure. As a result, the user has very little time to prepare mentally for the operation. He regards the pacemaker as another step in the proces of "bodily deterioration." Unlike patients wvmn artificial limb, the pacemaker recipient has no control over the implant. He appreciates what it will do, but knows that eventually it will fail because new batteries are needed every two years. Many are afraid it might stop when they are asleep.

Still others object to artificial accessories or being run by a machine. In addition, the pacemaker is not a cure — there always will be something wrong with the heart. Depression is likely, but uncommon considering that 100,000 people have pacemakers.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

DISK TROUBLE

H.D. writes: What are manifestations of a deteriorated spinal disk that should be investigated by the physician?

REPLY

Pain in the lower back and sciatica down the leg are the most common manifestations. Involvement of a disk in the vertebra of the neck may lead to pain in the neck, the shoulder, or the arm. There are many good tests to determine whether the condition exists.

HEART ATTACKS

A reader writes: At what age do women get heart attacks?

REPLY

At any age, but most commonly after 60.

SILENT CORONARY

C.C. writes: How is a silent heart attack detected?

REPLY

By a chance electrocardiogram or when complications develop. These include irregularities of the beat, shortness of breath, or swelling of the ankles.

TWINS ON TOES

A reader writes: My 21-month-old twins walk on their toes. What makes them do this?

REPLY

Habit, if the feet otherwise are normal. Have these children examined by your physician to make sure that the tendons are not too short or that clubfoot is not present.

CANCER OF PANCREAS

T. T. writes: What are the signs of cancer of the pancreas?

REPLY

Symptoms depend upon the location of the cancer in the pancreas. There may be none when the lesion is located at the tail end of the organ. The first manifestations are caused by spread of the malignancy to other structures. In carcinoma of the body of the pancreas, pain of a deep boring type is noted. When the head of the organ is involved the skin becomes yellowish due to blockage of the duct from the liver.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, March 1, the 60th day of 1973 with 305 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

British actor David Niven was born March 1, 1910.

On this day in history:

In 1781, the American colonies adopted articles of confederation, paving the way for a federal union.

In 1803, Ohio became the 17th state in the Union.

In 1932, famed flyer Charles Lindbergh's 20-month-old son was kidnaped. The boy's body was found on May 12, and Bruno Hauptmann was electrocuted for the kidnap-murder in 1936.

In 1954, five congressmen were wounded when Puerto Rican nationalists began firing wildly from the gallery of the U.S. House of Representatives.

A thought for the day: American writer Henry Thoreau said, "It is characteristic of wisdom not to do desperate things."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Change In European Policies Seen Affecting Firms Abroad

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A European trend toward encouraging worker participation in economic decision making will profoundly influence American firms operating in Europe and may spread to this country, the Stanford Business Conference was told Wednesday.

Professor James E. Howell, former director of the Institute of International Management in Berlin, said European workers are shifting their top priority from "the meal ticket" to greater participation in policy.

Howell made these predictions about European nations' economic future:

—With a low wage rate and large labor force coming into industry, France's future is bright. By 1980, the French will pull even with West Germans in per capita gross domestic product of $4,400 per person in 1968 U.S. dollars.

—Germany is moving into a period of "maturity." Its growth rate is decelerating, part of its industrial capacity is becoming outdated, "affluence is hitting hard."

—The United Kingdom faces a period of "relative decline," with per capita gross domestic product likely to fall to $1,800, or one half that of West Germany, by 1975. By 1980, Howell thinks the ratio will fall even lower, to $2,100 versus $4,400. Within a decade or two, Britain could become a third or fourth rate power.

—Japan will achieve about the same per-capita domestic gross product as West Germany and France by 1975. By the turn of the century, Japan may exceed the U.S. on this basis.

As several industrial blocs enjoy increasing affluence, Howell said "a very dangerous situation" will develop with underdeveloped countries who face growing poverty and little change in their present standard of living.

Guilty Plea As Charge Reduced

Ephorn Freeman Jr., 28, of Mill Valley has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to a misdemeanor charge of using a gun during a quarrel over money last year.

Freeman admitted the violation after Judge David Menary Jr. reduced a felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon and pledged a jail term of no more than 90 days. Sentencing was continued to April 9 to obtain a probation report.

Freeman, a self-emloyed vitamin salesman, was arrested Nov. 17 by Mill Valley police after Charles Dobson Jr., 21, of Mill Valley was wounded in a leg during a disagreement in Lytton Square.

PG&E Asks For Boost In Gas Rate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. Wednesday sought permission to raise gas rates by $46.8 million annually to offset increases in prices the utility said it must pay suppliers beginning July 1.

PG&E's petition to the California Public Utilities Commission said its proposed rate increase would be spread across all classes of service among the utility's 2.4 million gas customers and would mean an average 47 cents a month increase for residential gas customers.

In addition, the cost of gas-fueled electric generation would add another 10 cents a month to the average residential electric bill, the company said.

Of the total increase sought, $16.6 million would affect residential and general service gas customers, the application said. The remainder would affect steam-electric generating plant users and interruptible industrial customers.

A prospective increase of eight cents per thousand cubic feet PG&E expects to pay California gas producers this summer will cost the company $19.4 million annually, a spokesman said. An expected .7.3 cents increase per thousand cubic feet of gas purchased from Canadian suppliers will add another $27.4 million to PG&E's annual gas bill, he said.

Rights Bill Defeated In Nevada

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The equal rights amendment was defeated Wednesday in the Nevada state Senate by a vote of 16-4.

After 30 minutes of debate, mostly by those who favored the amendment, the Senate took the final ballot.

The four voting for the amendment were Sens. Richard Ryan, D-Las Vegas, Joe Neal, D-Las Vegas, Thomas Wilson, D-Reno, and Cliff Young, R-Reno.

Sen. Helen Herr, the only woman in the Senate, said the defeat of the amendment would be a great day in the history of Nevada for the rights of women.

"This act deliberately undermines the family which is the cornerstone of society. We were not created equal. God made us different."

Change In European Policies Seen Affecting Firms Abroad

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A European trend toward encouraging worker participation in economic decision making will profoundly influence American firms operating in Europe and may spread to this country, the Stanford Business Conference was told Wednesday.

Professor James E. Howell, former director of the Institute of International Management in Berlin, said European workers are shifting their top priority from "the meal ticket" to greater participation in policy.

Howell made these predictions about European nations' economic future:

—With a low wage rate and large labor force coming into industry, France's future is bright. By 1980, the French will pull even with West Germans in per capita gross domestic product of $4,400 per person in 1968 U.S. dollars.

—Germany is moving into a period of "maturity." Its growth rate is decelerating, part of its industrial capacity is becoming outdated, "affluence is hitting hard."

—The United Kingdom faces a period of "relative decline," with per capita gross domestic product likely to fall to $1,800, or one half that of West Germany, by 1975. By 1980, Howell thinks the ratio will fall even lower, to $2,100 versus $4,400. Within a decade or two, Britain could become a third or fourth rate power.

—Japan will achieve about the same per-capita domestic gross product as West Germany and France by 1975. By the turn of the century, Japan may exceed the U.S. on this basis.

As several industrial blocs enjoy increasing affluence, Howell said "a very dangerous situation" will develop with underdeveloped countries who face growing poverty and little change in their present standard of living.

Guilty Plea As Charge Reduced

Ephorn Freeman Jr., 28, of Mill Valley has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to a misdemeanor charge of using a gun during a quarrel over money last year.

Freeman admitted the violation after Judge David Menary Jr. reduced a felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon and pledged a jail term of no more than 90 days. Sentencing was continued to April 9 to obtain a probation report.

Freeman, a self-emloyed vitamin salesman, was arrested Nov. 17 by Mill Valley police after Charles Dobson Jr., 21, of Mill Valley was wounded in a leg during a disagreement in Lytton Square.

PG&E Asks For Boost In Gas Rate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. Wednesday sought permission to raise gas rates by $46.8 million annually to offset increases in prices the utility said it must pay suppliers beginning July 1.

PG&E's petition to the California Public Utilities Commission said its proposed rate increase would be spread across all classes of service among the utility's 2.4 million gas customers and would mean an average 47 cents a month increase for residential gas customers.

In addition, the cost of gas-fueled electric generation would add another 10 cents a month to the average residential electric bill, the company said.

Of the total increase sought, $16.6 million would affect residential and general service gas customers, the application said. The remainder would affect steam-electric generating plant users and interruptible industrial customers.

A prospective increase of eight cents per thousand cubic feet PG&E expects to pay California gas producers this summer will cost the company $19.4 million annually, a spokesman said. An expected .7.3 cents increase per thousand cubic feet of gas purchased from Canadian suppliers will add another $27.4 million to PG&E's annual gas bill, he said.

Rights Bill Defeated In Nevada

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The equal rights amendment was defeated Wednesday in the Nevada state Senate by a vote of 16-4.

After 30 minutes of debate, mostly by those who favored the amendment, the Senate took the final ballot.

The four voting for the amendment were Sens. Richard Ryan, D-Las Vegas, Joe Neal, D-Las Vegas, Thomas Wilson, D-Reno, and Cliff Young, R-Reno.

Sen. Helen Herr, the only woman in the Senate, said the defeat of the amendment would be a great day in the history of Nevada for the rights of women.

"This act deliberately undermines the family which is the cornerstone of society. We were not created equal. God made us different."

Change In European Policies Seen Affecting Firms Abroad

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A European trend toward encouraging worker participation in economic decision making will profoundly influence American firms operating in Europe and may spread to this country, the Stanford Business Conference was told Wednesday.

Professor James E. Howell, former director of the Institute of International Management in Berlin, said European workers are shifting their top priority from "the meal ticket" to greater participation in policy.

Howell made these predictions about European nations' economic future:

—With a low wage rate and large labor force coming into industry, France's future is bright. By 1980, the French will pull even with West Germans in per capita gross domestic product of $4,400 per person in 1968 U.S. dollars.

—Germany is moving into a period of "maturity." Its growth rate is decelerating, part of its industrial capacity is becoming outdated, "affluence is hitting hard."

—The United Kingdom faces a period of "relative decline," with per capita gross domestic product likely to fall to $1,800, or one half that of West Germany, by 1975. By 1980, Howell thinks the ratio will fall even lower, to $2,100 versus $4,400. Within a decade or two, Britain could become a third or fourth rate power.

—Japan will achieve about the same per-capita domestic gross product as West Germany and France by 1975. By the turn of the century, Japan may exceed the U.S. on this basis.

As several industrial blocs enjoy increasing affluence, Howell said "a very dangerous situation" will develop with underdeveloped countries who face growing poverty and little change in their present standard of living.

Guilty Plea As Charge Reduced

Ephorn Freeman Jr., 28, of Mill Valley has pleaded guilty in Marin Superior Court to a misdemeanor charge of using a gun during a quarrel over money last year.

Freeman admitted the violation after Judge David Menary Jr. reduced a felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon and pledged a jail term of no more than 90 days. Sentencing was continued to April 9 to obtain a probation report.

Freeman, a self-emloyed vitamin salesman, was arrested Nov. 17 by Mill Valley police after Charles Dobson Jr., 21, of Mill Valley was wounded in a leg during a disagreement in Lytton Square.

PG&E Asks For Boost In Gas Rate

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. Wednesday sought permission to raise gas rates by $46.8 million annually to offset increases in prices the utility said it must pay suppliers beginning July 1.

PG&E's petition to the California Public Utilities Commission said its proposed rate increase would be spread across all classes of service among the utility's 2.4 million gas customers and would mean an average 47 cents a month increase for residential gas customers.

In addition, the cost of gas-fueled electric generation would add another 10 cents a month to the average residential electric bill, the company said.

Of the total increase sought, $16.6 million would affect residential and general service gas customers, the application said. The remainder would affect steam-electric generating plant users and interruptible industrial customers.

A prospective increase of eight cents per thousand cubic feet PG&E expects to pay California gas producers this summer will cost the company $19.4 million annually, a spokesman said. An expected .7.3 cents increase per thousand cubic feet of gas purchased from Canadian suppliers will add another $27.4 million to PG&E's annual gas bill, he said.

Rights Bill Defeated In Nevada

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The equal rights amendment was defeated Wednesday in the Nevada state Senate by a vote of 16-4.

After 30 minutes of debate, mostly by those who favored the amendment, the Senate took the final ballot.

The four voting for the amendment were Sens. Richard Ryan, D-Las Vegas, Joe Neal, D-Las Vegas, Thomas Wilson, D-Reno, and Cliff Young, R-Reno.

Sen. Helen Herr, the only woman in the Senate, said the defeat of the amendment would be a great day in the history of Nevada for the rights of women.

"This act deliberately undermines the family which is the cornerstone of society. We were not created equal. God made us different."

The Senate Judiciary Committee voted 6-1 Tuesday for a "do not pass" recommendation.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Younger Will Probably Make GOP Bid For Governor's Job

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger says contrary to rumors, he is leaning toward running for governor and has concluded he would be the strongest Republican candidate.

"If I can finance a proper campaign I'm leaning to go," he told UPI Wednesday.

"I am now persuaded I would be the strongest Republican candidate. If those who finance campaigns agree with me, I probably will be a candidate.

"If they don't," he added in an interview, "I'm not going to run for the exercise."

Younger had been considered the least likely to run of the four major potential candidates for the 1974 Republican gubernatorial nomination.

His new declaration is sure to have a significant impact on pre-primary jockeying, particularly on efforts by other contenders to raise money from uncommitted GOP contributors.

In a statement prepared exclusively for UPI, Younger said "a couple of other potential candidates for governor" are spreading rumors he has decided not to enter the race.

"On the contrary," Younger said, "I have spent several months 'testing the water,' conferring with the Republican leadership around the state, consulting with persons whose opinions I value.

"And I have concluded that I would be the strongest Republican among the potential candidates in a race for governor against the Democratic candidate.

"I now am going to make an effort to determine whether or not adequate financial support would be available in order to enable me to wage a vigorous campaign for broad voter support."

Younger added he will do this "without diminishing my effort to serve effectively as attorney general."

Richard R. Adams, Younger's special assistant, said: "It's the strongest thing he's ever said" about running for governor.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke has said he definitely is in the race. Controller Houston I. Flournoy says he probably will run. Former Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch says he will run either for governor or the Senate, and is leaning toward governor.

Philosophically, Reinecke is the most conservative and Flournoy the most liberal. Younger and Finch draw their basic support from the more moderate "Nixon center" of the party.

Referring to Finch and noting he no longer holds public office, Younger said: "He's a good man, but he's obviously at a disadvantage now. Being a good lawyer is not necessarily a good campaign position."

Younger said Labor Day is a "realistic target date" for deciding whether to seek the governorship or a second term as attorney general.

The 54-year-old former Los Angeles County district attorney had until recently what an aide said was a $120,000 deficit from his 1970 campaign. A luncheon attended by Gov. Ronald Reagan and other leading Republicans a few weeks ago paid off all but a small portion of that.

LOGGING

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The fight over how to control California's logging industry shifted to the Assembly today after the Senate unanimously passed a Reagan administration bill favored by timber firms but opposed by conservationists.

"This is the toughest forest practices legislation in the nation," Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, said Wednesday before the measure (SB5) cleared the Senate on a 30-0 vote.

The bill faces an uncertain future in the Assembly because of a possible roadblock that may be erected by Assemblyman Edwin L. Z'berg, who is sponsoring a rival bill backed by the Sierra Club.

Asked why he strenuously opposed Nejedly's measure, Z'berg, chairman of the Assembly Natural Resources Committee, responded: "I just like my bill. I don't care for his bill."

Otherwise, the Sacramento Democrat said Nejedly's bill did not set stiff enough minimum standards for restocking of harvested timber or require that logging plans be drafted by professional foresters.

COMPUTERS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Reagan administration has insisted that bidding for the multimillion dollar state computer consolidation was not "rigged" in favor of the IBM company.

Earlier this week, IBM turned up as the only firm in the running for an initial $13 million contract in the consolidation. The state had rejected a bid from its only competitor, Univac Corp.

Finance Director Verne Orr, testifying before the Assembly Ways and Means Committee Wednesday, said if the lawmakers had any doubts that the bidding was "rigged" he was prepared to bring dozens of witnesses to a closed committee session to swear it was not.

None of the committee members took Orr up on his offer.

FLAG PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman John Stull, R-Leucadia, has introduced legislation aimed at making California's law against desecrating the American Flag meaningful again.

The U.S. Supreme Court last month upheld a ruling that California's flag desecration law is unconstitutional because it is "overbroad." The court said the statute could be extended to punish persons using flag-studded martini toothpicks to spear olives.

Stull's measure (AB514), offered Wednesday, would provide a specific definition of "U.S. Flag" in the state law making it a misdemeanor to publicly mutilate, deface, trample, defile or burn the flag.

CHALLENGE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic Senator-elect Alan Robbins of North Hollywood will face a Republican challenge next week when he attempts to take his seat in the gas-lighted, red-and-gold Senate chambers.

The move to block the swearing-in of the 30-year-old attorney is linked to GOP efforts to oust Senate Preesident Pro Tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego, and replace him with Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale.

Harmer, GOP caucus chairman, told newsmen Wednesday he had "irrefutable evidence" that Robbins violated the law requiring senatorial candidates to live in their district for one year preceding the election.

Democratic leaders termed Harmer's challenge "petty."

They predicted Republicans would lose their fight to prevent Robbins from being sworn-in, adding that his election made Mills "secure" in his top leadership position.

Robbins defeated Republican Phillip Johnson, a 32-year-old San Fernando city councilman, in a special election Tuesday in the San Fernando Valley.

WINE CHECKS

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A measure asking the federal government to inspect sanitary conditions in foreign wineries has been introduced by Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter.

Way said Wednesday he proposed the measure (SJR6) at the request of the California wine industry because of concern that foreign wines were not made under completely sanitary conditions.

Way, however, could not provide specific examples.

WELFARE

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill repealing a key feature of the state's welfare reform law moves from one Senate committee to another today despite opposition from the Reagan administration.

The proposal (SB7) by Sen Ralph Dills, D-Gardena, would eliminate a requirement that children contribute to the support of their elderly parents who receive welfare.

The measure was approved by a 7-2 vote of the Health and Welfare Committee Wednesday and sent on to the Finance Committee. A similar bill by Dills was vetoed by Gov. Ronald Reagan last year.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Younger Will Probably Make GOP Bid For Governor's Job

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger says contrary to rumors, he is leaning toward running for governor and has concluded he would be the strongest Republican candidate.

"If I can finance a proper campaign I'm leaning to go," he told UPI Wednesday.

"I am now persuaded I would be the strongest Republican candidate. If those who finance campaigns agree with me, I probably will be a candidate.

"If they don't," he added in an interview, "I'm not going to run for the exercise."

Younger had been considered the least likely to run of the four major potential candidates for the 1974 Republican gubernatorial nomination.

His new declaration is sure to have a significant impact on pre-primary jockeying, particularly on efforts by other contenders to raise money from uncommitted GOP contributors.

In a statement prepared exclusively for UPI, Younger said "a couple of other potential candidates for governor" are spreading rumors he has decided not to enter the race.

"On the contrary," Younger said, "I have spent several months 'testing the water,' conferring with the Republican leadership around the state, consulting with persons whose opinions I value.

"And I have concluded that I would be the strongest Republican among the potential candidates in a race for governor against the Democratic candidate.

"I now am going to make an effort to determine whether or not adequate financial support would be available in order to enable me to wage a vigorous campaign for broad voter support."

Younger added he will do this "without diminishing my effort to serve effectively as attorney general."

Richard R. Adams, Younger's special assistant, said: "It's the strongest thing he's ever said" about running for governor.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke has said he definitely is in the race. Controller Houston I. Flournoy says he probably will run. Former Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch says he will run either for governor or the Senate, and is leaning toward governor.

Philosophically, Reinecke is the most conservative and Flournoy the most liberal. Younger and Finch draw their basic support from the more moderate "Nixon center" of the party.

Referring to Finch and noting he no longer holds public office, Younger said: "He's a good man, but he's obviously at a disadvantage now. Being a good lawyer is not necessarily a good campaign position."

Younger said Labor Day is a "realistic target date" for deciding whether to seek the governorship or a second term as attorney general.

No Bearded Giants Will Swing A Bat

I must say Charlie Fox' short speech to the Giants players yesterday was expected. "Gentlemen, the mustaches and goatees have just got to go."

Charlie is a baseball manager from the old school. Things like long hair and beards bother him, and they bother Giants' President Horace Stoneham even more. Because of this, don't expect any big trades between the A's and Giants.

YOU WOULD HAVE thought baseball learned its lesson at the last World Series when the mustachioed and hairy A's beat the clean-cut, tidy Cincinnati Reds. It was a victory for the long hairs. Or to put it another way, it showed that the presence of long hair and mustaches didn't make a player any less of a hitter nor did it cut down the speed of a pitcher's fast ball.

But the A's are the A's and the Giants are the Giants, one team from the new school and the other from the old. When you hear some of the younger players on the Giants team complain that Fox can't get through to them, you start to get the picture. From the way some of the players are talking, all is not a bed of roses with the Giants. But grumbling from players can be expected after a season such as last, when the team was wallowing near the cellar throughout the year.

EVERY TIME a long hair or mustache issue come up, it makes me think back a few years ago when there was such a flap in the Tamalpais High School District after Redwood High School students who ran on the school's cross country team refused to get their locks clipped as ordered by the athletic department.

The boys waged a battle of principle. When the battle involves money, such as the kind found in professional sports, there is usually no battle at all. When Fox made his little announcement yesterday, I suspect there was some quiet grumbling but when you next see the players they will have done as ordered. Principle is principle, but money is money.

Reg Carolan of Novato told me the same thing came up when he was playing tight end for the Kansas City Chiefs. Head coach Hank Stram was not going to have any Joe Namaths on his team. Stram ordered everybody to have their hair cut short and all players complied, said Carolan, one of the Chiefs who didn't have long hair even before Stram's edict.

SINCE THE TIME I wandered out to Candlestick Park the other day and watched some of the players going through informal battling practice I was curious to what decision Fox and Stoneham were going to make on the facial hair question. There was a lot of it growing, especially on the faces of sluggers Willie McCovey and Bobby Bonds. But now that the formal business of spring training has started in Casa Grande, Ariz., the fuzz will get the axe, or more hopefully, the razor blade.

I had visions of the new-look Giants, even a possible uniform change from the style which they have been wearing the past two decades, even going back to the New York days. But no, change is something the Giants' organization is going to leave up to the cross bay A's. For the Giants, change comes hard.

PITCHERS WORK

Giants To Receive Haircuts, Says Fox

CASE GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — They won't be known as the hairy Giants this season.

Manager Charlie Fox, acting on orders from owner Horace Stoneham, Wednesday told the San Francisco Giants to return their faces to their natural state—no mustaches and goatees.

Among the goateed and mustachioed were pitcher Juan Marichal, outfielder Bobby Bonds, infielders Willie McCovey and Ed Goodson and rookies Ed Figueroa and Frank Ricelli, both aspiring pitchers.

Marichal and Sam McDowell tried their arms for the first time in spring practice and both responded well.

Marichal's first pitch of the new season was a breaking ball at which Bonds swung and missed. Still recovering from winter surgery for removal of a spinal disc, Marichal used his high leg kick, zinged across a few hummers and exited smiling.

"I feel good," he said.

McDowell, plagued by a sore shoulder most of last season, hurled about six minutes and got across some fastballs and curves. He also was pleased.

"The arm feels great," said McDowell. "I hadn't intended to risk throwing a fastball but I had to cut loose some time, so I cut loose. Not just 100 per cent . . . just about 75 per cent."

Meanwhile, veteran Giants' catcher Russ Gibson, 33, announced his retirement yesterday to pursue a career with the Bank of America in San Francisco. The 16-year veteran has spent the last three seasons with the Giants' organization.

Kent, Cummins Win Cage Games

Kent School defeated Reedland Woods, 38-17, and Neil Cummins decisioned Hall School, 24-22, yesterday in the first day of the three-day Redwood Invitational Basketball Tournament in Larkspur for eighth-grade schools in the Redwood attendance area.

Jim Connor scored 14 and Gary Zunino added 12 in pacing Kent's attack. Larry Linvill had 15 for Reedland. Brothers Eddie and Rich Ugarde scored 10 apiece for Neil Cummins, while Jim Alexander had seven for Hall.

Action today finds Kent playing Del Mar and Ross facing Neil Cummins at 4 p.m. in the school gym.

Nevers Has A Knee Operation

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — One of the greatest of all football players was recovering today from knee surgery made necessary by a grid injury.

He is Hall of Fame fullback Ernie Nevers, who starred at Stanford in the mid-20s and played pro ball for the next six years.

It was Nevers' first knee operation. He said he hurt it in a pro game in 1930, but was only really troubled by the injury in the past three years.

Drake '5' Vs. Castlemont In Tourney

Even though the Tournament of Champions hasn't started, Drake High School might be well advised to ask for a replay. Perhaps the drawing could be held again.

The Marin County Athletic League basketball champions have the opportunity, if that's the word, to play Castlemont High of Oakland in the first round of the tournament Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

The purple-and-white clad Knights, a perennial power in East Bay basketball, have just come off their first undefeated Oakland Athletic League season in history, and compiled a 22-1 overall record.

Good records are to be expected in the TOC, but Drake probably was hoping to draw a team built a little closer to the floor than Castlemont, which will have a front line of 6-foot-7, 6-6½ and 6-5. Drake will counter with 6-4, 6-0 and 5-11.

What's worse, the two biggest Knights are scoring demons. Jeff Randall, the 6-7 senior forward, scored 223 points in 10 OAL games and missed the league scoring record by a single point. He and 6-6½ senior center Reggie Green both are averaging better than 22.0 for all games.

The third player in Castlemont's front line, 6-5 senior forward Jimmie Turner, doesn't have the same gaudy statistics, but he's still taller than the most towering Pirate, 6-4 center John Channell.

The draw was held yesterday and was partially seeded, according to Tamalpais High principal Raymond J. Bell, the MCAL representative at the drawing. Catholic Athletic League champion Salesian, Alameda County Athletic League titleholder Berkeley, Castlemont and the Central Section champion were placed so they wouldn't face each other in the first round.

Thursday's schedule calls for Salesian to face Hayward Area Athletic League champion Arroyo of San Lorenzo at 4:30 p.m.; Berkeley against East Bay Athletic League winner Dublin at 6 p.m.; Castlemont vs. Drake at 7:30 and the Central Section champion against the Academic Athletic Association (San Francisco) winner at 9 p.m.

Drake will meet the Central-AAA winner at 9 p.m. Friday if the Pirates win Thursday; if not, they'll play at 7:30 Thursday against the Central-AAA loser.

Representatives in the Central Section and the AAA have not been determined yet. In San Francisco, the winner of today's Mission-Balboa game will play round-robin champion Wilson tomorrow for the berth. In the valley, four teams will meet today and tomorrow for the title — East Bakersfield, Tulare, San Joaquin Memorial of Fresno and Hoover of Fresno.

Memorial won the tournament last year and returns All-American center Cliff Pondexter, which accounts for that section's high seeding.

ABOUT AGE

Napoles Answers Question

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — If there was any question about welterweight king Jose Napoles' age, it's settled. Two months shy of his 33rd birthday, Mexico's adopted darling from Cuba cut down tough Ernie "Indian Red" Lopez in the seventh round of a scheduled 15-rounder Wednesday night.

"I still own the welterweight title and I want to keep it," said the mustachioed Napoles, following the 50th knockout of his 16-year pro career.

The end came at 1:36 of the seventh round with Lopez in a heap in a neutral corner follow-

Barry, Warriors Need Pick-Me-Up

BOSTON (UPI) — Rick Barry and the Golden State Warriors need a pick-me-up.

Nursing a bad back, Barry, the Warriors top scorer, hit on just one-of-nine shots Wednesday night as Golden State fell 118-111 before the Boston Celtics for their second straight loss on the road.

Against Detroit the night before, Barry was 3-for-17. Against Boston, he also made all four of his free throws for six points before sitting out the second half with an aching back suffered in a fall last Friday at Los Angeles.

Don Chaney, switched from guard to forward, scored a career high 32 points, including 16-of-17 from the free-throw line, to pace the Celtics.

Boston led 54-51 at the half but pulled away in the third period by outscoring the Warriors 36-29 behind the hot shooting of Dave Cowens. Cowens scored 12 of his 21 points in the third period as the Celtics upped their lead to 90-80 at the end of the period.

Nate Thurmond paced the Warriors with 23 points.

LEACH LEADS GOLF PLAY BY 1 SHOT

CHINO, Calif. (UPI) — Young Ray Leach of Novato, Calif., takes a one-stroke lead into today's final round of the $25,000 Western Tournament Golf Association's 36-hole event.

Leach, a 22-year-old former Brigham Young student, carded a 3-under-par 69 over the Western Hills Country Club Wednesday to take a one-shot lead over Steve Veriato of Hilo, Hawaii, and Mark Schmidt, Santa Ana, Calif. First prize in the two-day event is $5,000.

Two strokes off the pace were Jim Dill, El Cajon, Calif.; Gary McCord, Riverside, Calif.; and Joe Carr, Spencer, Mass. at even par 72 were Dick McClean of Carmel, Calif., and Rafe Botts, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Golden Seals Fold Up On Minnesota Ice

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — For 34 minutes, the California Golden Seals played even with the Minnesota North Stars.

Then in the next 26 minutes, Danny Grant, Lou Nanne, Bill Goldsworthy and Jude Drouin scored for the North Stars against beleaguered goalie Gilles Meloche to clinch a 7-3 National Hockey League win for Minnesota Wednesday night before 15,099 happy hometown fans.

Grant's 24th goal with 4:17 remaining in the middle period snapped a 3-3 tie and proved to be the winning goal.

California had its moments of brief glory but couldn't stave off the charge of the North Stars.

Joey Johnston tallied the game's first goal early in the opening period to give the Seals a 1-0 lea. Minnesota bounced back with goals by Drouin, Murray Oliver and Buster Harvey to take a 3-1 lead early in the second period.

The Seals tied it up on second period goals by Reg Leach and Stan Weir before Grant came through with the tiebreaker.

Basketball: Marin Tars Top Solano

SUISUN CITY — College of Marin's basketball team, already with the championship of the Camino Norte Conference locked snugly away, ended its regular season last night with a 79-56 victory over Solano College.

The Tars, who take on a team of CNC all-stars tomorrow night in Kentfield and then have a date in Ventura next week for the state championships, were led in the scoring department by Wil Garner, a forward who scored 18 points on nine shots from the field.

Marin coach John Panagakis went with his first unit for the opening 10 minutes of the game and the Tars ran off to a 23-12 lead. The last 10 minutes of the half, he went with his second unit and when the intermission horn sounded, the score was knotted at 30-all.

But then Marin came back, especially forward Joe Casteel who scored 13 of his 15 points in the second half, and before Solano could muster any kind of offense the game was out of reach.

The victory gave Marin a 13-1 final CNC mark and a 26-3 season record. For the sophomores on the team, their two-year record was 51-7.

Panagakis, who prides himself on control type play and good defense, was especially happy when his team ended up winning the conference defensive title, allowing an average of 57 points per game.

"This has really been a great year," said Panagakis.

Tomorrow night's game, starting at 8 o'clock, will be to help raise money to pay for the team's expenses to Ventura for the state championships, March 8-9-10. First opponent in the tourney will be Riverside City College.

Marin 30 49—79
Solano 30 26—56

Marin — Garner, 9-0-18, Casteel 7-1-15, DeMaestri 5-5-15, Traub 4-0-8, Pieper 1-4-6, Swift 1-3-5, Lindquist 1-2-4, Hagler 2-0-4, Smith 2-0-4. Totals: 32-15—79.

GENERALLY

Players Back 3-Year Pact

MIAMI (UPI) — Major league baseball players expressed general acceptance of a new three-year agreement between players representatives and club owners which provides for binding arbitration on salary disputes.

"We're very pleased with this agreement, especially the arbitration clause," said Chicago Cubs pitcher Milt Pappas. "It gives us a weapon we've never had before."

The contract was approved Wednesday by player representatives of 22 of the 24 major league baseball teams. It now goes to the members of the Players Association, who will vote before the current contract runs out March 31.

A key provision of the agreement states that any club or any player with two or more years of major league service may submit any salary dispute to binding arbitration.

Marvin Miller, chief negotiator for the players, said he expected no difficulty in getting the contract ratified. Miller briefed player representatives on the contract during a two-hour session at the Miami Airport Inn a few blocks from Miami International Airport. Many of the player representatives had just arrived in Florida to attend spring training, which officially opens today.

Miller said that once the negotiations with the owners began to get rolling Feb. 17, things moved swiftly and ended on an "upbeat note," ending the

Yankees, A's Are Among Flag Picks

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Maybe the oddsmakers at Harrah's Tahoe Racebook know something most other observers don't — that the New York Yankees will rise once again as a baseball power.

In releasing the 1973 preseason odds Wednesday, the racebook made the Yankees 9-5 favorites to win the American League East this year ahead of the Boston Red Sox (2-1) and Detroit Tigers (7-2).

Making the Yankees, who haven't known baseball glory since the 1950s, favorites in their division was the only surprise as the Racebook picked the world champion Oakland A's to repeat in the A.L. West and the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates to win the two National League division titles as they did last year.

The A's were overwhelming 3-5 picks to take the A.L. West with the improved Chicago White Sox next at 2-1.

Cincinnati was picked in the N.L. West at even money with Houston next at 2-1 while in the N.L. East Pittsburgh was picked at 6-5 with Chicago next at 5-2.

The A's also were the big favorites to take the A.L. pennant at 9-5 with the Yankees second at 3-1.

In the N.L., Pittsburgh was a 5-2 pick and Cincinnati was 3-1.

The odds by divisions:

National League

West — Cincinnati, even; Houston 2-1; Los Angeles 7-2; San Francisco 5-1; Atlanta 10-1; San Diego 60-1.

East — Pittsburgh 6-5; Chicago 5-2; New York 4-1; St. Louis 8-1; Philadelphia 40-1; Montreal 60-1.

American League

West — Oakland 3-5; Chicago 2-1; California 8-1; Minnesota 8-1; Kansas City 20-1; Texas 60-1.

East — New York 9-5; Boston 2-1; Detroit 7-2; Baltimore 7-2; Cleveland 30-1; Milwaukee 60-1.

Pennant odds:

National League — Pittsburgh 5-2; Cincinnati 3-1; Houston 9-2; Los Angeles 6-1; Chicago 6-1; New York 8-1; San Francisco 10-1; Atlanta 20-1; St. Louis 20-1; Philadelphia 150-1; Montreal 150-1; San Diego 150-1.

American League — Oakland 9-5; New York 3-1; Chicago -2; Boston 5-1; Detroit 6-11 Baltimore 6-1; California 20-1; Minnesota 20-1; Cleveland 60-1; Kansas City 150-1; Milwaukee, 150-1; Texas 150-1.

In the valley, four teams will meet today and tomorrow for the title — East Bakersfield, Tulare, San Joaquin Memorial of Fresno and Hoover of Fresno.

Memorial won the tournament last year and returns All-American center Cliff Pondexter, which accounts for that section's high seeding.

Basketball: Marin Tars Top Solano

SUISUN CITY — College of Marin's basketball team, already with the championship of the Camino Norte Conference locked snugly away, ended its regular season last night with a 79-56 victory over Solano College.

The Tars, who take on a team of CNC all-stars tomorrow night in Kentfield and then have a date in Ventura next week for the state championships, were led in the scoring department by Wil Garner, a forward who scored 18 points on nine shots from the field.

Marin coach John Panagakis went with his first unit for the opening 10 minutes of the game and the Tars ran off to a 23-12 lead. The last 10 minutes of the half, he went with his second unit and when the intermission horn sounded, the score was knotted at 30-all.

But then Marin came back, especially forward Joe Casteel who scored 13 of his 15 points in the second half, and before Solano could muster any kind of offense the game was out of reach.

The victory gave Marin a 13-1 final CNC mark and a 26-3 season record. For the sophomores on the team, their two-year record was 51-7.

Panagakis, who prides himself on control type play and good defense, was especially happy when his team ended up winning the conference defensive title, allowing an average of 57 points per game.

"This has really been a great year," said Panagakis.

Tomorrow night's game, starting at 8 o'clock, will be to help raise money to pay for the team's expenses to Ventura for the state championships, March 8-9-10. First opponent in the tourney will be Riverside City College.

Players Back 3-Year Pact

MIAMI (UPI) — Major league baseball players expressed general acceptance of a new three-year agreement between players representatives and club owners which provides for binding arbitration on salary disputes.

"We're very pleased with this agreement, especially the arbitration clause," said Chicago Cubs pitcher Milt Pappas. "It gives us a weapon we've never had before."

The contract was approved Wednesday by player representatives of 22 of the 24 major league baseball teams. It now goes to the members of the Players Association, who will vote before the current contract runs out March 31.

A key provision of the agreement states that any club or any player with two or more years of major league service may submit any salary dispute to binding arbitration.

Marvin Miller, chief negotiator for the players, said he expected no difficulty in getting the contract ratified. Miller briefed player representatives on the contract during a twohour session at the Miami Airport Inn a few blocks from Miami International Airport. Many of the player representatives had just arrived in Florida to attend spring training, which officially opens today.

Miller said that once the negotiations with the owners began to get rolling Feb. 17, things moved swiftly and ended on an "upbeat note," ending the

Yankees, A's Are Among Flag Picks

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Maybe the oddsmakers at Harrah's Tahoe Racebook know something most other observers don't — that the New York Yankees will rise once again as a baseball power.

In releasing the 1973 preseason odds Wednesday, the racebook made the Yankees 9-5 favorites to win the American League East this year ahead of the Boston Red Sox (2-1) and Detroit Tigers (7-2).

Making the Yankees, who haven't known baseball glory since the 1950s, favorites in their division was the only surprise as the Racebook picked the world champion Oakland A's to repeat in the A.L. West and the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates to win the two National League division titles as they did last year.

The A's were overwhelming 3-5 picks to take the A.L. West with the improved Chicago White Sox next at 2-1.

Cincinnati was picked in the N.L. West at even money with Houston next at 2-1 while in the N.L. East Pittsburgh was picked at 6-5 with Chicago next at 5-2.

The A's also were the big favorites to take the A.L. pennant at 9-5 with the Yankees second at 3-1.

In the N.L., Pittsburgh was a 5-2 pick and Cincinnati was 3-1.

The odds by divisions:

National League

West — Cincinnati, even; Houston 2-1; Los Angeles 7-2; San Francisco 5-1; Atlanta 10-1; San Diego 60-1.

East — Pittsburgh 6-5; Chicago 5-2; New York 4-1; St. Louis 8-1; Philadelphia 40-1; Montreal 60-1.

American League

West — Oakland 3-5; Chicago 2-1; California 8-1; Minnesota 8-1; Kansas City 20-1; Texas 60-1.

East — New York 9-5; Boston 2-1; Detroit 7-2; Baltimore 7-2; Cleveland 30-1; Milwaukee 60-1.

Pennant odds:

National League — Pittsburgh 5-2; Cincinnati 3-1; Houston 9-2; Los Angeles 6-1; Chicago 6-1; New York 8-1; San Francisco 10-1; Atlanta 20-1; St. Louis 20-1; Philadelphia 150-1; Montreal 150-1; San Diego 150-1.

American League — Oakland 9-5; New York 3-1; Chicago -2; Boston 5-1; Detroit 6-1l Baltimore 6-1; California 20-1; Minnesota 20-1; Cleveland 60-1; Kansas City 150-1; Milwaukee, 150-1; Texas 150-1.

PITCHERS WORK

Giants To Receive Haircuts, Says Fox

CASE GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — They won't be known as the hairy Giants this season.

Manager Charlie Fox, acting on orders from owner Horace Stoneham, Wednesday told the San Francisco Giants to return their faces to their natural state—no mustaches and goatees.

Among the goateed and mustachioed were pitcher Juan Marichal, outfielder Bobby Bonds, infielders Willie McCovey and Ed Goodson and rookies Ed Figueroa and Frank Ricelli, both aspiring pitchers.

Marichal and Sam McDowell tried their arms for the first time in spring practice and both responded well.

Marichal's first pitch of the new season was a breaking ball at which Bonds swung and missed. Still recovering from winter surgery for removal of a spinal disc, Marichal used his high leg kick, zinged across a few hummers and exited smiling.

"I feel good," he said.

McDowell, plagued by a sore shoulder most of last season, hurled about six minutes and got across some fastballs and curves. He also was pleased.

"The arm feels great," said McDowell. "I hadn't intended to risk throwing a fastball but I had to cut loose some time, so I cut loose. Not just 100 per cent . . . just about 75 per cent."

Meanwhile, veteran Giants' catcher Russ Gibson, 33, announced his retirement yesterday to pursue a career with the Bank of America in San Francisco. The 16-year veteran has spent the last three seasons with the Giants' organization.

Kent, Cummins Win Cage Games

Kent School defeated Reedland Woods, 38-17, and Neil Cummins decisioned Hall School, 24-22, yesterday in the first day of the three-day Redwood Invitational Basketball Tournament in Larkspur for eighth-grade schools in the Redwood attendance area.

Jim Connor scored 14 and Gary Zunino added 12 in pacing Kent's attack. Larry Linvill had 15 for Reedland. Brothers Eddie and Rich Ugarde scored 10 apiece for Neil Cummins, while Jim Alexander had seven for Hall.

Action today finds Kent playing Del Mar and Ross facing Neil Cummins at 4 p.m. in the school gym.

Nevers Has A Knee Operation

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — One of the greatest of all football players was recovering today from knee surgery made necessary by a grid injury.

He is Hall of Fame fullback Ernie Nevers, who starred at Stanford in the mid-20s and played pro ball for the next six years.

It was Nevers' first knee operation. He said he hurt it in a pro game in 1930, but was only really troubled by the injury in the past three years.

Barry, Warriors Need Pick-Me-Up

BOSTON (UPI) — Rick Barry and the Golden State Warriors need a pick-me-up.

Nursing a bad back, Barry, the Warriors top scorer, hit on just one-of-nine shots Wednesday night as Golden State fell 118-111 before the Boston Celtics for their second straight loss on the road.

Against Detroit the night before, Barry was 3-for-17. Against Boston, he also made all four of his free throws for six points before sitting out the second half with an aching back suffered in a fall last Friday at Los Angeles.

Don Chaney, switched from guard to forward, scored a career high 32 points, including 16-of-17 from the free-throw line, to pace the Celtics.

Boston led 54-51 at the half but pulled away in the third period by outscoring the Warriors 36-29 behind the hot shooting of Dave Cowens. Cowens scored 12 of his 21 points in the third period as the Celtics upped their lead to 90-80 at the end of the period.

Nate Thurmond paced the Warriors with 23 points.

No Bearded Giants Will Swing A Bat

I must say Charlie Fox' short speech to the Giants players yesterday was expected. "Gentlemen, the mustaches and goatees have just got to go."

Charlie is a baseball manager from the old school. Things like long hair and beards bother him, and they bother Giants' President Horace Stoneham even more. Because of this, don't expect any big trades between the A's and Giants.

YOU WOULD HAVE thought baseball learned its lesson at the last World Series when the mustachioed and hairy A's beat the clean-cut, tidy Cincinnati Reds. It was a victory for the long hairs. Or to put it another way, it showed that the presence of long hair and mustaches didn't make a player any less of a hitter nor did it cut down the speed of a pitcher's fast ball.

But the A's are the A's and the Giants are the Giants, one team from the new school and the other from the old. When you hear some of the younger players on the Giants team complain that Fox can't get through to them, you start to get the picture. From the way some of the players are talking, all is not a bed of roses with the Giants. But grumbling from players can be expected after a season such as last, when the team was wallowing near the cellar throughout the year.

EVERY TIME a long hair or mustache issue come up, it makes me think back a few years ago when there was such a flap in the Tamalpais High School District after Redwood High School students who ran on the school's cross country team refused to get their locks clipped as ordered by the athletic department.

The boys waged a battle of principle. When the battle involves money, such as the kind found in professional sports, there is usually no battle at all. When Fox made his little announcement yesterday, I suspect there was some quiet grumbling but when you next see the players they will have done as ordered. Principle is principle, but money is money.

Reg Carolan of Novato told me the same thing came up when he was playing tight end for the Kansas City Chiefs. Head coach Hank Stram was not going to have any Joe Namaths on his team. Stram ordered everybody to have their hair cut short and all players complied, said Carolan, one of the Chiefs who didn't have long hair even before Stram's edict.

SINCE THE TIME I wandered out to Candlestick Park the other day and watched some of the players going through informal battling practice I was curious to what decision Fox and Stoneham were going to make on the facial hair question. There was a lot of it growing, especially on the faces of sluggers Willie McCovey and Bobby Bonds. But now that the formal business of spring training has started in Casa Grande, Ariz., the fuzz will get the axe, or more hopefully, the razor blade.

I had visions of the new-look Giants, even a possible uniform change from the style which they have been wearing the past two decades, even going back to the New York days. But no, change is something the Giants' organization is going to leave up to the cross bay A's. For the Giants, change comes hard.

Drake '5' Vs. Castlemont In Tourney

Even though the Tournament of Champions hasn't started, Drake High School might be well advised to ask for a replay. Perhaps the drawing could be held again.

The Marin County Athletic League basketball champions have the opportunity, if that's the word, to play Castlemont High of Oakland in the first round of the tournament Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

The purple-and-white clad Knights, a perennial power in East Bay basketball, have just come off their first undefeated Oakland Athletic League season in history, and compiled a 22-1 overall record.

Good records are to be expected in the TOC, but Drake probably was hoping to draw a team built a little closer to the floor than Castlemont, which will have a front line of 6-foot-7, 6-6½ and 6-5. Drake will counter with 6-4, 6-0 and 5-11.

What's worse, the two biggest Knights are scoring demons. Jeff Randall, the 6-7 senior forward, scored 223 points in 10 OAL games and missed the league scoring record by a single point. He and 6-6½ senior center Reggie Green both are averaging better than 22.0 for all games.

The third player in Castlemont's front line, 6-5 senior forward Jimmie Turner, doesn't have the same gaudy statistics, but he's still taller than the most towering Pirate, 6-4 center John Channell.

The draw was held yesterday and was partially seeded, according to Tamalpais High principal Raymond J. Bell, the MCAL representative at the drawing. Catholic Athletic League champion Salesian, Alameda County Athletic League titleholder Berkeley, Castlemont and the Central Section champion were placed so they wouldn't face each other in the first round.

Thursday's schedule calls for Salesian to face Hayward Area Athletic League champion Arroyo of San Lorenzo at 4:30 p.m.; Berkeley against East Bay Athletic League winner Dublin at 6 p.m.; Castlemont vs. Drake at 7:30 and the Central Section champion against the Academic Athletic Association (San Francisco) winner at 9 p.m.

Drake will meet the Central-AAA winner at 9 p.m. Friday if the Pirates win Thursday; if not, they'll play at 7:30 Thursday against the Central-AAA loser.

Representatives in the Central Section and the AAA have not been determined yet. In San Francisco, the winner of today's Mission-Balboa game will play round-robin champion Wilson tomorrow for the berth. In the valley, four teams will meet today and tomorrow for the title — East Bakersfield, Tulare, San Joaquin Memorial of Fresno and Hoover of Fresno.

Memorial won the tournament last year and returns All-American center Cliff Pondexter, which accounts for that section's high seeding.

Basketball: Marin Tars Top Solano

SUISUN CITY — College of Marin's basketball team, already with the championship of the Camino Norte Conference locked snugly away, ended its regular season last night with a 79-56 victory over Solano College.

The Tars, who take on a team of CNC all-stars tomorrow night in Kentfield and then have a date in Ventura next week for the state championships, were led in the scoring department by Wil Garner, a forward who scored 18 points on nine shots from the field.

Marin coach John Panagakis went with his first unit for the opening 10 minutes of the game and the Tars ran off to a 23-12 lead. The last 10 minutes of the half, he went with his second unit and when the intermission horn sounded, the score was knotted at 30-all.

But then Marin came back, especially forward Joe Casteel who scored 13 of his 15 points in the second half, and before Solano could muster any kind of offense the game was out of reach.

The victory gave Marin a 13-1 final CNC mark and a 26-3 season record. For the sophomores on the team, their two-year record was 51-7.

Panagakis, who prides himself on control type play and good defense, was especially happy when his team ended up winning the conference defensive title, allowing an average of 57 points per game.

"This has really been a great year," said Panagakis.

Tomorrow night's game, starting at 8 o'clock, will be to help raise money to pay for the team's expenses to Ventura for the state championships, March 8-9-10. First opponent in the tourney will be Riverside City College.

GENERALLY

Players Back 3-Year Pact

MIAMI (UPI) — Major league baseball players expressed general acceptance of a new three-year agreement between players representatives and club owners which provides for binding arbitration on salary disputes.

"We're very pleased with this agreement, especially the arbitration clause," said Chicago Cubs pitcher Milt Pappas. "It gives us a weapon we've never had before."

The contract was approved Wednesday by player representatives of 22 of the 24 major league baseball teams. It now goes to the members of the Players Association, who will vote before the current contract runs out March 31.

A key provision of the agreement states that any club or any player with two or more years of major league service may submit any salary dispute to binding arbitration.

Marvin Miller, chief negotiator for the players, said he expected no difficulty in getting the contract ratified. Miller briefed player representatives on the contract during a two-hour session at the Miami Airport Inn a few blocks from Miami International Airport. Many of the player representatives had just arrived in Florida to attend spring training, which officially opens today.

Miller said that once the negotiations with the owners began to get rolling Feb. 17, things moved swiftly and ended on an "upbeat note," ending the

Yankees, A's Are Among Flag Picks

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — Maybe the oddsmakers at Harrah's Tahoe Racebook know something most other observers don't — that the New York Yankees will rise once again as a baseball power.

In releasing the 1973 preseason odds Wednesday, the racebook made the Yankees 9-5 favorites to win the American League East this year ahead of the Boston Red Sox (2-1) and Detroit Tigers (7-2).

Making the Yankees, who haven't known baseball glory since the 1950s, favorites in their division was the only surprise as the Racebook picked the world champion Oakland A's to repeat in the A.L. West and the Cincinnati Reds and Pittsburgh Pirates to win the two National League division titles as they did last year.

The A's were overwhelming 3-5 picks to take the A.L. West with the improved Chicago White Sox next at 2-1.

Cincinnati was picked in the N.L. West at even money with Houston next at 2-1 while in the N.L. East Pittsburgh was picked at 6-5 with Chicago next at 5-2.

The A's also were the big favorites to take the A.L. pennant at 9-5 with the Yankees second at 3-1.

In the N.L., Pittsburgh was a 5-2 pick and Cincinnati was 3-1.

The odds by divisions:

National League

West — Cincinnati, even; Houston 2-1; Los Angeles 7-2; San Francisco 5-1; Atlanta 10-1; San Diego 60-1.

East — Pittsburgh 6-5; Chicago 5-2; New York 4-1; St. Louis 8-1; Philadelphia 40-1; Montreal 60-1.

American League

West — Oakland 3-5; Chicago 2-1; California 8-1; Minnesota 8-1; Kansas City 20-1; Texas 60-1.

East — New York 9-5; Boston 2-1; Detroit 7-2; Baltimore 7-2; Cleveland 30-1; Milwaukee 60-1.

Pennant odds:

National League — Pittsburgh 5-2; Cincinnati 3-1; Houston 9-2; Los Angeles 6-1; Chicago 6-1; New York 8-1; San Francisco 10-1; Atlanta 20-1; St. Louis 20-1; Philadelphia 150-1; Montreal 150-1; San Diego 150-1.

American League — Oakland 9-5; New York 3-1; Chicago -2; Boston 5-1; Detroit 6-1l Baltimore 6-1; California 20-1; Minnesota 20-1; Cleveland 60-1; Kansas City 150-1; Milwaukee, 150-1; Texas 150-1.

FINAL SCORING

Lowey, Wright Finish One-Two

Terra Linda and San Marin high schools may have finished tied for last in the Marin County Athletic League basketball standings, but they boasted the top two scorers in the league.

Mark Lowey of Terra Linda, the leader most of the year, won the scoring title with a 20.3 average for 14 games, while Hoza Wright of San Marin finished second for the second straight year with an 18.7 mark, according to statistics compiled by the Independent-Journal.

Lowey became the first Trojan since Fred Smith in 1967 to capture the crown, and he may have regretted the fact that the season drew to a close Friday. The 6-foot-5 senior forward grew stronger as the year went along, scoring 32 points in his final game and topping the 20 mark seven times in his last nine outings.

John Channell of Drake scored 30 in his last game and finished third with a 16.9 average, while his teammate Chavez came in fifth at 14.6.

The No. 4 spot belongs to a teammate of Wright's, forward Fred Doar, who averaged 14.0 and led the league in free throws made with 78, a remarkable figure in the first year of the era of the common foul rule. Lowey led in field goals made with 112, three more than Wright.

League champion Drake High scored 85 and 83 points in its last two games to hike its season average over the 70 mark to 70.5. The Pirates outscored their opponents by an average of 14.7 a game.

The champions finished third in defense behind Marin Catholic's 48.8 and San Rafael's 55.1 by averaging 55.8.

Sixteen players who appeared in 12 or more games averaged better than 10 points per outing. Drake had three of them — Channell, Chavez and late-blooming forward Don Asay, who averaged 10.9. San Marin also had three double-figure scorers if you count John Tait, averaging 10.0 when injured after his 10th game.

Marin Tar Netters Shooting For Title

The College of Marin tennis team has one goal, two coaches and three Navy veterans.

Coach John Panagakis and his assistant Bill Thiercof are trying to lift an experienced team to the Camino Norte Conference championship. The squad, which is led by Mark Rodnick and Bill Kinser, also includes three Navy vets, namely number-three man Terry Timmons, Raye Raskin, and Bill Donnelly.

The team is sprinkled with an assortment of other top-quality netters. Thiercof, running the team while Panagakis directs the Tar basketball squad into the state tourney in Ventura March 8-10, believes the Tars have a good shot at unseating defending champion Canada College of Redwood City.

"We're going to be better this year," said Thiercof. We're fairly solid in the one-through-four positions, and we have a little more depth this year in the fifth and sixth positions."

Thiercof, who has been forced to hold practices in the gym due to rain, is very pleased with the team's overall attitude. "I play a lot of tennis with the kids, and they understand John is tied up. So, there is no resentment. They work hard. I don't get any of this 'Gee coach, do I have to practice today?' "

The 27-year-old Marin tennis pro is convinced the team is dedicated in its quest for the title. "They're willing to practice. They work out two and one-half hours a day during the week, and I ask them to practice eight hours on the weekend. I'm impressed with their attitude. They're not looking past anyone, but they are looking forward to facing Canada." The Tars, 1-0 in non-league play, open conference action Friday, 2:30 p.m., against visiting Santa Rosa.

When the Bear Cubs play in Kentfield Friday, they will be confronted with the stout playing of Rodnick, a freshman from Redwood, and Kinser, a sophomore from Marin Catholic who was San Diego State's sixth man before transferring to Marin this year. Kinser and Rodnick are battling for the number-one spot.

Number-three man is Timmons, a 26-year-old sophomore, whom Thiercof lauds as "the most improved player I've seen on the college level in a one-year period." Greg Kalemba, a freshman from Drake, is the fourth man. "It shows our strength when the number-one man from a high school team comes here and is rated fourth," Thiercof continues.

The fifth and sixth spots are being contested by Dave Murata, a freshman from Redwood, Dave Toole, a freshman from Tamalpais, and Raskin. Thiercof adds, "The three of them are pretty even, but Murata has the inside track for number five.

Player Of Year Award To Restani

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Kevin Restani of the University of San Francisco has been named Northern California Player of the Year by the area's cage scribes.

He was joined on the area's all-star team announced Wednesday by centers Mike Stewart of Santa Clara and Rich Kelley of Stanford and forwards Jim McCargo of Pacific and Phil Smith of San Francisco.

Restani has averaged 17.9 points and 13 rebounds per contest.

Making up the second team were John Coughran of California, Fred Lavaroni of Santa Clara, Johnny Skinner of San Jose State, Rickie Hawthorne of California and John Errecart of Pacific.

Football

SEATTLE — Isaiah L. (Ike) Keiffer, a 1963 graduate of Colorado State College, was named Wednesday to the University of Washington Football staff as an assistant coaching the offensive line. Keiffer, 32, has been head coach at Fremont High School in Oakland.

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Bengals linebacker Al Beauchamp was found guilty Wednesday of assault and battery on two truck drivers here last Dec. 11.

Municipal Judge Thomas Heeking set March 21 for sentencing.

Tennis

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Arthur Ashe, Richmond, Va., yesterday eliminated Roscoe Tanner. Lookout Mountain, Tenn., 7-6, 6-2 and advanced to the quarter-finals of the $50,000 Kemper Invitational Tennis Tourney.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Playing in the first professional match of her career, Chris Evert, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., yesterday defeated Michele Gurdal, Belgium, 6-1, 6-2 and advanced to the second round of the S&H Green Stamps Tennis Classic.

CLEVELAND — Former Cleveland Indians and Oakland A's pitcher Jim (Mudcat) Grant has been hired as part of the television broadcasting team that will air 33 Indians games this season.

Grant will take the place of color man Rocky Colavito, former Cleveland slugger, who is now a coach with the Indians.

WJW television general manager Chick Bergeson described Grant as "a tremendously knowledgeable baseball man whose insight as a former player is sure to add significantly to our coverage of the games."

Bowling

MILWAUKEE — Jim Stefanich, Joliet, Ill., yesterday rolled a 300 game and took a 166-pin lead in the $80,00 Miller Open Bowling Tournament.

Mrs. Simmons' Services Today

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Private funeral services will be held today for Anne Marie Simmons, wife of San Francisco Giants-49ers broadcaster Lon Simmons.

Mrs. Simmons died Tuesday after a long illness.

Survivors also include two children, Cynthia, 24, and Robin, 22.

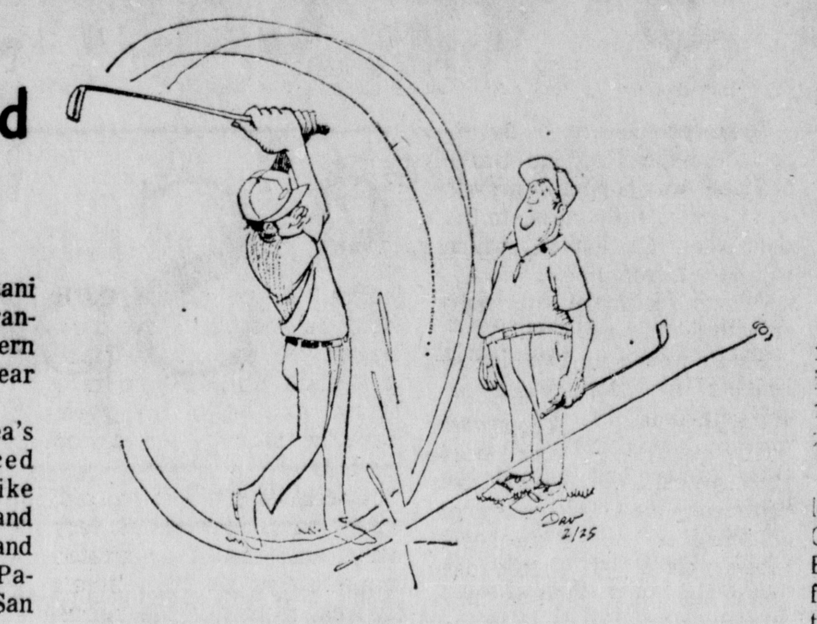
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



That Grip Is Important

By LEE TREVINO

The first time Arnold Palmer grabbed hold of a club, his dad showed him the right way. He said, "Don't change it," and the only grip Arnie has changed is the way he holds his money. That takes both hands, too.

It's easy to take your hands for granted, like the ABCs. But let your pro check your grip first if your games goes sour. The grip is the relay point btween a man's talent and his club.

The index knuckle of each hand is the only one visible when you're gripping the club right. Showing more knuckles means the grip is either too strong or too weak, not a sound union of hands.

The ideal is to sock that baby with both hands. Keep those two back fingers of the left hand firm, and you can kick that right hand through the hitting area hard.

Remember Arnie's bankroll: It takes two hands.

Canadian Gal Nearing Skate Title

This was the consensus after the 20-year-old Canadian champion won the compulsory short free skating program Wednesday while her main rival, American Janet Lynn, fell twice and was considered out.

"Only a miracle or a misfortune could prevent Karen from taking the title," said United States team manager Franklin Nelson. "But we certainly don't wish the same thing happen to her as to Janet."

Miss Magnussen, the 1972 Olympic and world runner-up, also won the school figures and appeared safely on the way for the first non-European women's world title win since Peggy Fleming took it for the United States in 1968.

Meanwhile, Juli McKinstry of Colorado Springs, Colo, formerly of San Rafael, moved up from 12th position to 10th after the second day of competition.

Small gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded for the first time to the winners of the school figures and the combined free skating in each event according to the new rules of the International Skating Union (ISU). But the world titles will go — as usual — only to the overall winners. The Russian pair of Irina Rodnina and Alexander Zaitsev won the ninth straight pair world title for the Soviet Union Wednesday, the first of their new combination.

PREP NOTES

Facts And Stats For End Of Cage League Season

By LEW CODDINGTON

An odd basketball season has reached its end, so here are a few odds and ends which somehow managed to avoid print throughout the year.

HE PLAYS TALL — The leading rebounder for Marin Catholic this year was a guard, Ben Partee, whose 6-foot-1 frame has no business under the boards, but who jumped and battled for 254 rebounds in the 27-game schedule, better than nine a game on a team which didn't shoot much.

BAD IDEA — Novato High somehow ended up with seven consecutive games on the road, which is at once a mystery and a shame. The Hornets lost six of them to fall from contention after leading the league at 4-1. The first three of the losses were by one, four and five points, and apparently took the heart out of the Hornets. That kind of schedule should never have been written.

ADVANTAGE? — On the other hand, Terra Linda might have survived all those away games. The Trojans were 4-3 on the road and only 1-6 at home, so don't talk to coach Bob Corley about the home-court advantage.

CONTRAST — Two basketball games played Friday night were five miles apart in space and 50 years apart in concept. While Redwood piled up a 28-19 first-quarter lead on Drake in Larkspur, Marin Catholic crept to a 4-2 opening-period advantage at San Rafael.

One of the officials sprinting up and down the floor at Redwood was Gary Hughes, former Marin Catholic athletic director, who must have been wishing he could watching his old school play.

PLAYOFF — Tamalpais coach Bernie Schneider has long advocated a post-season playoff to determine the Tournament of Champions representative, on the theory that since the tournament is in March, why not have the league represented by the team playing the best ball in March? Besides, a playoff would keep interest alive in the lower reaches of the standings, and would make sure the champion stays in peak form.

Schneider advocated this last year, even when it looked like he was cutting his own throat, as his championship team would have faced a playoff without injured star Wil Garner. This year, Schneider has a better reason for holding to his position — the Indians, 2-7 at one point, won four of their last five.

STREAKS — It wasn't the only streak in the league. Drake stumbled along at 3-2, then won nine in a row. Marin Catholic struggled to 1-3, won five straight, then lost five straight. San Marin lost five in a row after winning three straight. San Rafael won two, lost six, then won four. Consistency, thou art a jewel.

AGREEMENT — Coaches always say at the start of a season that the league will be balanced and their team will be improved. This year, it was true. When the worst record in the league is 5-9, that's improvement, and when one of the teams with that mark holds a victory over the champion, that's balance.

BEST AND WORST — Marin Catholic was victimized for the largest point total of any team in the league this year, 87 by Redwood on Feb. 13, but one swallow doesn't make a choke, and the Wildcats had the best defensive showing as well, holding Novato to 27.

The three worst beatings were administered, fittingly, by champion Drake — over San Marin, 78-44, over Novato, 72-39, and over Tamalpais, 86-55.

FINAL SCORING

Lowey, Wright Finish One-Two

Terra Linda and San Marin high schools may have finished tied for last in the Marin County Athletic League basketball standings, but they boasted the top two scorers in the league.

Mark Lowey of Terra Linda, the leader most of the year, won the scoring title with a 20.3 average for 14 games, while Hoza Wright of San Marin finished second for the second straight year with an 18.7 mark, according to statistics compiled by the Independent-Journal.

Lowey became the first Trojan since Fred Smith in 1967 to capture the crown, and he may have regretted the fact that the season drew to a close Friday. The 6-foot-5 senior forward grew stronger as the year went along, scoring 32 points in his final game and topping the 20 mark seven times in his last nine outings.

John Channell of Drake scored 30 in his last game and finished third with a 16.9 average, while his teammate Chavez came in fifth at 14.6.

The No. 4 spot belongs to a teammate of Wright's, forward Fred Doar, who averaged 14.0 and led the league in free throws made with 78, a remarkable figure in the first year of the era of the common foul rule. Lowey led in field goals made with 112, three more than Wright.

League champion Drake High scored 85 and 83 points in its last two games to hike its season average over the 70 mark to 70.5. The Pirates outscored their opponents by an average of 14.7 a game.

The champions finished third in defense behind Marin Catholic's 48.8 and San Rafael's 55.1 by averaging 55.8.

Sixteen players who appeared in 12 or more games averaged better than 10 points per outing. Drake had three of them — Channell, Chavez and late-blooming forward Don Asay, who averaged 10.9. San Marin also had three double-figure scorers if you count John Tait, averaging 10.0 when injured after his 10th game.

Marin Tar Netters Shooting For Title

The College of Marin tennis team has one goal, two coaches and three Navy veterans.

Coach John Panagakis and his assistant Bill Thiercof are trying to lift an experienced team to the Camino Norte Conference championship. The squad, which is led by Mark Rodnick and Bill Kinser, also includes three Navy vets, namely number-three man Terry Timmons, Raye Raskin, and Bill Donnelly.

The team is sprinkled with an assortment of other top-quality netters. Thiercof, running the team while Panagakis directs the Tar basketball squad into the state tourney in Ventura March 8-10, believes the Tars have a good shot at unseating defending champion Canada College of Redwood City.

"We're going to be better this year," said Thiercof. We're fairly solid in the one-through-four positions, and we have a little more depth this year in the fifth and sixth positions."

Thiercof, who has been forced to hold practices in the gym due to rain, is very pleased with the team's overall attitude. "I play a lot of tennis with the kids, and they understand John is tied up. So, there is no resentment. They work hard. I don't get any of this 'Gee coach, do I have to practice today?' "

The 27-year-old Marin tennis pro is convinced the team is dedicated in its quest for the title. "They're willing to practice. They work out two and one-half hours a day during the week, and I ask them to practice eight hours on the weekend. I'm impressed with their attitude. They're not looking past anyone, but they are looking forward to facing Canada." The Tars, 1-0 in non-league play, open conference action Friday, 2:30 p.m., against visiting Santa Rosa.

When the Bear Cubs play in Kentfield Friday, they will be confronted with the stout playing of Rodnick, a freshman from Redwood, and Kinser, a sophomore from Marin Catholic who was San Diego State's sixth man before transferring to Marin this year. Kinser and Rodnick are battling for the number-one spot.

Number-three man is Timmons, a 26-year-old sophomore, whom Thiercof lauds as "the most improved player I've seen on the college level in a one-year period." Greg Kalemba, a freshman from Drake, is the fourth man. "It shows our strength when the number-one man from a high school team comes here and is rated fourth," Thiercof continues.

The fifth and sixth spots are being contested by Dave Murata, a freshman from Redwood, Dave Toole, a freshman from Tamalpais, and Raskin. Thiercof adds, "The three of them are pretty even, but Murata has the inside track for number five.

Player Of Year Award To Restani

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Kevin Restani of the University of San Francisco has been named Northern California Player of the Year by the area's cage scribes.

He was joined on the area's all-star team announced Wednesday by centers Mike Stewart of Santa Clara and Rich Kelley of Stanford and forwards Jim McCargo of Pacific and Phil Smith of San Francisco.

Restani has averaged 17.9 points and 13 rebounds per contest.

Making up the second team were John Coughran of California, Fred Lavaroni of Santa Clara, Johnny Skinner of San Jose State, Rickie Hawthorne of California and John Errecart of Pacific.

Football

SEATTLE — Isaiah L. (Ike) Keiffer, a 1963 graduate of Colorado State College, was named Wednesday to the University of Washington Football staff as an assistant coaching the offensive line. Keiffer, 32, has been head coach at Fremont High School in Oakland.

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Bengals linebacker Al Beauchamp was found guilty Wednesday of assault and battery on two truck drivers here last Dec. 11.

Municipal Judge Thomas Heeking set March 21 for sentencing.

Tennis

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Arthur Ashe, Richmond, Va., yesterday eliminated Roscoe Tanner. Lookout Mountain, Tenn., 7-6, 6-2 and advanced to the quarter-finals of the $50,000 Kemper Invitational Tennis Tourney.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Playing in the first professional match of her career, Chris Evert, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., yesterday defeated Michele Gurdal, Belgium, 6-1, 6-2 and advanced to the second round of the S&H Green Stamps Tennis Classic.

CLEVELAND — Former Cleveland Indians and Oakland A's pitcher Jim (Mudcat) Grant has been hired as part of the television broadcasting team that will air 33 Indians games this season.

Grant will take the place of color man Rocky Colavito, former Cleveland slugger, who is now a coach with the Indians.

WJW television general manager Chick Bergeson described Grant as "a tremendously knowledgeable baseball man whose insight as a former player is sure to add significantly to our coverage of the games."

Bowling

MILWAUKEE — Jim Stefanich, Joliet, Ill., yesterday rolled a 300 game and took a 166-pin lead in the $80,00 Miller Open Bowling Tournament.

Mrs. Simmons' Services Today

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Private funeral services will be held today for Anne Marie Simmons, wife of San Francisco Giants-49ers broadcaster Lon Simmons.

Mrs. Simmons died Tuesday after a long illness.

Survivors also include two children, Cynthia, 24, and Robin, 22.

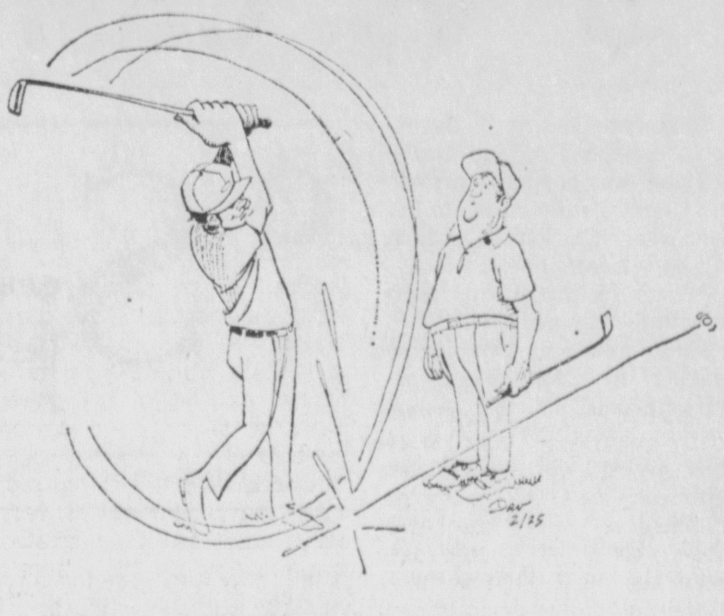
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



That Grip Is Important

By LEE TREVINO

The first time Arnold Palmer grabbed hold of a club, his dad showed him the right way. He said, "Don't change it," and the only grip Arnie has changed is the way he holds his money. That takes both hands, too.

It's easy to take your hands for granted, like the ABCs. But let your pro check your grip first if your games goes sour. The grip is the relay point btween a man's talent and his club.

The index knuckle of each hand is the only one visible when you're gripping the club right. Showing more knuckles means the grip is either too strong or too weak, not a sound union of hands.

The ideal is to sock that baby with both hands. Keep those two back fingers of the left hand firm, and you can kick that right hand through the hitting area hard.

Remember Arnie's bankroll: It takes two hands.

Canadian Gal Nearing Skate Title

This was the consensus after the 20-year-old Canadian champion won the compulsory short free skating program Wednesday while her main rival, American Janet Lynn, fell twice and was considered out.

"Only a miracle or a misfortune could prevent Karen from taking the title," said United States team manager Franklin Nelson. "But we certainly don't wish the same thing happen to her as to Janet."

Miss Magnussen, the 1972 Olympic and world runner-up, also won the school figures and appeared safely on the way for the first non-European women's world title win since Peggy Fleming took it for the United States in 1968.

Meanwhile, Juli McKinstry of Colorado Springs, Colo, formerly of San Rafael, moved up from 12th position to 10th after the second day of competition.

Small gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded for the first time to the winners of the school figures and the combined free skating in each event according to the new rules of the International Skating Union (ISU). But the world titles will go — as usual — only to the overall winners. The Russian pair of Irina Rodnina and Alexander Zaitsev won the ninth straight pair world title for the Soviet Union Wednesday, the first of their new combination.

PREP NOTES

Facts And Stats For End Of Cage League Season

By LEW CODDINGTON

An odd basketball season has reached its end, so here are a few odds and ends which somehow managed to avoid print throughout the year.

HE PLAYS TALL — The leading rebounder for Marin Catholic this year was a guard, Ben Partee, whose 6-foot-1 frame has no business under the boards, but who jumped and battled for 254 rebounds in the 27-game schedule, better than nine a game on a team which didn't shoot much.

BAD IDEA — Novato High somehow ended up with seven consecutive games on the road, which is at once a mystery and a shame. The Hornets lost six of them to fall from contention after leading the league at 4-1. The first three of the losses were by one, four and five points, and apparently took the heart out of the Hornets. That kind of schedule should never have been written.

ADVANTAGE? — On the other hand, Terra Linda might have survived all those away games. The Trojans were 4-3 on the road and only 1-6 at home, so don't talk to coach Bob Corley about the home-court advantage.

CONTRAST — Two basketball games played Friday night were five miles apart in space and 50 years apart in concept. While Redwood piled up a 28-19 first-quarter lead on Drake in Larkspur, Marin Catholic crept to a 4-2 opening-period advantage at San Rafael.

One of the officials sprinting up and down the floor at Redwood was Gary Hughes, former Marin Catholic athletic director, who must have been wishing he could watching his old school play.

PLAYOFF — Tamalpais coach Bernie Schneider has long advocated a post-season playoff to determine the Tournament of Champions representative, on the theory that since the tournament is in March, why not have the league represented by the team playing the best ball in March? Besides, a playoff would keep interest alive in the lower reaches of the standings, and would make sure the champion stays in peak form.

Schneider advocated this last year, even when it looked like he was cutting his own throat, as his championship team would have faced a playoff without injured star Wil Garner. This year, Schneider has a better reason for holding to his position — the Indians, 2-7 at one point, won four of their last five.

STREAKS — It wasn't the only streak in the league. Drake stumbled along at 3-2, then won nine in a row. Marin Catholic struggled to 1-3, won five straight, then lost five straight. San Marin lost five in a row after winning three straight. San Rafael won two, lost six, then won four. Consistency, thou art a jewel.

AGREEMENT — Coaches always say at the start of a season that the league will be balanced and their team will be improved. This year, it was true. When the worst record in the league is 5-9, that's improvement, and when one of the teams with that mark holds a victory over the champion, that's balance.

BEST AND WORST — Marin Catholic was victimized for the largest point total of any team in the league this year, 87 by Redwood on Feb. 13, but one swallow doesn't make a choke, and the Wildcats had the best defensive showing as well, holding Novato to 27.

The three worst beatings were administered, fittingly, by champion Drake — over San Marin, 78-44, over Novato, 72-39, and over Tamalpais, 86-55.

Kinser and Rodnick are battling for the number-one spot.

Number-three man is Timmons, a 26-year-old sophomore, whom Thiercof lauds as "the most improved player I've seen on the college level in a one-year period." Greg Kalemba, a freshman from Drake, is the fourth man. "It shows our strength when the number-one man from a high school team comes here and is rated fourth," Thiercof continues.

The fifth and sixth spots are being contested by Dave Murata, a freshman from Redwood, Dave Toole, a freshman from Tamalpais, and Raskin. Thiercof adds, "The three of them are pretty even, but Murata has the inside track for number five.

Player Of Year Award To Restani

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — Kevin Restani of the University of San Francisco has been named Northern California Player of the Year by the area's cage scribes.

He was joined on the area's all-star team announced Wednesday by centers Mike Stewart of Santa Clara and Rich Kelley of Stanford and forwards Jim McCargo of Pacific and Phil Smith of San Francisco.

Restani has averaged 17.9 points and 13 rebounds per contest.

Making up the second team were John Coughran of California, Fred Lavaroni of Santa Clara, Johnny Skinner of San Jose State, Rickie Hawthorne of California and John Errecart of Pacific.

Football

SEATTLE — Isaiah L. (Ike) Keiffer, a 1963 graduate of Colorado State College, was named Wednesday to the University of Washington Football staff as an assistant coaching the offensive line. Keiffer, 32, has been head coach at Fremont High School in Oakland.

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati Bengals linebacker Al Beauchamp was found guilty Wednesday of assault and battery on two truck drivers here last Dec. 11.

Municipal Judge Thomas Heeking set March 21 for sentencing.

Tennis

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Arthur Ashe, Richmond, Va., yesterday eliminated Roscoe Tanner. Lookout Mountain, Tenn., 7-6, 6-2 and advanced to the quarter-finals of the $50,000 Kemper Invitational Tennis Tourney.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Playing in the first professional match of her career, Chris Evert, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., yesterday defeated Michele Gurdal, Belgium, 6-1, 6-2 and advanced to the second round of the S&H Green Stamps Tennis Classic.

CLEVELAND — Former Cleveland Indians and Oakland A's pitcher Jim (Mudcat) Grant has been hired as part of the television broadcasting team that will air 33 Indians games this season.

Grant will take the place of color man Rocky Colavito, former Cleveland slugger, who is now a coach with the Indians.

WJW television general manager Chick Bergeson described Grant as "a tremendously knowledgeable baseball man whose insight as a former player is sure to add significantly to our coverage of the games."

Bowling

MILWAUKEE — Jim Stefanich, Joliet, Ill., yesterday rolled a 300 game and took a 166-pin lead in the $80,00 Miller Open Bowling Tournament.

Mrs. Simmons' Services Today

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Private funeral services will be held today for Anne Marie Simmons, wife of San Francisco Giants-49ers broadcaster Lon Simmons.

Mrs. Simmons died Tuesday after a long illness.

Survivors also include two children, Cynthia, 24, and Robin, 22.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF

That Grip Is Important

By LEE TREVINO

The first time Arnold Palmer grabbed hold of a club, his dad showed him the right way. He said, "Don't change it," and the only grip Arnie has changed is the way he holds his money. That takes both hands, too.

It's easy to take your hands for granted, like the ABCs. But let your pro check your grip first if your games goes sour. The grip is the relay point btween a man's talent and his club.

The index knuckle of each hand is the only one visible when you're gripping the club right. Showing more knuckles means the grip is either too strong or too weak, not a sound union of hands.

The ideal is to sock that baby with both hands. Keep those two back fingers of the left hand firm, and you can kick that right hand through the hitting area hard.

Remember Arnie's bankroll: It takes two hands.

Canadian Gal Nearing Skate Title

This was the consensus after the 20-year-old Canadian champion won the compulsory short free skating program Wednesday while her main rival, American Janet Lynn, fell twice and was considered out.

"Only a miracle or a misfortune could prevent Karen from taking the title," said United States team manager Franklin Nelson. "But we certainly don't wish the same thing happen to her as to Janet."

Miss Magnussen, the 1972 Olympic and world runner-up, also won the school figures and appeared safely on the way for the first non-European women's world title win since Peggy Fleming took it for the United States in 1968.

Meanwhile, Juli McKinstry of Colorado Springs, Colo, formerly of San Rafael, moved up from 12th position to 10th after the second day of competition.

Small gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded for the first time to the winners of the school figures and the combined free skating in each event according to the new rules of the International Skating Union (ISU). But the world titles will go — as usual — only to the overall winners. The Russian pair of Irina Rodnina and Alexander Zaitsev won the ninth straight pair world title for the Soviet Union Wednesday, the first of their new combination.

Facts And Stats For End Of Cage League Season

By LEW CODDINGTON

An odd basketball season has reached its end, so here are a few odds and ends which somehow managed to avoid print throughout the year.

HE PLAYS TALL — The leading rebounder for Marin Catholic this year was a guard, Ben Partee, whose 6-foot-1 frame has no business under the boards, but who jumped and battled for 254 rebounds in the 27-game schedule, better than nine a game on a team which didn't shoot much.

BAD IDEA — Novato High somehow ended up with seven consecutive games on the road, which is at once a mystery and a shame. The Hornets lost six of them to fall from contention after leading the league at 4-1. The first three of the losses were by one, four and five points, and apparently took the heart out of the Hornets. That kind of schedule should never have been written.

ADVANTAGE? — On the other hand, Terra Linda might have survived all those away games. The Trojans were 4-3 on the road and only 1-6 at home, so don't talk to coach Bob Corley about the home-court advantage.

CONTRAST — Two basketball games played Friday night were five miles apart in space and 50 years apart in concept. While Redwood piled up a 28-19 first-quarter lead on Drake in Larkspur, Marin Catholic crept to a 4-2 opening-period advantage at San Rafael.

One of the officials sprinting up and down the floor at Redwood was Gary Hughes, former Marin Catholic athletic director, who must have been wishing he could watching his old school play.

PLAYOFF — Tamalpais coach Bernie Schneider has long advocated a post-season playoff to determine the Tournament of Champions representative, on the theory that since the tournament is in March, why not have the league represented by the team playing the best ball in March? Besides, a playoff would keep interest alive in the lower reaches of the standings, and would make sure the champion stays in peak form.

Schneider advocated this last year, even when it looked like he was cutting his own throat, as his championship team would have faced a playoff without injured star Wil Garner. This year, Schneider has a better reason for holding to his position — the Indians, 2-7 at one point, won four of their last five.

STREAKS — It wasn't the only streak in the league. Drake stumbled along at 3-2, then won nine in a row. Marin Catholic struggled to 1-3, won five straight, then lost five straight. San Marin lost five in a row after winning three straight. San Rafael won two, lost six, then won four. Consistency, thou art a jewel.

AGREEMENT — Coaches always say at the start of a season that the league will be balanced and their team will be improved. This year, it was true. When the worst record in the league is 5-9, that's improvement, and when one of the teams with that mark holds a victory over the champion, that's balance.

BEST AND WORST — Marin Catholic was victimized for the largest point total of any team in the league this year, 87 by Redwood on Feb. 13, but one swallow doesn't make a choke, and the Wildcats had the best defensive showing as well, holding Novato to 27.

The three worst beatings were administered, fittingly, by champion Drake — over San Marin, 78-44, over Novato, 72-39, and over Tamalpais, 86-55.

Bradley Is Not A Happy Giant

CASA GRANDE — Tom Bradley, the 25-year-old, 6-foot-3 righthander acquired from the White Sox in a winter trade for Ken Henderson and Steve Stone, is not a happy Giant.

In fact, Bradley is downright unhappy about the contract offered him by Jerry Donovan, Horace Stoneham's contract negotiator.

"We are quite far apart," said Donovan who has been conducting negotiations with Bradley by long distance telephone. "Bradley is still in Chicago."

Isn't it customary for a club that seeks a player in a trade to offer him a substantial raise?

"Yes," said Donovan, "that's true and we did offer Bradley a good raise but he wasn't satisfied with it."

Thus, as the Giants assembled this week for their 1973 spring training encampment, Bradley was missing.

So, too, were Tito Fuentes, Jerry Johnson and Don Carrithers who also would like their 1973 contracts sweetened.

Alan Gallagher was the first Giant in uniform Monday when Don McMahon, the pitching coach, directed a limited workout for Gallagher, Jim Howarth, Jim Willoughby and Jeff Mason. From that exclusive group of four players, the roster jumped to 22 within 24 hours and Charlie Fox began acting like a manager at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

By the end of the week Fox expected 34 of his 38 men on the spring roster to be in camp. He said he would like to have Bradley, Fuentes, Johnson and Carrithers also on hand but they will not be permitted to suit up until they have reached an accord with Donovan.

Donovan declined to disclose what Bradley is seeking and what he has been offered. He similarly refused to discuss the stalemate in salary talks with Fuentes, Johnson and Carrithers.

Fuentes is believed to be seeking a $7,500 raise from $37,500 to $45,000. Johnson and Carrithers are trying to forestall salary slashes following disappointing 1972 records. After three quick saves in relief assignments last season, Johnson encountered control problems. It wasn't until after the All-Star break that Johnson began to look like the bullpen ace he was in 1971. Johnson's 8-6 won-lost record last year included a whopping 4.44 ERA.

Carrithers felt a trifle frustrated following his first full year in the majors last season. His final won-lost record was 4-8 with a fat 5.80 ERA. He alternately was brilliant and depressingly ineffective. After a tidy win over the Padres in his opening assignment on April 18, Carrithers was bombed into three straight defeats and banished to the bullpen.

On June 16 Carrithers finally was given another start and he spun a nifty seven-hitter in beating the Cardinals, 6-1. Then he was bombed into three more defeats and back to the bullpen he went. When he got another starting assignment on July 31 against Cincinnati he made the most of it. He stopped the pennant-bound Reds, 7-2, on a seven hitter. But then he got shellacked in two following relief roles.

Red Heads Top San Marin Five

The Red Heads were led by Jolene Ammons who scored 20 points, while San Marin basketball coach Andy Frauenhofer tallied 14 for the losers before 800 fans.

In the girls' preliminary game, the San Marin senior class defeated the juniors, 32-24.

BASEBALL

threat of a strike that would have delayed opening of spring training camps.

The new agreement does not include any settlement of the reserve clause issue, although it outlines the differences and opinions on the two sides.

Other clauses in the contract include:

—Upped minimum salary from $13,000 to $15,000 in 1973 and 1974 and $16,000 in 1975.

—Increased minimum world series winning shares to $20,000 from $15,000 per player.

—A provision that a 10-year major league veteran who spent the last five years with the same team cannot be traded or sold without his consent, and a player with five or more years in the big leagues could not be sent to aminor league team without his consent.

FIGHT

ing a vicious right uppercut to the point of his chin.

A 2 ½-1 favorite, Napoles didn't lose a round, although the second was even. But he did bleed from a lacerated right eye from the second round on.

Napoles' cut man, Angelo undee, who also trains Muhammad Ali, said: "At no time were we concerned. The cut was superficial. We told Jose just to pick his spots and counter."

Napoles appeared to have Lopez, of Los Angeles, on the verge of a knockout in the fifth round, but his opponent seemed strong in the sixth, although Napoles won the round.

However, in the seventh, Napoles hurt Lopez with two strong rights to the head before finishing him with the right uppercut.

Rec Cage Results

Manzanita edged the Centaurs, 56-52, while BVCC trimmed the Sharks, 45-37, in San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult basketball league action last night.

THE SKI SCENE

Scribe Passes On Some Safety Tips

By CHARLIE COANE

Out of the Jackson Hole Ski School in Wyoming comes some skiing safety tips that I think are worth discussion.

"Check your ski equipment daily, particularly your release bindings. If in doubt about their efficiency (especially in icy conditions), have them checked at the ski shop." You should make sure the moving parts move (spraying on a lubricant will help), and check the screws every so often to see if they're tight.

"Always wear safety straps to prevent runaway skis." This is of particular importance on steep slopes and deep powder.

"Note trail signs closely. Never ski beyond your ability." Some areas will not have trail signs. So grab a trail map before you jump in a chairlift or ask someone if you're unsure.

"Never ski trails marked closed." Simple enough. Those trails are not patrolled. If you're injured, you've got a problem.

"Never ski alone on seldom skied trails." If you're injured, you might have a problem.

"When overtaking another skier, call out 'On your left' or 'On your right.' " This is to let the skier in front of you know you're about to pass so that he or she doesn't make a sudden move and cut you off. Remember, the uphill or behind skier should try to avoid the downhill or in front skier — not vice versa.

"Rest at the first signs of fatigue." If you're tired, that's the time you might get hurt. Maybe you can't quite make that quick turn or stop in a hurry. As the saying goes, leave the last run of the day on the hill.

"Check for frostbite on cold, windy days. Patches of very white skin should be treated immediately." Go to the area's first aid room or ask a patrolman what to do.

"Follow the operator's instructions when using lifts." This is particularly important for beginners. When I first went to a ski area, I thought that the chairs would stop for each pair of skiers. They didn't!

"Report any accidents to a lift operator or any patrolman that you see." In emergencies help information can be relayed from person to person up the chairlift.

Free Throw Champs

Sacramento, Sonoma '5' Tomorrow

Already assured of a tie for its first Far Western Conference basketball championship, Sonoma State College can win the title outright with a victory over visiting Sacramento State College tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Even if the Cossacks (9-2) stumble against Sacramento, they can still win the crown alone if Chico State College (7-3) loses to either Hayward or San Francisco State College this weekend.

The winner of the title race will represent the FWC at the National Collegiate Athletic Association small school Western Regionals March 9 and 10.

Besides wrapping up the undisputed championship, the Cossacks will be hoping to extend their home record to a perfect 10-0 and revenge an early season defeat with a win over Sacramento.

The Hornets, 5-5 in league, beat both University of California, Davis and Chico last weekend and dealt Sonoma its first league loss, 74-68.

Sacramento, which was a pre-season favorite for the league title, is not a big team, with center Bruce Green standing 6-feet-6; but the Hornets have some outstanding shooters in Don Krueger and Rick Diregolo.

Saturday at 8 p.m., the Cossacks conclude their regular season with a non-league game against visiting Stanislaus State College. Sonoma beat the Warriors earlier this year, 81-75.

After three quick saves in relief assignments last season, Johnson encountered control problems. It wasn't until after the All-Star break that Johnson began to look like the bullpen ace he was in 1971. Johnson's 8-6 won-lost record last year included a whopping 4.44 ERA.

Carrithers felt a trifle frustrated following his first full year in the majors last season. His final won-lost record was 4-8 with a fat 5.80 ERA. He alternately was brilliant and depressingly ineffective. After a tidy win over the Padres in his opening assignment on April 18, Carrithers was bombed into three straight defeats and banished to the bullpen.

On June 16 Carrithers finally was given another start and he spun a nifty seven-hitter in beating the Cardinals, 6-1. Then he was bombed into three more defeats and back to the bullpen he went. When he got another starting assignment on July 31 against Cincinnati he made the most of it. He stopped the pennant-bound Reds, 7-2, on a seven hitter. But then he got shellacked in two following relief roles.

Red Heads Top San Marin Five

The Red Heads were led by Jolene Ammons who scored 20 points, while San Marin basketball coach Andy Frauenhofer tallied 14 for the losers before 800 fans.

In the girls' preliminary game, the San Marin senior class defeated the juniors, 32-24.

The new agreement does not include any settlement of the reserve clause issue, although it outlines;the differences and opinions on the two sides.

Other clauses in the contract include:

—Upped minimum salary from $13,000 to $15,000 in 1973 and 1974 and $16,000 in 1975.

—Increased minimum world series winning shares to $20,000 from $15,000 per player.

—A provision that a 10-year major league veteran who spent the last five years with the same team cannot be traded or sold without his consent, and a player with five or more years in the big leagues could not be sent to aminor league team without his consent.

—A ban on twi-night doubleheaders on "getaway" days.

A 2 ½-1 favorite, Napoles didn't lose a round, although the second was even. But he did bleed from a lacerated right eye from the second round on.

Napoles' cut man, Angelo undee, who also trains Muhammad Ali, said: "At no time were we concerned. The cut was superficial. We told Jose just to pick his spots and counter."

Napoles appeared to have Lopez, of Los Angeles, on the verge of a knockout in the fifth round, but his opponent seemed strong in the sixth, although Napoles won the round.

However, in the seventh, Napoles hurt Lopez with two strong rights to the head before finishing him with the right uppercut.

Scribe Passes On Some Safety Tips

By CHARLIE COANE

Out of the Jackson Hole Ski School in Wyoming comes some skiing safety tips that I think are worth discussion.

"Check your ski equipment daily, particularly your release bindings. If in doubt about their efficiency (especially in icy conditions), have them checked at the ski shop." You should make sure the moving parts move (spraying on a lubricant will help), and check the screws every so often to see if they're tight.

"Always wear safety straps to prevent runaway skis." This is of particular importance on steep slopes and deep powder.

"Note trail signs closely. Never ski beyond your ability." Some areas will not have trail signs. So grab a trail map before you jump in a chairlift or ask someone if you're unsure.

"Never ski trails marked closed." Simple enough. Those trails are not patrolled. If you're injured, you've got a problem.

"Never ski alone on seldom skied trails." If you're injured, you might have a problem.

"When overtaking another skier, call out 'On your left' or 'On your right.' " This is to let the skier in front of you know you're about to pass so that he or she doesn't make a sudden move and cut you off. Remember, the uphill or behind skier should try to avoid the downhill or in front skier — not vice versa.

"Rest at the first signs of fatigue." If you're tired, that's the time you might get hurt. Maybe you can't quite make that quick turn or stop in a hurry. As the saying goes, leave the last run of the day on the hill.

"Check for frostbite on cold, windy days. Patches of very white skin should be treated immediately." Go to the area's first aid room or ask a patrolman what to do.

"Follow the operator's instructions when using lifts." This is particularly important for beginners. When I first went to a ski area, I thought that the chairs would stop for each pair of skiers. They didn't!

"Report any accidents to a lift operator or any patrolman that you see." In emergencies help information can be relayed from person to person up the chairlift.

Free Throw Champs

Sacramento, Sonoma '5' Tomorrow

Already assured of a tie for its first Far Western Conference basketball championship, Sonoma State College can win the title outright with a victory over visiting Sacramento State College tomorrow at 8 p.m.

Even if the Cossacks (9-2) stumble against Sacramento, they can still win the crown alone if Chico State College (7-3) loses to either Hayward or San Francisco State College this weekend.

The winner of the title race will represent the FWC at the National Collegiate Athletic Association small school Western Regionals March 9 and 10.

Besides wrapping up the undisputed championship, the Cossacks will be hoping to extend their home record to a perfect 10-0 and revenge an early season defeat with a win over Sacramento.

The Hornets, 5-5 in league, beat both University of California, Davis and Chico last weekend and dealt Sonoma its first league loss, 74-68.

Sacramento, which was a pre-season favorite for the league title, is not a big team, with center Bruce Green standing 6-feet-6; but the Hornets have some outstanding shooters in Don Krueger and Rick Diregolo.

Saturday at 8 p.m., the Cossacks conclude their regular season with a non-league game against visiting Stanislaus State College. Sonoma beat the Warriors earlier this year, 81-75.

Bradley Is Not A Happy Giant

CASA GRANDE — Tom Bradley, the 25-year-old, 6-foot-3 righthander acquired from the White Sox in a winter trade for Ken Henderson and Steve Stone, is not a happy Giant.

In fact, Bradley is downright unhappy about the contract offered him by Jerry Donovan, Horace Stoneham's contract negotiator.

"We are quite far apart," said Donovan who has been conducting negotiations with Bradley by long distance telephone. "Bradley is still in Chicago."

Isn't it customary for a club that seeks a player in a trade to offer him a substantial raise?

"Yes," said Donovan, "that's true and we did offer Bradley a good raise but he wasn't satisfied with it."

Thus, as the Giants assembled this week for their 1973 spring training encampment, Bradley was missing.

So, too, were Tito Fuentes, Jerry Johnson and Don Carrithers who also would like their 1973 contracts sweetened.

Alan Gallagher was the first Giant in uniform Monday when Don McMahon, the pitching coach, directed a limited workout for Gallagher, Jim Howarth, Jim Willoughby and Jeff Mason. From that exclusive group of four players, the roster jumped to 22 within 24 hours and Charlie Fox began acting like a manager at 10 a.m. Tuesday.

By the end of the week Fox expected 34 of his 38 men on the spring roster to be in camp. He said he would like to have Bradley, Fuentes, Johnson and Carrithers also on hand but they will not be permitted to suit up until they have reached an accord with Donovan.

Donovan declined to disclose what Bradley is seeking and what he has been offered. He similarly refused to discuss the stalemate in salary talks with Fuentes, Johnson and Carrithers.

Fuentes is believed to be seeking a $7,500 raise from $37,500 to $45,000. Johnson and Carrithers are trying to forestall salary slashes following disappointing 1972 records. After three quick saves in relief assignments last season, Johnson encountered control problems. It wasn't until after the All-Star break that Johnson began to look like the bullpen ace he was in 1971. Johnson's 8-6 won-lost record last year included a whopping 4.44 ERA.

Carrithers felt a trifle frustrated following his first full year in the majors last season. His final won-lost record was 4-8 with a fat 5.80 ERA. He alternately was brilliant and depressingly ineffective. After a tidy win over the Padres in his opening assignment on April 18, Carrithers was bombed into three straight defeats and banished to the bullpen.

On June 16 Carrithers finally was given another start and he spun a nifty seven-hitter in beating the Cardinals, 6-1. Then he was bombed into three more defeats and back to the bullpen he went. When he got another starting assignment on July 31 against Cincinnati he made the most of it. He stopped the pennant-bound Reds, 7-2, on a seven hitter. SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Stock Techniques Given

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My stock transactions have always been very simple, either I buy or sell at the market. Can you explain some of the more technical maneuvers such as limits and stops, etc.? — B.T.

A. The two types of modifications which you might wish to place on transactions are on price and duration of order. These limits may be specified when placing either purchase or sale orders. If an order is entered for an indefinite period, terminated only by its execution or cancellation, it is a GTC or good-till-cancelled order. A day order on the other hand expires at the end of the day's trading session if it is not executed. A third possible time restriction is a fill-or-kill order, which if not transacted immediately is cancelled.

Price may be modified in three ways with orders, either at market, limit or stop. Your previous transactions were at market, that is, executed at the prevailing market price when the order was entered. In a limı order a price above the current trading level is specified for a sale and below market level for a purchase.

If you are interested in purchasing a stock trading in the low 40s you might place a GTC order to buy at 38. This would be executed only at the limit price or at a better price. On a sale the execution would take place at the limit or above. However, should a stock approach the limit but not reach it, the transaction would not take place. For this reason you should fol[illegible] pri[illegible] closely if a stock is approaching its limit level.

The third price restriction, the stop order, is placed in the case of a sale below the market price and on a buy above the market. On the buy side, the stop either protects a profit or limits the loss on a short sale. A stop order to sell below the market is used to restrict losses or protect gains on long holdings. The danger here is that once the specified price is reached, stop orders become market orders and if there are orders ahead of yours they are executed in sequence which could result in a transaction several points lower than anticipated.

Savings Account Interest Boosted

From the first of this month, major California banks raised their interest rates on regular passbook savings accounts to 4½ per cent.

Marin's two home-grown banks — Bank of Marin and Redwood Bank — already pay the 4½ per cent rate on regular passbook savings accounts. Neither the Bank of Marin nor Redwood Bank lowered the rate to 4 per cent when the other major banks did so about a year ago.

Stocks Up Despite News Lack

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market held to the upside around noon today in fairly active trading.

Analysts said there was no particular news event to account for the gain.

"Many investors had planned to buy around 940 partly to cover short positions," one broker said. "The market has yet to react to the new dollar crisis in Europe.

Advances led declines, 862 to 357, among the 1,545 issues on the tape. Two-hour volume came to roughly 8,000,000 shares, compared with 8,940,000 shares in the first two hours Wednesday.

Stock Purchase Halt Ordered

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gulf and Western Industries, Inc. was enjoined Tuesday from going ahead with its tender offer for a 19 per cent interest in the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. because it could have "a serious and destructive effect" on the supermarket chain.

Federal Judge Kevin Thomas Duffy issued the preliminary injunction pending trial of the case on its merits.

Judge Duffy said that to allow the tender offer of $20 a share for the A&P stock to proceed "would produce a situation almost impossible to unravel." He said it could involve A&P in problems of antitrust law.

Market Expert 'Traveling Light'

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Forty-three years ago, in 1929, Gerald M. Loeb, a young E. F. Hutton account executive, said the market would crash.

He went on to become Hutton's vice chairman, a best-selling author ("The Battle for Investment Survival"), and, according to Forbes, the most quoted man on Wall Street.

He also became a millionaire — a super millionaire, some say — and without much doubt one of the nation's most astute market-watchers.

Now 73 (he'll be 74 in July), Loeb is still active. A 1970-71 book ("The Battle for Stock Market Profits") is in its third printing, he's in his office on the second floor of the Hutton Building on Montgomery Street every market day, and he serves the brokerage firm as a senior consultant.

During the past 43 years he's called more turns in the market than a caller calls turns at a square dance.

What is his current view of the market?

"I'm traveling light," he told California Business, the western financial weekly, recently. "I think there are some clouds on the immediate horizon that need some solving."

Among the clouds — the president's efforts to implement his monetary and fiscal policies and the relationship of the United States to the rest of the world.

"It's perfectly obvious," said Loeb, "Nixon is going to try his best to put the nation on a sound basis and it's obvious he will be opposed by Congress and others. The struggle itself will create some trying moments for the market.

"But I think Nixon will achieve some successes. . . and that means the nation will have to swallow some distasteful medicine. The market probably won't like that. The best time for a second-term president to take hard corrective steps is in the first year."

Thus Loeb's first cloud consists of some of the steps the President probably will take to harness government spending. Loeb belives the steps may be necessary and helpful to the nation but not necessarily conducive to a good market.

Cloud No. 2 has to do with how well the United States fits into the new world economy. "Since Roosevelt," Loeb said, "we lived in what I call a closed-circuit TV world. Then we realized we were not an island unto ourselves.

"That happened when Nixon devalued the dollar. Used to be we could control our own economy — or, at least, we thought we could — by raising rates, lowering them, etc. But now we are competing with the world in every respect and we're not doing very well. We're not in a closed-circuit television world any longer."

What of the investor? With the market down, aren't there some bargains?

"Frankly, I don't think there's much the investor can do right now," replied Loeb. "There are many attractive situations, but we need a good investment climate and the good climate isn't there."

When will the climate improve?

"The precise time?" questioned Loeb. "There's no way of knowing. The seasoned professional knows when he should buy and when he should sell, but he never knows it in advance. He knows it at the time. There's just no way of knowing now what the market will look like in December."

Loeb was questioned on the small or individual investor. What happened to the public? When will it return to the market?

"I think the public's always there," Loeb responded. "It's just that they are the ones who decide what's best for them. At the moment, stocks are going down, the growth concept has been tarnished, and the public is disillusioned in professional management.

"More and more people are interested in real estate. But the wheel will turn. It always has and always will."

March 7th:
Hear Merrill Lynch analyze 14 investment opportunities for 1973.
(And a few pitfalls to avoid.)

Here's a chance to hear our specific recommendations on how to invest in 1973—for income, growth, tax-free income—any investment objective.

Pick the most convenient time and place from the list below. In the meantime, here's a sample of what we think and what you'll hear:

■ A bullish economic forecast: why inflation won't be a problem/why the U.S. is in for sensible growth/how much we think various industries will gain/a glaring weak spot/why interest rates will hold.

■ Our bond forecast: what's in store for speculators and income seekers/what new legislation could mean for tax-exempt bonds/ which grades of corporate bonds to buy/why convertibles look good.

■ Why investor skepticism could help the stock market/the kinds of stocks we like and which industries actually have them.

■ You'll also learn: how you could boost your retirement income/how to earn tax-free or tax-sheltered income/how you could hedge against inflation.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Stock Techniques Given

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My stock transactions have always been very simple, either I buy or sell at the market. Can you explain some of the more technical maneuvers such as limits and stops, etc.? — B.T.

A. The two types of modifications which you might wish to place on transactions are on price and duration of order. These limits may be specified when placing either purchase or sale orders. If an order is entered for an indefinite period, terminated only by its execution or cancellation, it is a GTC or good-till-cancelled order. A day order on the other hand expires at the end of the day's trading session if it is not executed. A third possible time restriction is a fill-or-kill order, which if not transacted immediately is cancelled.

Price may be modified in three ways with orders, either at market, limit or stop. Your previous transactions were at market, that is, executed at the prevailing market price when the order was entered. In a limı order a price above the current trading level is specified for a sale and below market level for a purchase.

If you are interested in purchasing a stock trading in the low 40s you might place a GTC order to buy at 38. This would be executed only at the limit price or at a better price. On a sale the execution would take place at the limit or above. However, should a stock approach the limit but not reach it, the transaction would not take place. For this reason you should foll pri closely if a stock is approaching its limit level.

The third price restriction, the stop order, is placed in the case of a sale below the market price and on a buy above the market. On the buy side, the stop either protects a profit or limits the loss on a short sale. A stop order to sell below the market is used to restrict losses or protect gains on long holdings. The danger here is that once the specified price is reached, stop orders become market orders and if there are orders ahead of yours they are executed in sequence which could result in a transaction several points lower than anticipated.

Stocks Up Despite News Lack

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market held to the upside around noon today in fairly active trading.

Analysts said there was no particular news event to account for the gain.

"Many investors had planned to buy around 940 partly to cover short positions," one broker said. The market has yet to react to the new dollar crisis in Europe.

Advances led declines, 862 to 357, among the 1,545 issues on the tape. Two-hour volume came to roughly 8,000,000 shares, compared with 8,940,000 shares in the first two hours Wednesday.

Savings Account Interest Boosted

From the first of this month, major California banks raised their interest rates on regular passbook savings accounts to 4½ per cent.

Marin's two home-grown banks — Bank of Marin and Redwood Bank — already pay the 4½ per cent rate on regular passbook savings accounts. Neither the Bank of Marin nor Redwood Bank lowered the rate to 4 per cent when the other major banks did so about a year ago.

Stock Purchase Halt Ordered

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gulf and Western Industries, Inc. was enjoined Tuesday from going ahead with its tender offer for a 19 per cent interest in the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. because it could have "a serious and destructive effect" on the supermarket chain.

Federal Judge Kevin Thomas Duffy issued the preliminary injunction pending trial of the case on its merits.

Judge Duffy said that to allow the tender offer of $20 a share for the A&P stock to proceed "would produce a situation almost impossible to unravel." He said it could involve A&P in problems of antitrust law.

Market Expert 'Traveling Light'

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Forty-three years ago, in 1929, Gerald M. Loeb, a young E. F. Hutton account executive, said the market would crash.

He went on to become Hutton's vice chairman, a best-selling author ("The Battle for Investment Survival"), and, according to Forbes, the most quoted man on Wall Street.

He also became a millionaire — a super millionaire, some say — and without much doubt one of the nation's most astute market-watchers.

Now 73 (he'll be 74 in July), Loeb is still active. A 1970-71 book ("The Battle for Stock Market Profits") is in its third printing, he's in his office on the second floor of the Hutton Building on Montgomery Street every market day, and he serves the brokerage firm as a senior consultant.

During the past 43 years he's called more turns in the market than a caller calls turns at a square dance.

What is his current view of the market?

"I'm traveling light," he told California Business, the western financial weekly, recently. "I think there are some clouds on the immediate horizon that need some solving."

Among the clouds — the president's efforts to implement his monetary and fiscal policies and the relationship of the United States to the rest of the world.

"It's perfectly obvious," said Loeb, "Nixon is going to try his best to put the nation on a sound basis and it's obvious he will be opposed by Congress and others. The struggle itself will create some trying moments for the market.

"But I think Nixon will achieve some successes. . . and that means the nation will have to swallow some distasteful medicine. The market probably won't like that. The best time for a second-term president to take hard corrective steps is in the first year."

Thus Loeb's first cloud consists of some of the steps the President probably will take to harness government spending. Loeb belives the steps may be necessary and helpful to the nation but not necessarily conducive to a good market.

Cloud No. 2 has to do with how well the United States fits into the new world economy. "Since Roosevelt," Loeb said, "we lived in what I call a closed-circuit TV world. Then we realized we were not an island unto ourselves.

"That happened when Nixon devalued the dollar. Used to be we could control our own economy — or, at least, we thought we could — by raising rates, lowering them, etc. But now we are competing with the world in every respect and we're not doing very well. We're not in a closed-circuit television world any longer."

What of the investor? With the market down, aren't there some bargains?

"Frankly, I don't think there's much the investor can do right now," replied Loeb. "There are many attractive situations, but we need a good investment climate and the good climate isn't there."

When will the climate improve?

"The precise time?" questioned Loeb. "There's no way of knowing. The seasoned professional knows when he should buy and when he should sell, but he never knows it in advance. He knows it at the time. There's just no way of knowing now what the market will look like in December."

Loeb was questioned on the small or individual investor. What happened to the public? When will it return to the market?

"I think the public's always there," Loeb responded. "It's just that they are the ones who decide what's best for them. At the moment, stocks are going down, the growth concept has been tarnished, and the public is disillusioned in professional management.

"More and more people are interested in real estate. But the wheel will turn. It always has and always will."

March 7th: Hear Merrill Lynch analyze 14 investment opportunities for 1973.

(And a few pitfalls to avoid.)

Here's a chance to hear our specific recommendations on how to invest in 1973 — for income, growth, tax-free income — any investment objective.

Pick the most convenient time and place from the list below. In the meantime, here's a sample of what we think and what you'll hear:

■ A bullish economic forecast: why inflation won't be a problem / why the U.S. is in for sensible growth / how much we think various industries will gain / a glaring weak spot / why interest rates will hold.

■ Our bond forecast: what's in store for speculators and income seekers / what new legislation could mean for tax-exempt bonds / which grades of corporate bonds to buy / why convertibles look good.

■ Why investor skepticism could help the stock market / the kinds of stocks we like and which industries actually have them.

■ You'll also learn: how you could boost your retirement income / how to earn tax-free or tax-sheltered income / how you could hedge against inflation.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Stock Techniques Given

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. My stock transactions have always been very simple, either I buy or sell at the market. Can you explain some of the more technical maneuvers such as limits and stops, etc.? — B.T.

A. The two types of modifications which you might wish to place on transactions are on price and duration of order. These limits may be specified when placing either purchase or sale orders. If an order is entered for an indefinite period, terminated only by its execution or cancellation, it is a GTC or good-till-cancelled order. A day order on the other hand expires at the end of the day's trading session if it is not executed. A third possible time restriction is a fill-or-kill order, which if not transacted immediately is cancelled.

Price may be modified in three ways with orders, either at market, limit or stop. Your previous transactions were at market, that is, executed at the prevailing market price when the order was entered. In a limi order a price above the current trading level is specified for a sale and below market level for a purchase.

If you are interested in purchasing a stock trading in the low 40s you might place a GTC order to buy at 38. This would be executed only at the limit price or at a better price. On a sale the execution would take place at the limit or above. However, should a stock approach the limit but not reach it, the transaction would not take place. For this reason you should fol[illegible] pri closely if a stock is approaching its limit level.

The third price restriction, the stop order, is placed in the case of a sale below the market price and on a buy above the market. On the buy side, the stop either protects a profit or limits the loss on a short sale. A stop order to sell below the market is used to restrict losses or protect gains on long holdings. The danger here is that once the specified price is reached, stop orders become market orders and if there are orders ahead of yours they are executed in sequence which could result in a transaction several points lower than anticipated.

Savings Account Interest Boosted

From the first of this month, major California banks raised their interest rates on regular passbook savings accounts to 4½ per cent.

Marin's two home-grown banks — Bank of Marin and Redwood Bank — already pay the 4½ per cent rate on regular passbook savings accounts. Neither the Bank of Marin nor Redwood Bank lowered the rate to 4 per cent when the other major banks did so about a year ago.

Stocks Up Despite News Lack

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market held to the upside around noon today in fairly active trading.

Analysts said there was no particular news event to account for the gain.

"Many investors had planned to buy around 940 partly to cover short positions," one broker said. The market has yet to react to the new dollar crisis in Europe.

Advances led declines, 862 to 357, among the 1,545 issues on the tape. Two-hour volume came to roughly 8,000,000 shares, compared with 8,940,000 shares in the first two hours Wednesday.

Stock Purchase Halt Ordered

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gulf and Western Industries, Inc. was enjoined Tuesday from going ahead with its tender offer for a 19 per cent interest in the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. because it could have "a serious and destructive effect" on the supermarket chain.

Federal Judge Kevin Thomas Duffy issued the preliminary injunction pending trial of the case on its merits.

Judge Duffy said that to allow the tender offer of $20 a share for the A&P stock to proceed "would produce a situation almost impossible to unravel." He said it could involve A&P in problems of antitrust law.

Market Expert 'Traveling Light'

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Forty-three years ago, in 1929, Gerald M. Loeb, a young E. F. Hutton account executive, said the market would crash.

He went on to become Hutton's vice chairman, a best-selling author ("The Battle for Investment Survival"), and, according to Forbes, the most quoted man on Wall Street.

He also became a millionaire — a super millionaire, some say — and without much doubt one of the nation's most astute market-watchers.

Now 73 (he'll be 74 in July), Loeb is still active. A 1970-71 book ("The Battle for Stock Market Profits") is in its third printing, he's in his office on the second floor of the Hutton Building on Montgomery Street every market day, and he serves the brokerage firm as a senior consultant.

During the past 43 years he's called more turns in the market than a caller calls turns at a square dance.

What is his current view of the market?

"I'm traveling light," he told California Business, the western financial weekly, recently. "I think there are some clouds on the immediate horizon that need some solving."

Among the clouds — the president's efforts to implement his monetary and fiscal policies and the relationship of the United States to the rest of the world.

"It's perfectly obvious," said Loeb, "Nixon is going to try his best to put the nation on a sound basis and it's obvious he will be opposed by Congress and others. The struggle itself will create some trying moments for the market.

"But I think Nixon will achieve some successes. . . and that means the nation will have to swallow some distasteful medicine. The market probably won't like that. The best time for a second-term president to take hard corrective steps is in the first year."

Thus Loeb's first cloud consists of some of the steps the President probably will take to harness government spending. Loeb belives the steps may be necessary and helpful to the nation but not necessarily conducive to a good market.

Cloud No. 2 has to do with how well the United States fits into the new world economy. "Since Roosevelt," Loeb said, "we lived in what I call a closed-circuit TV world. Then we realized we were not an island unto ourselves.

"That happened when Nixon devalued the dollar. Used to be we could control our own economy — or, at least, we thought we could — by raising rates, lowering them, etc. But now we are competing with the world in every respect and we're not doing very well. We're not in a closed-circuit television world any longer."

What of the investor? With the market down, aren't there some bargains?

"Frankly, I don't think there's much the investor can do right now," replied Loeb. "There are many attractive situations, but we need a good investment climate and the good climate isn't there."

When will the climate improve?

"The precise time?" questioned Loeb. "There's no way of knowing. The seasoned professional knows when he should buy and when he should sell, but he never knows it in advance. He knows it at the time. There's just no way of knowing now what the market will look like in December."

Loeb was questioned on the small or individual investor. What happened to the public? When will it return to the market?

"I think the public's always there," Loeb responded. "It's just that they are the ones who decide what's best for them. At the moment, stocks are going down, the growth concept has been tarnished, and the public is disillusioned in professional management.

"More and more people are interested in real estate. But the wheel will turn. It always has and always will."

March 7th: Hear Merrill Lynch analyze 14 investment opportunities for 1973.

(And a few pitfalls to avoid.)

Here's a chance to hear our specific recommendations on how to invest in 1973—for income, growth, tax-free income—any investment objective.

Pick the most convenient time and place from the list below. In the meantime, here's a sample of what we think and what you'll hear:

■ A bullish economic forecast: why inflation won't be a problem/why the U.S. is in for sensible growth/how much we think various industries will gain/a glaring weak spot/why interest rates will hold.

■ Our bond forecast: what's in store for speculators and income seekers/what new legislation could mean for tax-exempt bonds/ which grades of corporate bonds to buy/why convertibles look good.

■ Why investor skepticism could help the stock market/the kinds of stocks we like and which industries actually have them.

■ You'll also learn: how you could boost your retirement income/how to earn tax-free or tax-sheltered income/how you could hedge against inflation.

The forum is free. But space is limited. So please reserve your seat now.

Mary Strickler's Quilt Opens In Downtown San Rafael Site

Mary Strickler's Quilt, a new shop featuring old handmade quilts and turn-of-the-century furniture, opened today at 936 B Street in San Rafael near Fourth and B.

Owners of the shop are Linda Reuther and Julie Silber of Inverness, former school teachers, who have a collection of handmade quilts, pillows made of old patchwork, books on quilt making, and old oak and wicker furniture.

A NEW DANCE studio, just opened in Mill Valley, provides acrobatic and tap dance classes every Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Almonte District Improvement Club, Wisteria Way and Almonte Boulevard.

Called Miss Love Dance Studio, it is operated by Love Goldman of Mill Valley, who teaches professional dancing technique as well as development of grace and charm. Her classes include tap dancing, acrobatics, tumbling, and scientific stretching and body building exercises.

Miss Love formerly operated her dance studio in New Jersey for 12 years and was associated with the Fred Astaire Dance Studios during her last year of teaching there. She received her early training from dance masters in New York. Many of her pupils have appeared on television. For the last 10 years, Miss Love directed and staged musical comedy revues for members of the Brookside Swim Club in New Jersey.

DELL'S SECRETARIAL Service in Fairfax moved today to 6 Bolinas Road in space formerly ocupied by the Jumbalaya shop. (Jumbalaya moved last week across the street next to the Guild House.)

Dell Blodgett of Fairfax operated her secretarial service for the past four years at 85 Bolinas Road, across the street from Fairfax's redwood park.

Mrs. Blodgett said her new location at 6 Bolinas Road provides more space for her expanding business. She now provides income tax service for the run-of-the-mill tax return. She also cuts electronic stencils, which permits her to do artwork for reproduction.

Mrs. Blodgett will continue to do notary public work, small lettering jobs such as place cards, and general typing — dictation (in person, by phone, or casette), manuscripts, term papers, theses and tabulations .

LEE SPANGLER of Larkspur has been appointed vice president and associate creative director at Honig-Cooper & Harrington advertising firm in San Francisco. Spangler was a head copywriter for the agency before the promotion.

RICHARD J. LOUGHLIN of San Rafael, executive vice president of the San Francisco Real Estate Board for the past seven years, has resigned to become director of administration for Century 21 Real Estate Corporation of Northern California. Formed a year ago in Southern California, Century 21 provides marketing service to realtors through the franchise concept.

"I feel that the franchise concept will be the salvation of the small to medium sized realtor offices in their attempt to compete with large companies and conglomerates," said Loughlin.

Century 21 headquarters in Northern California will be at One Embarcadero Center in San Francisco, with the grand opening set for the first of May.

BECHTEL GROUP of Companies announced the promotions of two Marin residents.

Executive Vice Presidents E. J. Garbarini and J. F. O'Connell, both of Kentfield, received new titles as vice chairmen of three Bechtel companies — Bechtel Power Corporation, Bechtel Incorporated, and Bechtel Corporation. Each has been named president of a single Bechtel company. Garbarini is president of Bechtel Power Corporation and O'Connell is president of Bechtel Incorporated.

Garbarini

O'Connell

President S. D. Bechtel Jr, has been named chairman of all three Bechtel companies.

RALPH B. MANNELLA of San Anselmo has been appointed assistant manager of Crocker Bank's Tiburon-Belvedere office. A 22-year veteran with Crocker Bank, Mannella was assistant manager of the Fairfax branch before his new assignment.

He is a past president of the Marin County chapter of the American Institute of Banking.

Mannella

Clemons

FRED CLEMONS JR. of Corte Madera was appointed operations officer in the cash processing section of Wells Fargo Bank's Trust Division, San Francisco.

PAUL THOMPSON of Mill Valley was named to the newly created post of cruise consultant for The Haley Corporation Travel Service, San Francisco, company President Charles Sciaroni announced.

Thompson will be responsible for the sale of cruises to the public and for the creation and marketing of Haley-sponsored cruise programs.

Thompson has 27 years of experience in the passenger steamship industry, starting with the Cunard Lines in 1946 and serving with Matson Navigation and American President Lines.

MARIONETTE manipulation will be demonstrated this weekend at the Hobby Tree shop next to Ward's at the Corte Madera Center.

Virginia Curtis, originator of the "Clippo" Clown marionette, will demonstrate at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday. Several practice marionettes will be available for individualized instruction.

Miss Curtis has years of vaudeville experience and worked with famous orchestras, the Ed Sullivan and "You Asked For It" shows. She sculpted many famous marionette heads, including Mortimer Snerd for Edgar Bergen.

MR. AND MRS. HERB SHERR of Cal-Pacific Distributing Co. in San Rafael are back from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where they conducted their first regional sales seminar for Fire-Stix, the company's new barbecue, campfire and fireplace starter.

Fire-Stix, developed last year, is now carried in several major retail chains. Locally, Fire-Stix is available in Safeway stores and in most retail outlets which sell barbecue, camping and fireplace equipment, Sherr announced.

JOHN HANCOCK MUTUAL Life Insurance Co. announced the following award to representatives of the San Rafael General Agency for outstanding sales and service during 1972:

Mike Minto of Petaluma won the award for Agent of the Year; J. Douglas McNeil of Novato received an award for persistence and service to clients; Raymond J. Irvin of Novato, Sophomore of the Year award; and Walter Lane of Santa Rosa, Freshman of the Year award.

Gary A. Bramon is general agent at the San Rafael office.

PARKSIDE APARTMENTS, 70 new units in the Sunnyhills area of San Anselmo, has been completed and is ready for renting. Located at 101 Sunnyhills Drive, it is close to Red Hill Shopping Center.

One bedroom units rent for $215 to $240 per month, and two bedrooms for $275 to $295. The apartments occupy a cluster of six buildings, and the seventh building is for recreation, with a private clubhouse, billiard room, sauna bath and lounge. There is a large outdoor swimming pool.

Contractor was David Lewis of Ross Valley Co., San Anselmo, and the architects, Wagstaff & McDonald of San Anselmo.

BALDWIN WEST and Associates, Realtors, at 200 Northgate One in Terra Linda announced the addition of George Pataki of San Rafael and Paul Levesque of Terra Linda to the sales staff. Both are retired Army colonels.

Pataki holds a degree of bachelor of education and a real estate broker's license. He has been active in the business since 1966. He and his family have lived in San Rafael since 1961. Levesque and his family have been residents of Terra Linda and Marinwood areas since 1957.

Mary Strickler's Quilt Opens In Downtown San Rafael Site

Mary Strickler's Quilt, a new shop featuring old handmade quilts and turn-of-the-century furniture, opened today at 936 B Street in San Rafael near Fourth and B.

Owners of the shop are Linda Reuther and Julie Silber of Inverness, former school teachers, who have a collection of handmade quilts, pillows made of old patchwork, books on quilt making, and old oak and wicker furniture.

A NEW DANCE studio, just opened in Mill Valley, provides acrobatic and tap dance classes every Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Almonte District Improvement Club, Wisteria Way and Almonte Boulevard.

Called Miss Love Dance Studio, it is operated by Love Goldman of Mill Valley, who teaches professional dancing technique as well as development of grace and charm. Her classes include tap dancing, acrobatics, tumbling, and scientific stretching and body building exercises.

Miss Love formerly operated her dance studio in New Jersey for 12 years and was associated with the Fred Astaire Dance Studios during her last year of teaching there. She received her early training from dance masters in New York. Many of her pupils have appeared on television. For the last 10 years, Miss Love directed and staged musical comedy revues for members of the Brookside Swim Club in New Jersey.

DELL'S SECRETARIAL Service in Fairfax moved today to 6 Bolinas Road in space formerly ocupied by the Jumbalaya shop. (Jumbalaya moved last week across the street next to the Guild House.)

Dell Blodgett of Fairfax operated her secretarial service for the past four years at 85 Bolinas Road, across the street from Fairfax's redwood park.

Mrs. Blodgett said her new location at 6 Bolinas Road provides more space for her expanding business. She now provides income tax service for the run-of-the-mill tax return. She also cuts electronic stencils, which permits her to do artwork for reproduction.

Mrs. Blodgett will continue to do notary public work, small lettering jobs such as place cards, and general typing — dictation (in person, by phone, or casette), manuscripts, term papers, theses and tabulations .

LEE SPANGLER of Larkspur has been appointed vice president and associate creative director at Honig-Cooper & Harrington advertising firm in San Francisco. Spangler was a head copywriter for the agency before the promotion.

RICHARD J. LOUGHLIN of San Rafael, executive vice president of the San Francisco Real Estate Board for the past seven years, has resigned to become director of administration for Century 21 Real Estate Corporation of Northern California. Formed a year ago in Southern California, Century 21 provides marketing service to realtors through the franchise concept.

"I feel that the franchise concept will be the salvation of the small to medium sized realtor offices in their attempt to compete with large companies and conglomerates," said Loughlin.

Century 21 headquarters in Northern California will be at One Embarcadero Center in San Francisco, with the grand opening set for the first of May.

BECHTEL GROUP of Companies announced the promotions of two Marin residents.

Executive Vice Presidents E. J. Garbarini and J. F. O'Connell, both of Kentfield, received new titles as vice chairmen of three Bechtel companies — Bechtel Power Corporation, Bechtel Incorporated, and Bechtel Corporation. Each has been named president of a single Bechtel company. Garbarini is president of Bechtel Power Corporation and O'Connell is president of Bechtel Incorporated.

Garbarini

O'Connell

President S. D. Bechtel Jr, has been named chairman of all three Bechtel companies.

RALPH B. MANNELLA of San Anselmo has been appointed assistant manager of Crocker Bank's Tiburon-Belvedere office. A 22-year veteran with Crocker Bank, Mannella was assistant manager of the Fairfax branch before his new assignment.

He is a past president of the Marin County chapter of the American Institute of Banking.

Clemons

FRED CLEMONS JR. of Corte Madera was appointed operations officer in the cash processing section of Wells Fargo Bank's Trust Division, San Francisco.

PAUL THOMPSON of Mill Valley was named to the newly created post of cruise consultant for The Haley Corporation Travel Service, San Francisco, company President Charles Sciaroni announced.

Thompson will be responsible for the sale of cruises to the public and for the creation and marketing of Haley-sponsored cruise programs.

Thompson has 27 years of experience in the passenger steamship industry, starting with the Cunard Lines in 1946 and serving with Matson Navigation and American President Lines.

MARIONETTE manipulation will be demonstrated this weekend at the Hobby Tree shop next to Ward's at the Corte Madera Center.

Virginia Curtis, originator of the "Clippo" Clown marionette, will demonstrate at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. both Saturday and Sunday. Several practice marionettes will be available for individualized instruction.

Miss Curtis has years of vaudeville experience and worked with famous orchestras, the Ed Sullivan and "You Asked For It" shows. She sculpted many famous marionette heads, including Mortimer Snerd for Edgar Bergen.

MR. AND MRS. HERB SHERR of Cal-Pacific Distributing Co. in San Rafael are back from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where they conducted their first regional sales seminar for Fire-Stix, the company's new barbecue, campfire and fireplace starter.

Fire-Stix, developed last year, is now carried in several major retail chains. Locally, Fire-Stix is available in Safeway stores and in most retail outlets which sell barbecue, camping and fireplace equipment, Sherr announced.

JOHN HANCOCK MUTUAL Life Insurance Co. announced the following award to representatives of the San Rafael General Agency for outstanding sales and service during 1972:

Mike Minto of Petaluma won the award for Agent of the Year; J. Douglas McNeil of Novato received an award for persistence and service to clients; Raymond J. Irvin of Novato, Sophomore of the Year award; and Walter Lane of Santa Rosa, Freshman of the Year award.

Gary A. Bramon is general agent at the San Rafael office.

PARKSIDE APARTMENTS, 70 new units in the Sunnyhills area of San Anselmo, has been completed and is ready for renting. Located at 101 Sunnyhills Drive, it is close to Red Hill Shopping Center.

One bedroom units' rent for $215 to $240 per month, and two bedrooms for $275 to $295. The apartments occupy a cluster of six buildings, and the seventh building is for recreation, with a private clubhouse, billiard room, sauna bath and lounge. There is a large outdoor swimming pool.

Contractor was David Lewis of Ross Valley Co., San Anselmo, and the architects, Wagstaff & McDonald of San Anselmo.

BALDWIN WEST and Associates, Realtors, at 200 Northgate One in Terra Linda announced the addition of George Pataki of San Rafael and Paul Levesque of Terra Linda to the sales staff. Both are retired Army colonels.

Pataki holds a degree of bachelor of education and a real estate broker's license. He has been active in the business since 1966. He and his family have lived in San Rafael since 1961. Levesque and his family have been residents of Terra Linda and Marinwood areas since 1957.

Plans For Novato Center Are Reduced

There isn't enough population in the area to support the major regional shopping center proposed in the city's downtown plan, Burns told the Novato Chamber of Commerce members at a luncheon yesterday at Nave's restaurant.

Burns said he now plans a 250,000-square-foot shopping center on 23 acres of the Pinheiro Ranch, "with a couple of junior department stores. He also said he has leases with "major tenants" but declined to name them.

"I'm afraid tenants like to make those announcements. There has been some mention made of some tenants, but I'm not at liberty to do that," he said. (Councilman David Price Jones mentioned Grant's as a prospective tenant at a council session last week.)

Burns said he plans a center with a rural character and the Strawberry Town and Country Village is "probaby the closest" in type.

Under questioning by members, he said he has no leases signed with smaller tenants, but has received expressions of interest and "firm commitments" from banks and a health studio.

Mrs. Carson Seeks The Right To Talk

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Joanne Carson filed suit Wednesday demanding the right to talk about her former husband, Johnny Carson, on television without losing her $6,250 a month alimony.

Both Carsons are now talk show hosts. According to a clause in their 1971 divorce agreement, neither may "say or do anything which will hold the other party in public disrepute, public scandal or public ridicule." She maintained that Carson had interpreted remarks on her show as violating that clause, threatened to sue her and has withheld support payments. Mrs. Carson demanded $12,500 in back alimony.

Mrs. Arnheiter Drops Dissolution Request

Janice Blair Arnheiter's suit for dissolution of her marriage to former Navy Lt. Cmdr. Marcus A. Arnheiter was withdrawn today by her attorney, William O. Weissich.

Mrs. Arnheiter had cited "irreconcilable differences" in her complaint for dissolution. Announcing she had instructed her attorney to withdraw the suit, she said:

"Under extreme duress and mental anguish, wrong decisions are bound to be made. After reflection, I wish to dismiss the action."

The Arnheiters have been married 16 years and have five children. They reside in Novato, and the former Navy officer is assistant manager of Mutual of New York's insurance office in San Rafael.

In announcing withdrawal of her suit, Mrs. Arnheiter declared that the duress and mental anguish was due in part to the book, "The Arnheiter Affair," by Neil Sheehan, which deals with her husband's troubles when commander of the destroyer escort Vance off the Vietnam coast in 1966. She said the book, which "is full of distortions and half-truths," caused her to become "gravely depressed."

She emphasized that she has never questioned the correctness of her husband's actions when commander of the ship, and noted that he "was twice recommended for return to command of a warship by the top admiral in the cruiser-destroyer forces of the Pacific fleet." Arnheiter's removal from command of the Vance was the subject of a congressional investigation in 1968. He subsequently resigned from the Navy.

Confession To Arson Activity

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 16-year-old boy has surrendered to police as the third member of the "Flames"—a self-styled arson group which boasted of setting 15 fires in the city's Fillmore District.

The youth was booked Wednesday into youth guidance center. Two other teen-agers were arrested earlier in the week and taken to the juvenile facility.

Police said the 16-year-old admitted that hand painted posters attributing the fires to the "Flames" were prepared in his home.

Launches Sink

DACCA (UPI) — Two motor launches carrying a total of about 700 persons sank in a storm that swept the coast of Bangladesh on Tuesday, the newspaper Sangbad reported today.

Airport Safety Plan Endorsed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's airport operators have endorsed a Senate-passed bill establishing a federal security force to thwart airline skyjacking.

The Airport Operators Council, whose members handle 90 per cent of domestic air passengers and nearly all international traffic, told the House Transportation subcommittee Wednesday that the bill offers "the most effective, least costly and most flexible remedy to the ground security aspect of the hijacking problem."

The bill would set up a federal police force in place of the present system which the federal government has established. This requires airports and airlines to hire their own guards to screen passengers and their luggage.

The Wheat Queen Allergic To Grain

"I'm probably the only wheat queen in history who is allergic to wheat," the 18-year-old beauty told lawmakers as she quickly put down a sheaf of wheat she had been handed Wednesday.

Plans For Novato Center Are Reduced

There isn't enough population in the area to support the major regional shopping center proposed in the city's downtown plan, Burns told the Novato Chamber of Commerce members at a luncheon yesterday at Nave's restaurant.

Burns said he now plans a 250,000-square-foot shopping center on 23 acres of the Pinheiro Ranch, "with a couple of junior department stores. He also said he has leases with "major tenants" but declined to name them.

"I'm afraid tenants like to make those announcements. There has been some mention made of some tenants, but I'm not at liberty to do that," he said. (Councilman David Price Jones mentioned Grant's as a prospective tenant at a council session last week.)

Burns said he plans a center with a rural character and the Strawberry Town and Country Village is "probaby the closest" in type.

Under questioning by members, he said he has no leases signed with smaller tenants, but has received expressions of interest and "firm commitments" from banks and a health studio.

Mrs. Carson Seeks The Right To Talk

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Joanne Carson filed suit Wednesday demanding the right to talk about her former husband, Johnny Carson, on television without losing her $6,250 a month alimony.

Both Carsons are now talk show hosts. According to a clause in their 1971 divorce agreement, neither may "say or do anything which will hold the other party in public disrepute, public scandal or public ridicule." She maintained that Carson had interpreted remarks on her show as violating that clause, threatened to sue her and has withheld support payments. Mrs. Carson demanded $12,500 in back alimony.

Mrs. Arnheiter Drops Dissolution Request

Janice Blair Arnheiter's suit for dissolution of her marriage to former Navy Lt. Cmdr. Marcus A. Arnheiter was withdrawn today by her attorney, William O. Weissich.

Mrs. Arnheiter had cited "irreconcilable differences" in her complaint for dissolution. Announcing she had instructed her attorney to withdraw the suit, she said:

"Under extreme duress and mental anguish, wrong decisions are bound to be made. After reflection, I wish to dismiss the action."

The Arnheiters have been married 16 years and have five children. They reside in Novato, and the former Navy officer is assistant manager of Mutual of New York's insurance office in San Rafael.

In announcing withdrawal of her suit, Mrs. Arnheiter declared that the duress and mental anguish was due in part to the book, "The Arnheiter Affair," by Neil Sheehan, which deals with her husband's troubles when commander of the destroyer escort Vance off the Vietnam coast in 1966. She said the book, which "is full of distortions and half-truths," caused her to become "gravely depressed."

She emphasized that she has never questioned the correctness of her husband's actions when commander of the ship, and noted that he "was twice recommended for return to command of a warship by the top admiral in the cruiser-destroyer forces of the Pacific fleet." Arnheiter's removal from command of the Vance was the subject of a congressional investigation in 1968. He subsequently resigned from the Navy.

Confession To Arson Activity

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 16-year-old boy has surrendered to police as the third member of the "Flames"—a self-styled arson group which boasted of setting 15 fires in the city's Fillmore District.

The youth was booked Wednesday into youth guidance center. Two other teen-agers were arrested earlier in the week and taken to the juvenile facility.

Police said the 16-year-old admitted that hand painted posters attributing the fires to the "Flames" were prepared in his home.

Launches Sink

DACCA (UPI) — Two motor launches carrying a total of about 700 persons sank in a storm that swept the coast of Bangladesh on Tuesday, the newspaper Sangbad reported today.

Airport Safety Plan Endorsed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's airport operators have endorsed a Senate-passed bill establishing a federal security force to thwart airline skyjacking.

The Airport Operators Council, whose members handle 90 per cent of domestic air passengers and nearly all international traffic, told the House Transportation subcommittee Wednesday that the bill offers "the most effective, least costly and most flexible remedy to the ground security aspect of the hijacking problem."

The bill would set up a federal police force in place of the present system which the federal government has established. This requires airports and airlines to hire their own guards to screen passengers and their luggage.

The Wheat Queen Allergic To Grain

"I'm probably the only wheat queen in history who is allergic to wheat," the 18-year-old beauty told lawmakers as she quickly put down a sheaf of wheat she had been handed Wednesday.
